Ghosts of New Street Russia Tries Farming 100 Story Building And They Did Drink

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

FOR the first time in ten years the Stock Exchange was open on Sunday, brokers winding up transactions of a desperately busy week, preparing for the grand reopening this morning.

Gigantic orders for today have been pouring in since the close on Thursday, some to buy, some to sell. Buyers and sellers will take turns rejoicing and regretting. The country's business will go on, as usual.

Wall Street is quoting Henry Clews' advice to young speculators. "Watch the old speculators." Clews ran a carefully managed brokerage office and got rich, because he knew enough to let gambling alone.

Young speculators should visit the back door of the Stock Exchange in New st. at midnight, and talk to the ghosts of old dead speculators that whisper how they once were rich and lost everything.

They might learn a good deal there, but they won't. Knowledge comes from experience.

While we talk about farm relief in Washington and supply genuine relief in Wall Street, Soviet Russia makes real experiments.

Russia, developing gigantic national farms, with modern machinery, plans a complete revolution in farming methods.

Twenty-five million small farms that feed Russia's population and cover one sixth of the earth's surface, will be changed to big scale farming, on a basis that would double the crops, using half the land.

Our farmers would not care for that, too much danger of being wiped out. Farmers like their own cows, barns, fields, ploughs, agricultural machinery, idle and rusting 11 months in the year.

They would not become salaried government agrarian officials, even if they made more. Russia at least is trying to do something. We are trying to walk on eggs, doing nothing, without driving farmers from the Republican party.

The one hundred story building has arrived. F. H. Ecker will build it for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., on the block adjoining the Metropolitan's 50-story tower, Madison sq., New York.

That is progress since the period of the Philadelphia centennial, when Whitelaw Reid celebrated his acquisition of the Tribune and startled New York with a nine-story tower.

The 100-story tower, to be used for Metropolitan Life employes only, will house 30,000 of them, carrying them up the first 13 floors on moving stairways.

Washington awaits Senator Brookhart's promised revelations concerning a senatorial dinner, not dry.

A New York broker named Fahey is supposed to have tempted the senators at a private party and, according to Senator Brookhart, they did drink. Everybody knows that congressmen drink and that prohibition is for the little man. But it is unpleasant to talk about it.

Wall Street's earthquake week proved that New York's billionaire banks can be useful in emergencies.

Brokers' loans have been reduced by two billion four hundred million dollars, while "out of town banks," as Wall Street calls the rest of the country, were calling loans, New York banks were lending a billion and a quarter.

Without that lending on securities, which acted as a cushion, you might have seen a real panic.

Alexander Sataron, a young Communist, dies in a Hungarian prison on a hunger strike, being the second to die in that fashion.

The strike ending in death is a protest against Hungary's present government, if the dead man now looks down, surveying this world that has lasted more than a thousand million years and has another million years to go, he probably feels that it was a mistake to take one little political situation so seriously.

However, it takes many deaths to create liberty, as it takes many chewing garth worms to create fertile soil.

In Oklahoma, Jeff D. Harris, 65 years old, ardent dry, thought it his duty to enforce prohibition. He had no official position, no warrant, but he suspected Farmer Ossie Lowery of bootlegging, raided his farm and tinied Lowery.

A jury convicts Harris of manslaughter, levying the sentence, "from four years to life," to the judge.

The prosecuting attorney threatens if the sentence is light, to put Harris on trial for another

$250,000 TO BET ON CURLEY

EXCHANGE TO GO ON SHORT HOURS REST OF WEEK

Buying Support Follows Early Slump, but Selling Wave Is Soon Resumed

New York, Nov. 4 (AP) — Trading on the New York securities exchanges returned to a normal basis today after a wild outburst of selling at the opening.

Early this afternoon, the ticker tape caught up with the market for the first time since the disastrous break of Thursday, October 24, delays since that time averaging between one nad two hours.

Prices dropped $1 to $12 a share at the opening, reenvered probably a third of their losses in the brisk rally which followed and then sold off again as a renewed selling pressure against the high-priced specialties carried many of those issues down $10 to nearly $20 a share below last week's final quotations.

Prices were holding fairly steady in the afternoon around the day's low levels. Total sales from 10 to 1:30 p. m. were 4,863,000 shares.

Despite the fact that the stock exchange was only open half a day last Thursday, and closed altogether on Friday and Saturday, brokerage firms apparently found it impossible to extricate themselves from the vast accumulation of work, with the result that governors today authorized a shortening of the sessions on Wednesday.

SENATE, BY 54-22 VOTE, CONDEMNS BINGHAM

Gillett and Gould Among Few Senators Who Laud Him in the Lobby Expose

Washington, Nov. 4—For the first time in 27 years, the Senate today censured one of its members.

It condemned as "unethical and immoral" the action of Sen. Hiram Bingham (R) Connecticut, in putting a paid lobbyist on the Senate payroll during the tariff hearings.

A resolution, sponsored by Sen Norris (R) Nebraska, and approved by a vote of 54 to 22, placed the Senate on record as officially condemning Bingham's conduct in using the services of Charles L. Johnson, Connecticut manufacturers' agent, who was Bingham's "undercover man" in secret sessions.

The Senate rebuked Bingham after rejecting a substitute resolution offered by Sen. Smoot (R) Utah, which merely "disapproved" of the employment of tariff lobbyists by any senator, without mentioning the Bingham-Evanson case by name.

It also ignored another detailed and fervid explanation of his action by Bingham.

Senators Gillett (R) Massachusetts, and Gould, (R) Maine, were among those to defend Bingham.

The resolution of censure as adopted read:

"That the action of the Senator from Connecticut, Mr. Bing-

Crowds Brave Rain to Hear Curley at Noon Rally

Despite the cold rain, which made pedestrians uncomfortable, a great throng stood in Pemberton sq. to hear James M. Curley speak in his last noonday rally before the votes are cast. Note the number of umbrellas in the crowd.

10 TO 1 NOW OFFERED ON ELECTION RESULTS

Ex-Mayor's Forces Declaring Only Danger Now Is Over-Confidence

Two Boston men offered to bet $250,000 at odds of 10 to 1 that James M. Curley will be elected Mayor tomorrow.

The sum of $200,000, or any part of it, at those odds, was offered by Louis Jacobs of 10 Postoffice sq. and Copley Plaza Hotel. He is widely known in sporting circles.

Edmund L. Dolan, Congress st. broker, placed $50,000 in "the street" at the same odds, but there were no takers.

By ELIAS McQUAID

The General Order which passed up and down the line of the Curley organization today was "Hold everything!"

As the staff at General Headquarters sees it the only shadow of a threat at the election of Mr. Curley tomorrow by a dizzy majority—they have stopped talking plurality"—is Overconfidence.

What is feared is a reaction, a let-down from the great enthusiasm of last night's Victory Rally in Boston Garden.

Men came away from that meeting saying, "this settles it, nothing to it." Women talked as if Mr. Curley was already in office. They began to speculate upon the possibility of getting to the third inauguration.

Early today this appeared to be the only problem before the Curley managers, meaning Brother John and the other efficient gentlemen about him, whose remaining duty it will be to Get Out the Vote.

In the opinion of the experts and experienced observers with whom I was able to get in touch over the week-end, the Mansfield campaign was all washed up last Friday when the Innes Republicans followed the example of Mayor Nichols and decided not to declare in favor of one Democrate against another. But the progressive element in the G. O. P. is at least equally responsible, in that while Mr. Mansfield had been devoting all his efforts to the task of corralling a Democratic following, no one was engaged in similar missionary work among Republicans.

Speaking to a great gathering of volunteer workers in Province st., at 11 a. m., the former mayor called the assembly the most unusual meeting in the history of Boston politics. At the moment this was quite true. The Victory Rally was still many hours distant.

The number present in Boston Garden last night has been variously estimated from 20,000 to 30,000. One thing is certain. Everyone was there who could get in.

The matter of Mr. Curley's Garden address, the feature of the night, was substantially the matter contained in the only communication he has sent out during the campaign to every person on the voting list.

The evening turnout was a glad surprise to everyone in the Curley movement, from the leader down to the office boy at headquarters.

All had taken it for granted that Mr. Curley's hoped-for 25,000 would be reduced by the rain to a "mere handful" of maybe 12,000 to 15,000. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon, Mr.

1 Hurt, Hundreds Flee R. I. Ammonia Blast

Providence, Nov. 4 (AP)—Scores of men and women were sent reeling into the streets, and nearly 400 employes and customers were affected by gas fumes today when a compressor-head of the ammonia gas refrigerating system of the Providence Public Market Company broke, sending the suffocating fumes through the five-story building.

Although the occupants scrambled for doors, there was no panic.

One man, unconscious and unidentified, is in a hospital in a critical condition. Pouring out of the building, the gas hung close to the ground affecting the crowds at the scene, watching gas-masked firemen search the building for possible victims.

Bernard L. Kelpatrick, a World War veteran, was was gassed overseas, left his work on the first floor of the structure and rushed to an alley. There, in what he thought was comparative safety, he collapsed unconscious, a victim of the fumes escaping from the building.

Wilbur Knapton, Lakewood, a sign painter for the company, crippled in both legs, collapsed over the sill of a fifth story window and was carried down a ladder by firemen.

Sixty-year-old Edward F. Duggan, engineer in the building, snatched a fireman's gas mask and went into the basement, where the fumes were thickest, to shut off the flow of sickening gas.

The area about the large building was put under police guard for several hours to prevent passersby and curious crowds from being overcome by the fumes, which hung in the rainy air almost without dissipation.

WIFE CHATS AS STORK ARRIVES

New York, Nov. 4 (INS)—An 18-year-old mother talked quietly to the surgeons during a cesarean operation today in which a spinal anesthetic was used instead of ether.

Both the mother, Mrs. Lillian Schultz of Elizabeth, N. J., and the seven-pound girl baby are doing well.

At the Menorah Maternity Hospital, where the operation was performed, it was explained that the spinal anesthetic made the body insensible to pain. It was the third cesarean operation with a spinal anesthetic in the history of the institution.

GILLETT RAPS 'HOUSE JAGS'

Washington, Nov. 4 (INS)—Members of the House of Representatives have transacted business on the floor while drunk, Sen. Frederic H. Gillett (Rep.) of Massachusetts, ex-Speaker of the House, declared during a speech in the Senate today.

His remarks brought a gasp from the Senate for their frankness, but evoked no protests. He made them during a defense of Senator Bingham (Rep.) of Connecticut, in debate on the Norris resolution of censure.

"When I was in the other branch (the House) I frequently saw members transacting business under the influence of liquor," said Gillett. "But I did not think it was necessary to adopt a resolution of condemnation."

Gillett declared a Democratic senator recently asked a lobbyist who had convinced him on a tariff rate to come to him just before the Senate met so that he could have arguments fresh in his mind.

RECORD VOTE EXPECTED IN NINE BAY STATE CITIES TOMORROW

MAYORALTY BATTLE IN EACH

Next to Boston Interest Centers in Cambridge, Somerville and Worcester

A record vote is anticipated tomorrow in nine cities of Massachusetts.

Nine mayors will be elected, about three times as many school committee members and eight or nine times as many councilmen or aldermen.

By 8 p. m. tomorrow the election will have marked the rise or fall of candidates in Boston, Cambridge, Somerville, Lynn, Waltham, Lowell, Fitchburg, Worcester and Springfield.

Second in interest to Boston is the contest in Cambridge, where Mayor Edward W. Quinn's long reign is challenged by Richard M. Russell, who, in the primaries, polled more votes than the mayor.

Russell has conducted a strenuous campaign and has drawn Mayor Quinn out of his shell on a more active basis than Mr Quinn has faced for many years.

Political old-liners point out that with his long rule seriously threatened, the Quinn forces will be out as never before and the primary results as a basis of forecasting Russell's victory, are considerably damp.

EXPECT 30,000 TO VOTE

For 20 other offices in Cambridge there are 40 candidates: eight for four councillor-at-large, 22 for 11 ward council seats, six for three places on the school board and two for assessor.

A feature of the school committee contest will be the vote polled for two women, Mrs. Jessie W. Brooks, at present a member, and Mrs. Elizabeth L. McNamara, making her first run.

At least 30,000 votes will be cast between 6 a. m. and 6 p. m., it is expected.

The next most interesting contest is in Somerville. John J. Murphy is the Democratic nominee for mayor. Alderman William S. Howe has the Republican backing.

A controversy over appointment of a fire chief is expected to have a reaction at the polls, many Republicans having favored selection of a man who was not named.

Should the Democrats win the mayoralty they will probably capture most of the aldermanic and school committee places.

BAUER WILL RETIRE

In Lynn, where Mayor Bauer will be replaced by Fred Manning, city assessor, and Lynn M. Ranger, president of the city council, are seeking the honor.

It is the first mayoralty run for each. Both men are strong vote-getters. There are contests for councillors, each of seven wards and contests for each of four councilman-at-large places. Mrs. Harriett Russell, former representative, seeks election to the council and if she wins she will be the first woman member of that body.

Waltham's greatest interest is in the fight between Mayor Henry F. Beal, in office 10 years, and former Mayor Patrick J. Quinn.

The campaigning has been hot and a heavy vote is forecast.

In Lowell the Republican nominee, Mayor Thomas H. Braden, has as his Democratic opponent, James J. Brain, an attorney.

The city's second bi-partisan election is expected to call forth about 30,000 of the 39,463 registered voters between 10 a. m. and 8 p. m.

Eleven ward councillors will be chosen, four councillors-at-large and two members of the school committee. Mrs. Mary M. Lynch, a policeman's wife is a Democratic nominee for the school board.

Fitchburg is expected to cast 15,000 votes in the mayoralty contest between the incumbent, Dr. Joseph Carrire, and Fred S. Suthergreen.

For 14 positions in the city council and school committee there are 32 candidates with contests in every ward except one. The polls will be open between 6 a. m. and 6 p. m.

With 75,000 registered voters, 12,000 more than ever in the city's history, Worcester will participate in what is expected to be its most bitter mayoralty contest.

As mayor for six years, Michael O'Hara has built up a great Republican machine. John C. Mahoney, the Democratic nominee, has the backing of a locally aroused party and a large following of Swedish voters.

Campaigning has been fervid and the charges have been many. The voting will be for 12 hours, starting at 6 a. m.

There are nearly 50 candidates for about half as many municipal positions. Second to the mayoralty the feature battle will be between Victor E. Hillman, Republican, and Wilbur A. Sharron, Democrat, for alderman-at-large.

SPRINGFIELD FIGHT

Carlos B. Ellis, with what is reputed to be the best Republican machine his city ever produced, expects to defeat Dwight R. Winter, Democrat, and Charles W. Lewis, an Independent, in Springfield's mayoral fight.

Springfield has about 55,000 registered voters and the polls will be open 10 hours, beginning at 6 a. m. Besides a mayor, the city will choose a city clerk, four school committeemen, eight aldermen and 18 ward councillors.

There are three women candidates. Catherine S. Kenney is a Democratic nominee for school committee. Florence A. Pirnie is Republican nominee for the council and Elena Lockwood seeks to be school committeeman-at-large on the Democratic ticket.

ham, in placing Mr. Charles L. Eyanson upon the official rolls of the Senate and his use by Senator Bingham at the time and in the manner set forth in the report of the sub-committee of the Committee on the Judiciary, while not a result of corrupt motives on the part of the Senator from Connecticut, is contrary to good morals and senatorial ethics and tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute, and such conduct is hereby condemned."

Senator Borah Republican, Idaho, asserted he did not want his vote to be interpreted as a conviction on his part that Bingham had "intended anything corrupt," added he thought employment of Eyanson was a mistake and believed Bingham in his heart felt it was a mistake.

It was one of those mistakes, Borah added, if permitted to grow with the connivance or approval of the Senate would be disastrous.

Senator Blease (D.), South Carolina, protested against the Senate terming Bingham's action as tending to bring the Senate into "dishonor." He moved to eliminate this from Norris' resolution, along with the phrase "contrary to good morals."

GOULD DEFENDS HIM

Senator Wheeler (D.), Montana, said he agreed that Bingham wasn't prompted by any "criminal motive, but that the Senate nevertheless was forced to condemn his action or stand before the country as approving it.

Senator Gould (R.), Maine, said: "Senator Bingham made a straightforward statement here of what he did and why he did it."

"Do you approve his action?" asked Wheeler.

"I approve his stand," Gould said.

Senator Reed (R.), Pennsylvania, an "old guard" leader, openly disapproved Binghams' conduct.

"I think the employment of Eyanson was regrettable, unwise and very much to be deplored," said Reed. "At the same time, knowing Senator Bingham, I don't see how anyone can believe it was dishonorable, dishonest or corrupt. I believe it was indiscreet and unwise and from the bottom of my heart I am sorry for him."

He pleaded with the Senate not to "put him under a cloud of shame," pointing out Bingham had served his country well during the war.

"I cannot put this stigma on a man, branding him as dishonorable when he picked out the most dangerous branch of the service during the war," Reed added. "I cannot believe the Senate will censure him like that when it knows he served in aviation because he so loved his country."

Senator Pittman (D), Nevada, said the Senate was compelled by Bingham's frequent speeches to take some action to uphold its honor and dignity.

Senator Edge, Republican, New Jersey, then offered amendments to the Norris resolution. He proposed to change the word condemned to disapproved.

He also asked to have the resolution modified to state that "this is not intended in any way to impugn the motive of the Senator from Connecticut as being improper or dishonorable." This revision was rejected, 43 to 34.

Norris took the floor at the outset of today's session.

to three hours, and allday closing Saturday. The exchange will be closed all day tomorrow, election day, a legal holiday.

The New York banking group, which was hastily organized when the current reaction began about 10 days, held no meetings today as the general situation was regarded as normal and calling for no special attention on its part. Bankers closely followed the day's developments, however, and stood ready to aid if the market should again be threatened with disorganization.

TRADING AT FAST PACE

Trading started at a terrific pace as blocks of 10,000 to 50,000 shares were thrown into the market, but it slowed up later, and the ticker kept within a half-hour of the market.

Since the closing of the market last Thursday, Wall Street received the announcement of a decrease from 6 to 5 per cent in the New York Federal Reserve discount rate. The drop of more than one billion dollars in Federal Reserve loans last week and the record-breaking decline of more than two billion dollars in Stock Exchange member loans last month.

Offsetting this was the Foshay failure in the Northwest and the discovery of hundreds of additional weakened marginal accounts, as a result of the close checking up of records over the week-end.

CALL MONEY 6 PER CENT

Call money renewed unchanged today at 6 per cent. Time money and bankers' acceptances continued relatively easy. This was reflected in the generally stronger bond market, which attracted a strong investment demand.

U. S. Steel common, which has been on eof the hell-wethers of the recent market, opened 4¼ points lower at 183½, rallied to 191, and then dropped back to around the opening price. American Telephone converted an early gain of 1¼ into a loss of 11½. General Electric extended its opening loss of 3 points to 168½.

American Tobacco issues, Eastman Kodak, Westinghouse Electric, North American Company, Western Union, Air Reduction, Johns-Manville and Otis Elevator sold 10 to 15 points lower.

Among the dozens of others to lost 5 points or more were New York Central, Allied Chemical, Stone & Webster, Standard Gas & Electric, International Telephone, Sears-Roebuck and Consolidated Gas.

Total stock sales from 10 a. m. to noon were 3,717,000 shares, against 3,576,000 in the samt period Wednesday.

HAYES' REPORT GIVES POPE A SURPRISE

Cardinal's Estimate of New York Archdiocese Membership is 1,250,000

Vatican City, Nov. 4 (AP)—Patrick Cardinal Hayes, New York Roman Catholic Primate, was received in long personal audience by Pope Pius today. He was radiant, as he left later, at the outcome of his interview.

The audience was held at an unusually early hour to allow the Pontiff more time to hear the report on what is considered the largest and most prosperous Roman Catholic Archdiocese in the world.

The cardinal found his holiness in fine physical condition and each congratulated the other on his appearance.

POPE IN ROBUST HEALTH

"I leave the audience more than ever overcome with the impression the Holy Father made upon me, Cardinal Hayes said later. "I was especially delighted to find him apparently even more robust than three years ago.

"The matters discussed were wholly of an official character. I came first to fulfil the obligation of my 'ad limina' report of the archdiocese and second to present New York's congratulations on the Holy Father's golden jubilee."

The cardinal said the Pontiff had asked numerous questions about the Catholic church in New York and the United States generally. "We discussed nothing but church affairs," he added.

POPE ASTONISHED

In Vatican circles it was learned the Pope was most impressed with Cardinal Hayes' report on the growth of Catholic charities and the number of young New Yorkers dedicated to the priesthood—250 in the major seminary and 425 in the minor seminary.

The Pontiff expressed astonishment on learning that since the cardinal's last report, 25 new schools had been opened in the diocese and that the school attendance had been increased by 20,000.

Other figures that interested the pontiff were the increase in the number of priests in the archdiocese by 115 to 1435, the increase of 36 parishes and the number of churches, 550, now engaged in education and charitable work in the metropolis.

Cardinal Hayes' estimate of the Catholic population in the archdiocese of 1,250,000, not counting converts, also caused the Pontiff surprise.

Mr. Toft offers $100 for the best plowing by farmers in Putnam County, New York. Each farmer will have one acre allotted to him and four and a half hours to plow.

No assistance allowed in changing plow points, 14-inch furrows, seven inches deep, to be required. Evenness of furrows and squareness of corners will count.

All interesting and archaic, but in real farming there will be no man trudging four and a half hours behind a pair of horses, scratching up a small piece of ground in a day's hard work.

One man, with a machine, will rip up 100 acres or more in a day and sit at his ease as he does it.

Bigger field, big machinery farm, co-operation, or farming corporations using modern industrial methods, will solve the farm problem.

For the first time, our exports are dominated by finished goods, those in which values are created by American labor, automobiles, ploughs, manufactured foodstuffs, etc. American labor is interested in protection against cheap labor abroad, but interested, also, in a tariff that will not make it impossible for foreign countries to, buy from us and sell to us.

Manufactured exports of $1,967,000,000 are not to be ignored. The close balance in imports and exports is shown in figures for the year.

We sold to other countries $3,-849,000,000 and bought from them $3,361,000,000 worth of goods. If our tariff makes it impossible for foreign countries to sell to us it will make it impossible for them to buy from us.

We need a tariff to protect labor and industry, without making a tariff to ruin our foreign customers.

TAMMANY SAYS 'WALKER BY 550,000'

Big Odds Quoted on Jimmie to Romp Home With the Victory Tomorrow

New York, Nov. 4—With the booming of heavy political guns and last minute warnings of "double crossing" and "diabolical plots," the mayoralty campaign in New York city drew to a discordant close today.

Tomorrow the voters go to the polls and settle the question: "Will Mayor James J. Walker be re-elected?" Tammany, which is backing the debonaire "Jimmy," says "Yes, by 350,000 plurality."

Opposed to Walker in the mayoralty battle are: Fiorello H. La Guardia, Republican-Fusion; Richard E. Enright, Square Deal party candidate; Norman Thomas, Socialist.

BIG ODDS ON WALKER.

The Republican-Fusion managers claim victory for La Guardia by 200,000 votes. Enright, former police commissioner, has made no predictions as to the outcome. Thomas' manager declares the Socialist candidate will receive at least 20 per cent of the total vote, "or between 200,000 and 250,000 votes." He said Thomas would run ahead of La Guardia by 50,000 or 100,000 votes.

Betting odds on Walker lengthened from 10 to 1 to 15 to 1 in the last two days. New York city is normally Democratic. "Jimmy" is personally popular, has the support of the powerful Tammany organization and has been helped from the political platform by personal appearance of former Governor "Al" Smith.

The campaign is closing with a bang ,agter a dull interlude; the Republicans today let it be known they are preparing for a 7-ma-many "reign of terror" at the polls tomorrow. They profess to anticipate "strong-arm tactics" to prevent "bolters" from voting for La Guardia. On the other hand, Walkinites at a "diabolical plot" fears the Republicans are going to "spring" at the last minute—"too late to answer."

La Guardia and Enright have been lambasting the mayor for weeks, particularly the failure of the Walker administration to solve the murder of Arnold Reinstein, the gambler who was mysteriously shot in a hotel here a year ago tonight. Many sinister charges were made in this connection.

Big Fight Predicted in Detroit Elections

Detroit, Nov. 4 (AP)—A mayoralty campaign marked by a liberal use of full-page newspaper advertisements is being wound up today. The candidates, running on nonpartican tickets, are former Mayor John W. Smith and Charles W. Bowles.

Smith has been termed a "wet" candidate by his opponents. He has been quoted as saying the prohibition laws cannot be thoroughly enforced. Bowles was a candidate for mayor three years ago and at that time was accused by his opponents of having the support of a secret organization that wielded some power in Michigan political affairs.

Chicago Will Vote Without Armed Guards

Chicago, Nov. 4 (AP)—An election will be held in Chicago tomorrow without any of the usual regulations of armed guards and police watchers that have marked most balloting in recent years. Twenty-two judges are to be chosen and 11 bond issues and other propositions are to be voted on.

For the first time in nine years voters at a judicial election will be given the chance of expressing a choice. Since 1920 the Democrats and Republicans have joined to nominate only as many candidates as there were places to be filled. This year there is a complete Democratic ticket, five Republican candidates, and 12 others running under the ballot heading, "People's Ticket Against Coalition."

Germany Has 130 New Millionaires

Berlin, Nov. 4 (INS)—The number of millionaires in Germany increased by 130 during 1927, according to taxation figures just published. These new millionaires paid taxes for private fortunes aggregating 442,000,000 marks (about $101,000,000).

In all, there are 2485 individual German millionaires in the world, who pay the government taxes on 5,580,154,000 marks (about $1,283,435,420), according to the latest statistics.

SCANNELL SAYS NO ONE DARES FIGHT SCHOOLHOUSE REFERENDUM

WELFARE OF CHILDREN AT STAKE

Urges the Voters to Abolish System of Construction That Menaces Health

In a "victory statement" Dr. David D. Scannell, chairman of the committee which urges a "Yes" vote on the schoolhouse referendum, said that no one has dared oppose the referendum because of the clear-cut issue between contractors and children.

Widespread opposition to the present disgraceful system is responsible for this lack of opposition, he declared, and added that the committee feels confident that the referendum will be ratified by many thousands of voters. The statement follows:

The present generation in Boston has witnessed a system of schoolhouse construction that has been a disgrace to the city for nearly 20 years. It has become so discredited that a demand for a change is widespread.

Those who have advocated a Yes vote in the interest of Boston's school children are confident that the result of the referendum at tomorrow's election will mark the end of this unfortunate chapter in Boston's history.

It is significant that since Governor Allen signed the bill to create a new commission and abolish the present one, not a single reason has been advanced publicly, nor has any group urged the defeat of this referendum.

That is convincing proof of the total absence of any facts or arguments which could be offered against the overwhelming proof in favor of a yes vote.

The reasons for this lack of opposition are plain. This is a clear-cut issue. A yes vote is a vote for the welfare of our school children. It is a means of protest against the political favoritism, the inexcusable delays and waste and the deplorable "portable schoolhouse" policy of the present system.

The citizens of Boston have never been backward in their regard for the health and comfort of their school children. They are justly proud of Boston's splendid school system. It remains to eliminate the outstanding handicap of improper housing under which the school children have suffered for so many years.

A yes vote means that you favor the new form of commission and the abolition of the present system. We urge all voters who believe the rights of school children are more important than political favoritism to vote yes on this referendum which reads:

"Shall an act by the General Court in the year 1929 entitled 'An act to establish a board of commissioners of school buildings and a department of school buildings in the city of Boston, be accepted.

REOPEN FIGHT ON KAROLYIS

Washington, Nov. 4—A fight to prevent the Count and Countess Karolyi from entering the United States was reopened by the Woman Patriot Association in a letter to Secretary of State Stimson.

Count and Countess Karolyi, after four previous attempts during the terms of office of Secretaries Hughes and Kellogg, were finally granted passport visas by Secretary Stimson, October 28.

The "undisclosed new facts, if any" that prompted revision of the State Department's previous rulings are requested in the letter, which was signed by Mary G. Kilbreth, president of the association.

The letter indicated that the organization contemplates an appeal to the Labor Department, which now has the Karolyi case under consideration, in an effort to block the entrance of the count and countess into this country.

2 Die as Driver Lights Cigarette

Chicago, Nov. 4—Because a chauffeur wanted to smoke while driving, a middle-aged woman and her son were killed and her husband seriously injured.

The automobile, driven by Edward Kennedy, 21, who was arrested later, bounded over a curb and struck a tree when Kennedy took his hands off the wheel to cup them for a light for a cigarette.

Mrs. Katherine Breen, 49, his employer, was killed instantly. Her son, John Morris Breen, 21, died an hour later in a hospital. Her husband, Edward Breen, 50, suffered internal injuries.

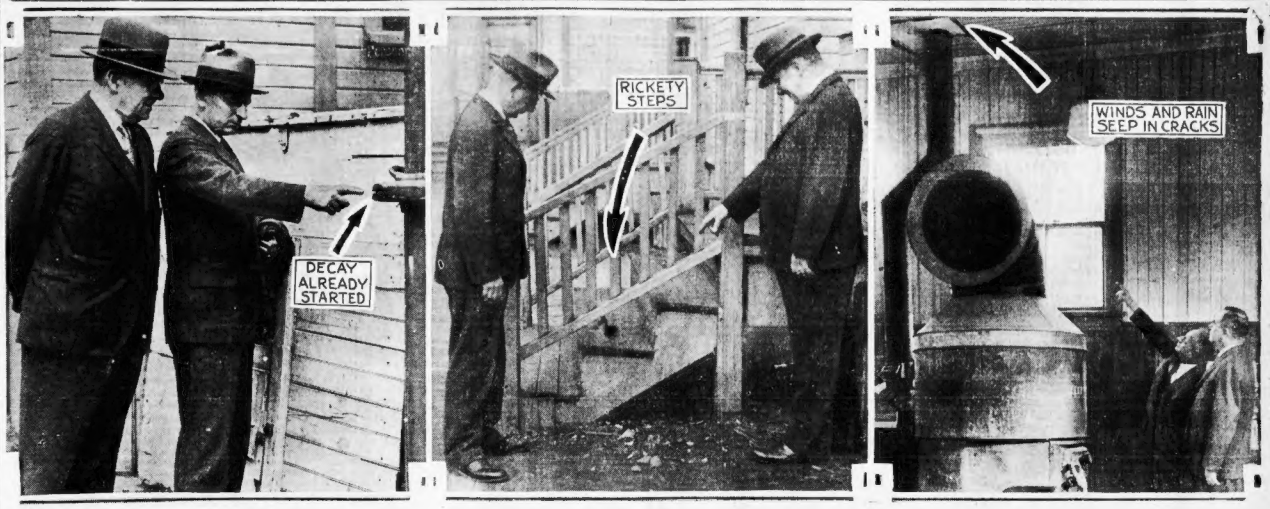
Man, 252 Years Old, May Go to School Now

London, Nov. 4—A man who at the age of 252 years has survived 23 wives and is now living with his 24th has been discovered in Kalhsien, a town in Southern China, according to dispatches reaching this city.

The man, named Li Ching-Yung, was found by Prof. Wu Chang-Chien, dean of the department of education at Minkuo University. Dynastic records verify to the professor's satisfaction that Li was born in 1677.

Dr. Wu is urging the patriarch to visit the university so that the secret of his longevity can be studied. It is believed Li owes his long life to medicinal plants growing on the side of Yunnan and Kweichow.

Their Survey of Portable Schoolhouses in Boston Reveals Unspeakable Conditions



Arthur L. Gould Walter F. Downey

Walter F. Downey, headmaster of English high school, and Arthur L. Gould of the board of superintendents of Boston schools are shown looking over one of the portable schools. Following a survey of several of these buildings, Downey declared that most of the sickness among Boston school children comes from the unspeakable condition of the school buildings.

During their survey of several of Boston's portable schoolhouses, Walter F. Downey and Arthur L. Gould came across many rickety stairs. Their investigation revealed that 8000 pupils are huddled in the portable buildings, about 40 to each of the 200 odd buildings. In the yard of the Henry L. Pierce school, Dorchester, there are seven portable schools. The investigators found many cracks in the walls of the portable buildings at the Henry L. Pierce school. Furnaces in the middle of the rooms provide the scant heat, and wide seams and cracks in the rotting woodwork allow the air to sift into the rooms, creating dangerous drafts. (Staff photos.)

FINDS BOY HAD RIGHT TO KILL

Dradignan, France, Nov. 4 (AP)—Richard Corbett was acquitted by a jury today of the charge of murdering his invalid mother last May.

So moving was Corbett's declaration, in which he said he was willing to pay any penalty the jury thought just, that one of the jurors broke down and it was necessary for the judge to suspend the trial while medical attention was given.

Corbett, who is of French-English extraction, killed his mother on May 6 and then shot himself, but recovered.

"I admit I killed my mother," said Corbett, calmly telling the judge and jury that he accepted full responsibility. "I knew what I was doing and I do not regret the act."

Called in Probe of Strike Death

Gastonia, N. C., Nov. 4 (AP)—More than 40 witnesses were under summons to appear before Judge P. A. McElroy of the Superior court today in the investigation of the slaying of Mrs. Ella May Wiggins, Bessemer City textile striker, by a mob which attacked a group of National Textile Workers' Union members Sept. 14.

Judge McElroy undertook the investigation, sitting as a committing magistrate, at the request of Governor O. Max Gardner, made when a coroner's jury had failed to find evidence which the Grand Jury deemed sufficient for indictment of anyone in connection with the case.

House Is Insulated Against Cold, Noise

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 4—A new type of house has walls and floors made of double layers of a substance like synthetic leather with the air exhausted from between the layers so that the vacuum will insulate against sound and cold.

The plan of R. Buckminster Fuller of New York is praised by Professor Shirley Warner Morgan of Princeton University as a step toward the necessary revolution in house building.

Red Cross to Stage Drill for Disaster

Boston will soon witness a "sham disaster" test drill conducted on the Common by the Red Cross. The purpose is to practice organizing for any great disasters that might strike the city and leave many people homeless. The Red Cross will call upon state and local authorities for "help," ranging from first aid to police service.

Attention, Men! Here's What You Must Wear

New York, Nov. 4 (INS)—The American men folk are getting clothes conscious.

In the past six months there has been a decided increased appreciation of the cultural and mental values of the etiquette of dress, according to a report made public today by the fashions committee of the National Merchant Tailors' Association.

"There is a tendency toward greater observations of formality and the use of the dinner coat and a decrease in the violation of dress etiquette in the use of this garment upon formal occasions," declares the report.

As regards informal masculine dress, the style tendency for the fall and winter of 1929-1930 will show an increased use of plain or regular bottom trousers with the sack suit in woolens. The tendency also is more toward the increased use of the single-breasted coat. There is in addition a slight increase of favor toward the use of a vent and greater favor for the naturally soft roll lapel, the report says.

Charges Atheists Teach Theology

New York, Nov. 4—Bishop William T. Manning declared in a sermon at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, that he had read "only a day or two ago of a theological seminary on the teaching staff of which there is only one professor who believes in God, and he is regarded as something of an old fogy."

He did not mention the name of the seminary, but he pleaded for a return to the belief in God "if our modern life is to be saved from degeneracy and decay."

JUDGE FAVORS HORSEWHIP

Judge Malcolm E. Stuttevant went on record in Somerville court today as favoring the horsewhip over the personal interest of a minister as an antidote for youth gone wrong.

Kenneth L. Feyler, 17, of Rogers ave., was arraigned before him on charges of breaking and entering and larceny of $40. The boy's counsel informed the court that Feyler's minister was present, prepared to make restitution and look after him.

"In my opinion, the father of this boy ought to take a horsewhip to him," said Judge Sturevant. "That would do him more good than any minister. I'm not going to let the minister make restitution for him. He has got to go out and get a job and pay $3 a week toward return of the money he stole.

"I'll continue the case until next Monday. If he doesn't have a job by next Monday I'll get him a job for two years in the house of correction."

Florida Team Cheers Captain as He Weds

New York, Nov. 4—Before the 27 players of the University of Florida's football squad, Dr. John J. Tigert, president of the university, and classmates who journeyed north for the Florida-Harvard game, Capt. Rainey Cawthon was married to Miss Sarah Lovell Payne, 23-year-old Columbia University candidate for a PhD degree, in the Little Church Around the Corner.

A completely collegiate note was given the wedding by the absence of parents of either bride or bridegroom and by the yells of organized rooters that rang in their ears as they were whirled away after the ceremony.

To carry out the idea, Ben Clemons, center on the Florida team and buddy of Cawthon, served as best man. In the first pew sat Mr. and Mrs. Dale Van Sickel, the latter a football teammate of Cawthon and picked as end on several All-America teams last year. In an adjacent pew was Carlos Proctor, Alligator tackle, his face decorated with first-aid tape. Proctor was badly marred in the Saturday contest, and had five stitches taken in his face so as to be presentable at the wedding.

Cawthon is the University of Florida's first team captain ever to be married during the football season, and the third member of the present team to be wed. Van Sickel started the marriage epidemic in the non-co-educational college two years ago, to be followed recently by Alex Reeves, a guard.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Payne of Nashville, Tenn.

The team returned to Florida minus its captain, who will honeymoon for a week in New York.

What, No Rubbers? and It's Raining

Lowell, Nov. 4 (AP)—A little thing like rubbers—or the lack of them—today interfered with the turnings of the wheels of justice in the civil session of the Superior Court.

A jury in the case of the Breezy Hills Farms against the town of Billerica was scheduled to visit Billerica today and breathe the atmosphere in the vicinity of the farm piggery, which is the cause of the litigation.

Judge Beaudreau excused the talesmen when he learned that they had not brought their rubbers and were not otherwise equipped against the inclement weather.

Judge Is Lenient With Yale Flier

New Haven, Nov. 4 (AP)—Ewing W. Day, 35, Camden, N. J., flier who landed two Philadelphia alumni of Yale across the street from the Bowl just before the game with Dartmouth began Saturday, made an error in judgment, City Judge Stanley Dunn decided today in suspending judgment against him for violating state aviation laws.

Day told Judge Dunn he was a member of the Lafayette Escadrille during the World War and had 15 years of flying experience. He said he thought the field on which he landed was the "flying field for the Yale Bowl."

ASKS SEVERITY IN RUM CASE

"Bootlegging conditions are as bad in the East Cambridge district, Your Honor, that Dist. Atty. Robert Bushnell wrote a letter to my superiors about it and therefore I'd like to have you deal without leniency with this defendant," said Capt. T. F. Leahy to Judge A. P. Stone in Cambridge District court today.

Following this request, Judge Stone fined John McColgan, 20, of Cambridge st., $50 after finding him guilty of keeping, exposing and selling liquor. He appealed and was held in $200.

State Ward Takes Life After Dispute

Westfield, Nov. 4—A bullet in his head and a rifle lying beside him, the body of Ralph S. Butler, 20, a state ward, was found sprawled in the woods near the farm of Edwin S. Hartley, where he was employed as a laborer.

He disappeared from the farm on Oct. 27 after an altercation with his employer over care of stock. He was pronounced a suicide by Medical Examiner Edward S. Smith.

R-101 Shows Speed in Test Flight

London, Nov. 4—After the longest test flight yet undertaken, the big British dirigible R-101 is back at her mooring mast.

At times the huge craft had attained a speed of 70 miles an hour during an all-night flight over Southern England.

UFFORD SAYS HE TOOK CHILDREN TO SAVE THEM

"She was given one more chance and she didn't play fair," declared Rev. Celian Ufford, Harvard instructor, today, admitting that he had taken his five children from the lonely Provincetown house where his estranged wife, Hazel Hawthorne Ufford, was writing a book of poems.

"There is a grain of truth at the bottom of my wife's story. Her Saturday night story of an ambush by another man and myself is wrong.

"The children are safe and sound. I took them to protect them."

On new aspects of the case, Rev. Ufford was in conference with his attorney, Ralph Piper, in Boston today.

The Harvard instructor is 53. His wife is only 28 and one of the most beautiful of the literary set at Provincetown. They have been married since 1918 and their youngest child is a year old.

According to Mrs. Ufford's story, one of the two men who held her up on Saturday night on lonely Snail rd., while she was riding her pony back from town, was her husband.

She thwarted the efforts of her assailants by bringing down her riding crop with considerable force on the shoulders of one who seized the horse's bridle, and turned the animal on the other.

Upon her return to her home, once that of Eugene O'Neill, the playwright, on Peaked Hill bar, she found her five children gone. She had left them in care of Bruce Robers, a writer, she said.

POINCARE AIDS TARDIEU PLANS

Paris, Nov. 4 (AP)—The hand of the old master, Raymond Poincare, was seen today by French politicians in the composition and future course of the new government, headed by Andre Tardieu, premier.

M. Tardieu has been in constant consultation with M. Poincare since designated by President Deschanel last Thursday to select the next ministry.

M. Tardieu and his new ministers began an outline of the new government's policy to be presented to the chamber Thursday.

The full program will be drafted at a plenary cabinet session Wednesday.

The impression gained in political circles that the opposition would give the new premier a chance to prove the worth of the new ministry before re-fashioning party lines and attempting his defeat. It was believed his majority in the chamber Thursday, if majority it is at all, will be small.

Just think of having the most captivating hat in the world modeled to your head by our clever little artiste of the scissors-and-hood—Miss Nurenburg, for only $5! Ready-to-don hats, priced to $1.95—and you'll find some treasures among them for both matron and miss. Glistening metal hats for evening and velvet dinner hats—and dresses to match them at $14.75 — unusual styles and remarkable values, at the Rose Shoppe, Dexter Bldg., 453 Washington St., 3rd floor.

What! Varicose Veins!

Well, tell Jean to dry her tears, and visit Dr. Saul who specializes in fitting elastic stockings so cleverly that no wrinkles—no bulges show, and great relief. He gives you his personal attention, too! His new French elastic stocking with soft knitted top extending way over the knee, fastens to the garter, and gives wonderful support. Seamless, flesh-color, with knitted in heel, $7.50 each. His new Pariatocking of rubber, invisible under silk hosiery, is $6.75 each. Fitted-to-measure arch support shoes, $8.50 pair. You may order by mail or phone. Dr. Saul, chiropodist, 110 Tremont St., Rm. 312. Lib. 6649.

I'll Tell You How

Marion has a different dress for every party—she just watches for those wonderful sales of slightly used evening gowns at Mandelsohn's—then buys three or four for the ordinary price of one. There is a sale this week at Mandelsohn's of clearance of their used evening gowns at $5 each—or two for $5. Just think of that! All the popular styles, too—dipping hemlines in bouffant taffetas, satin and tulle, and lace. Mendelsohn's is that charming dress shop that puts new and used evening gowns and wraps; wedding gowns and veils. Wedding gowns for sale are priced from $15 to $25 at Mendelsohn's, 89 Temple Place, 5th floor.

Youthful Form

The natural and normal is the beautiful. Foundation garments must be correct and STAY correct or attractive dressing is impossible. Elastic webbing has failed to retain graceful lines. Here is a brilliant idea made WITHOUT ELASTIC WEBBING. It stays right during the entire life of the garment. Adjustable lacings on each side mould into slender lines. It corrects wrong posture, and smooths out the "bulges," easily rubbed, and individually made. Few can satisfactorily wear the ready-made. Mrs. Capora specialises in custom made . . . (one day service, if necessary). Call and see models or arrange by phone for demonstration in your home without obligation . . . It is just what you need! CAPORN, 234 Boylston St., Thorndike Bldg. Ken. 4230.

Vantine Photos

make the most delightful Christmas Gifts — something to be treasured for years, Anne. And until December 15th Mrs. Warren Kay Vantine Studio, Inc., makes a special offer of only $5 for three of their beautiful prints in a folders, or $20 a dozen — a saving of the usual $30. This offer is made to acquaint you with their newly enlarged studio. Using the flattering new "Platino" effect Vantine photographers bring out most naturally the twinkle in baby's eyes; the sweetness of mother's smile, and the youthful bloom of Miss Sweet Sixteen. Warren Kay Vantine, Inc., 160 Boylston St. Call Han. 0743 or 0744 for sitting.

A Teeny Bit—or a Giant's Portion?

There is a share of beauty for all of us, Anne. Of course, it may need a bit of cultivation—but—"that's what we are here for," says the charming little lady who is visiting Filene's this week. She is Miss Marian Parker, representative of Kathleen Mary Quinlan, originator of the face (herb) pack. Miss Parker knows the secret of sparkling eyes, glowing skin and a glorious wealth of hair to crown your beauty, and her "Open Sesame" is the Kathleen Mary Quinlan beauty preparations, which she is just introducing to Filene's. There is a skin-food for every type—one to fatten and one nonfattening, if you please! Eye treatments to give luster and youth to the eyes. Hair treatments for luxuriant locks. But wait until you see her new "fourcase" compact! It is the "compact-est" thing out, holds powder, dry rouge, cream rouge and eye shadow, all in one smart little case. It is $2.50. Just let Miss Parker try a bit of her Miss of Dawn Foundation Cream, then dust it over with Poudree des Perles (face powder). You'll be enraptured, for your skin will positively glow like a pearl! It is the most beautifying combination I have seen. The powder, with a heavenly odor, is $3.50; the foundation cream, for oily or dry skin, $1.50. And so, "lest beauty pass you by," drop in this week and see Miss Parker. She'll help you to your share—a giant's portion—with her exquisite Kathleen Mary Quinlan preparations. She is in Filene's Toilet Goods Section, street floor.

The Way of a Maid With a Man is to be as charming—look as pretty—and dress as attractively as her budgeteering will permit—which is very attractive indeed—if she takes advantage of the Scott special purchases of smart, dependable fur and cloth coats! Scott Furriers have been very fortunate in getting another group of beautiful fur coats at radically reduced prices. Silver muskrats with Johnny collar and notched cuffs, $85; Tomboy Raccoon at $195; Ocelot with Fitch for $145; Hudson Seal with Fitch, $175, and others. On these and the stunning Scott cloth coats, fashioned in the newest silhouette, some plain but most lavishly furtrimmed, you may enjoy one of the three Scott Ways of Buying. You may pay cash; open an extended charge account, or make small weekly or monthly payments while wearing your coat, without delay, investigation, inconvenience, or extra charges, by joining the famous Scott Unique Fur Club—the only one in New England. Scott Furriers, Inc., 69 Summer St., 309 Westminster St., Providence, and 51 Pratt St., Hartford. For your convenience open every evening until 9 P. M.

What Magic Is This?

Ten years younger at least! Twenty times prettier for sure! And a hundred times happier than I have ever seen her! Such a remarkable improvement in her appearance, I had to look twice—three times—to make sure it was Corinne. You know how wrinkled she had become, and how the muscles of her face had begun to sag. Now, what a different picture! A firm, youthful face, after a treatment of plastic surgery by Dr. Wm. A. Green, one of the most famous plastic surgeons in the country. Dr. Green combines science with beauty culture, and has wonderful success in removing moles that mar the complexion; banishing wrinkles that mark the face with age; lifting sagging muscles, and adjusting irregularities of the features—without leaving a trace upon the skin surface. When cosmetics fail to correct a skin eruption that annoys you, let Dr. Green examine it. His scientific treatment for skin disturbances are most satisfactory and permanent. Dr. Green has had unusual success in correcting facial imperfections on some of our most prominent screen stars, and will show you their pictures when you drop in to see him. His prices are very reasonable for such remarkable work. Dr. Green is at 140 Boylston St. Office hours 10 A. M. to 5 P. M., and by appointment. Tel. Han. 3247.

Pyramid's New Home Is Most Convenient

If you happen to live in the vicinity of Quincy. You can just drop in at 1434 Hancock St., with the things you have to be cleansed. The Pyramid Company is responsible for that "out-of-a-bandbox" look which so many of our friends have acquired since Pyramid introduced their wonderful $1 cleansing service. It's better than home laundering, and it's cheaper than tailoring, and whether the material of your frock calls for the most delicate handling or the expert services of a valet, you'll find Pyramid Co. will give you the most satisfactory service. Their cleansing process restores! It rejuvenates! It brings back the daintiness of your lacey evening gown, the swank of your sports togs, and the charge is but $1 for any kind of apparel. Pyramid will dye any garment any color you wish so that it will look like new. They assure you of prompt, personal attention if you send your things by mail, or you may call with them at either their Boston shop, in the Fabyan Bldg., 36 West St., Rm. 602, or at their new Quincy shop at 1434 Hancock St.

Style to Her Toes!

Jean says every one is looking at her feet these days, to see what length skirt she has acquired, so her stockings have got to be smart. The Bell Hosiery Shops offer some very tempting values in all-silk chiffons at $1.27, picot top with French or pointed heels. As sheer as a cobweb, and silk from top to toe, in all the new vague shades. Their smart service-sheer weight at $1.63 is Jean's favorite for everyday. Pure thread silk to the garter top, with trim French heel. Really an unusual value. The Bell Hosiery Shops, 89 Temple Place, Rm. 615; also in Somerville, Lynn, Salem, Malden, Brockton and Woonsocket. You may order by mail.

Have You Tired Hair?

Lank, lifeless—beginning to fade—won't take a good wave—won't "do up"—just won't behave at all? It happens lots of times, Anne. Mine just got over a "spell"—and what do you suppose revived it? Hairlene! Why, it is a marvelous scalp tonic—rejuvenates dying hair cells which cause your hair to turn prematurely gray. It gives life and lustre, so that your hair will take a marvelous wave. It stops that shower of dandruff. Really your hair can't help but grow when you use Hairlene. It is sold by the Hairlene Laboratories, 8 Winter St., Boston, Rm. 710. You may order by mail, or call in person. $1 a 6 oz. bottle; $2 for 16 oz. bottle.

Mr. Walter A. Murphy

who created such a smart reputation for hairdressing and bobbing at Uphams Corner is now at Strati's.

Mr. Murphy gives a bob that is a joy—swirling and "peppy." To prepare you for this winter's gayeties Strati offers a special price of $8 for either the original Eugene, Le Mur or Frederics Vita Tonic Permanent Wave — using GENUINE sachets. This price includes shampoo, setting wave, and bob. For appointment call Lib. 9443. Special departments for hairdyeing, finger and marcel waving. Strati, 41 Winter St., Rm. 73-74.

Style to the Fingertips!

Such great importance is placed upon gloves this season that I want you to be sure to see Plotkin's selection of novelty cuffs and pull-ons at $2.95 first. Imported kid of exquisite quality, they come in the best of this season's color combinations! —black with white; brown with mode; mode with brown—and wear beautifully. They have a splendid assortment of trick styles, and anger-length pull-ons. Sizes 5¾ to 7¾. They are really exceptional values at $2.95. Other gloves, from $1.15 to $6.95, in Plotkin's Glove Department (street floor), 364 Boylston St.

Sunday Night Frocks!

They are all the rage, Anne—the prettiest things for dinner-dancing and the theater, with such a formal, "dressed-up" air. And Evelyn has some of the loveliest. Beautiful colors, too — Shimmery silks, satins, cantons, velvets and chiffons, with bits of lace or streaks of bright color. Of course, she has "everyday" frocks, too—swanky covert and tweed in modified silhouette that is so flattering. Evelyn's special prices are $6.75 to $12.95 up. Chiffon stockings, $1.35; service weight, $1.10. Evelyn's Dress Shop, 31 Winter St.

Record Values

in eyeglasses! You have still another week,—for Gilchrist's Optical Shop offer a saving of 1-4 to 1-3 during their extended sale. Here are some of the best and most practical values: $15 for regular $20 white gold filled frames with Kryptok invisible bifocal lenses (for distance and reading combined). $9.50 for same style with single vision lenses (regularly $13). "Shell" frames with bar-top bridge and Kryptok bifocals, $12.50 (regularly $19). Same style with single vision lenses $8.75 (regularly $13.) No charge for examination.

A Dress Without Cost!

Only the New York Dress Mfg. Co. would make such a daring offer — for they are manufacturers specialising in sample dresses at $2.75 and $6.75 — and if you can duplicate their dresses elsewhere at the same price they will give you the dress without charge! It's an offer worth looking into. All the newest silhouette and sport styles, neither "skimpy" in quality nor quantity. New shipments daily of Cantons, satins, silk and wool tweed that are really unbelievable values at $3.75 and $6.95. New York Dress Mfg. Co., 515 Washington St. (second floor, Opp. R. H. White).

Take Out Your Mirror

this minute—and smile! What do you see? Clear, unblemished skin, or a contrary little growth of superfluous hairs that could be permanently removed in one or two treatments by Miss Elisabeth G. Sparkes, and her electric needle. This is the most satisfactory way of removing superfluous hair, and Miss Sparkes has specialized in this work so long that she is deft and sure. Her prices are very moderate, and you may call Han. 7502 for appointment. Miss Sparkes is at 120 Tremont St., Rm. 334.

9 MEALS IN 14 DAYS ALL CAVE MAN'S HAD

(One month in the wilderness, making his living by the methods of primitive man, convinced Burt McConnell, New York editor, that the first two weeks were the hardest. In this story he relives those two weeks. Days without food; cold, rain and snow and myriads of black flies, all combined to make miserable those 14 days and nights. But not one moment of this "great experiment" does he regret.)

By BURT M. McCONNELL

Copyright, 1929, King Features Syn., Inc.

Bear-Trap Lake Portage, Que., Oct. 23. (By Courier to Normandin) —The first two weeks are the hardest. That is the conclusion I have reached after entering the Quebec wilderness on September 25, without food, fire, weapons, shelter, or clothing, and making my living by the methods of primitive man for four weeks.

My food supply for the first two weeks consisted of two squirrels, two rabbits and a small pike. In all, they weighed perhaps six pounds—enough for, let us say, nine meals. Nine meals in 14 days!

But the food situation was not the worst; there were the myriads of black flies, much more pestiferous than mosquitoes; a temperature that ranged between 8 degrees below freezing and 54; the chilly nights when, without sufficient covering and entirely without warmth-giving food for days at a time, I shivered as I cat-napped in my rude jack-pine shelter.

In fact, as I live over again those rather miserable weeks, I believe rain has caused me more actual suffering than all the other things combined. In the last 28 days, four clear days, ten overcast days, according to my diary, we have had ten and a half days of rain and three and a half days of snow—including two "young" blizzards when the wind attained a velocity of approximately 40 miles and hour and drove blinding sheets of snow, sleet and hail before it.

I other words, I have had two weeks of "fair" weather in the last four. And this is supposed to be the period of Indian Summer in Northern Quebec.

Rutgers University Insures Its Faculty

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 4 (AP)—Mr. John M. Thomas, president of Rutgers University, announced today that the board of trustees had decided to institute group life insurance for more than 66 members of the faculty and other employes of the university.

The university will share in the premiums, and to make the protection effective at once, the trustees advanced the premium on a blanket policy covering the entire staff November 1.

Finds Hard Rap at New England Is All Wrong

Warned against coming to New England because people were said to be antagonistic toward new ideas, the Hon Matthew Anderson of Liverpool, Eng., trade expert, today said that he had found Boston to be very progressive.

The visitor, who was sent to America by the Liverpool Board of Trade as a "trade ambassador," spent the day at the Chamber of Commerce.

"The "trade ambassador" said he had discovered New Englanders to be alert to new business opportunities, despite the general belief in England that people of this section were otherwise.

45 ARE KILLED BY VOLCANO

Guatemala City, Guatemala, Nov. 4 (INS)—Forty-five are known to be dead, hundreds homeless and property damage estimated at $2,000,000 was left today in the wake of the violent eruption of Santa Maria volcano.

Streams of molten lava, resembling fiery rivers in their extent, spread over numerous rich coffee plantations at the foot of the mountain, especially in the vicinity of the village of El Palmer, wiping them out.

The first eruptions occurred Saturday night. Residents for miles around the base of the mountain fled.

Weavers Walk Out in Anthony Mill

Anthony, R. I., Nov. 4 (AP)—Approximately 250 weavers employed in the Berkshire Spinning Mills, Inc., here, formerly the Coventry Company, walked out today when told they must do their own cleaning.

Ten cleaners previously had been laid off and the weavers were asked to try out the new cleaning plan. At a meeting the proposition was refused and the weavers were told the alternative was to quit.

Edison Light Gets $47,974 Refund

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—A refund of $47,974 to the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, Boston, for over assessment of income taxes in 1927 was announced today by the internal revenue bureau.

The allowance was due to additional deductions for depreciation.

Ohio Man Dead in Vermont Auto Leap

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Nov. 4 (AP)—Raymond Marshall, 38, of Cleveland, O., died today from injuries suffered when he leaped from a speeding car as it plunged off the St. Johnsbury-Waterford highway. Arthur Edwards of St. Johnsbury, the driver, was held pending investigation. He was uninjured.

SHE'D 'WIN HIM AT ANY COST'; NOW HE PAYS

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—While the Navy was silent as to what steps may be taken against Lieut. Harold W. Northcutt, who disappeared from the Norfolk Navy Yard and was taken into custody in Seattle, his family and friends here were puzzled today regarding the reasons behind his disappearance and his journey across the continent.

His father-in-law, H. E. C. Bryant, disclosed that the Justice Department had been advised that a Canadian woman, whose name was not revealed, left her home in Ottawa last August for the purpose of winning the affections of Lieut. Northcutt "at any cost."

Letters in the possession of the Justice Department show, he said, that "for more than a year she boldly asserted" her aims.

The young naval officer left the Norfolk Navy Yard on October 22 to deliver $200 to the extension department of the University of Virginia. When he did not reappear, a search was instituted, which revealed his automobile had been deserted in Richmond.

Department of Justice agents found him in Vancouver. He voluntarily went to Seattle, where he was placed under arrest and turned over to the Navy.

Watch Kidneys After 40!

Heed promptly kidney irregularities

KIDNEY disorders are too serious to ignore. It pays to heed the early signals. Scanty, burning or too frequent kidney excretions; a drowsy, listless feeling; lameness, stiffness and constant backache are timely warnings.

To promote normal kidney action and assist your kidneys in cleansing your blood of poisonous wastes, use Doan's Pills. Endorsed the world over. Sold by dealers everywhere.

50,000 Users Endorse Doan's:

Jas. McDonald, 203 Second St., Hattiesburg, Miss., says: "My back constantly bothered me and I was so lame it was hard for me to bend one way or the other. The kidney secretions were very irregular and I was very nervous. After taking Doan's Pills, I felt fine."

Mussolini Declares War on 'Slackers'

Rome, Nov. 4 (AP)—Benito Mussolini, Italian dictator, told Italians his probable course of action in the event Italy was involved in another war. The occasion was the eleventh anniversary of the victory at Veneto, which marked the defeat of the Austrian armies in the World War.

"History teaches up when there are serious crisis it is "arms and war which solve them," Il Duce said.

"If I had the terrible responsibility of governing a country in war time I would make a clean sweep of all sowers of discord and defeatists. I would impose stern discipline behind the war front.

"I would eliminate the spectacle presented to soldiers returning home, on leave from muddy, bloody trenches, of brilliant carefree merry life led in the big cities.

"I would take from war factories all ablebodied slackers who think it more useful to manufacture bullets, shells and bombs than to shoot and throw them."

The Premier said there was entirely too much talk about peace and disarmament.

Auto Kills Boston Man in Florida

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 4—Albert Burns Gunby, 62, of Boston, died in a municipal hospital here from a fractured skull, suffered when he was struck by an automobile driven by John Steele.

Albert Burns Gunby had traveled for various large dry goods manufacturers for the past 40 years, and was widely known. For the past 25 years he made his home with the family of Addison R. Taintor of Verndale st., Brookline.

B. & M. WORKER KILLED BY TRAIN

Struck by an outbound Boston and Maine train as he was crossing the tracks near Prison Point bridge early today, Melvin L. Huntress, 55, of Perkins st., Somerville, a Boston and Maine engineer, died shortly after being taken to Haymarket Relief Hospital.

He was found 20 feet from where he was struck by Perley Richards of Springfield, also an engineer.

The train was bound to Newburyport.

Perhaps your Child needs Milk of Magnesia

Too much acid always sickens

A GROWING child's system is less tolerant of an acid condition than that of a grown person. That's why a lot of sleep and a diet rich in fruits and the leafy vegetables is important to children. During sleep the acids of the body are consumed and the alkaline balance, so essential to health, is restored.

In spite of all your care, a child's system will occasionally become too acid. Of course you can correct this by rest and diet. But that takes time. The instant way is with an alkaline provided by Nature for the purpose. Milk of Magnesia.

You can make no mistake about the best form of magnesia if you follow the example set by physicians the world over. For fifty years, they have prescribed Phillips Milk of Magnesia to correct disorders caused by too much acid. In adults; sour stomach, nausea, gas, heartburn, indigestion. In children; bad breath, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic, diarrhea. Phillips Milk of Magnesia is in the form declared most effective by the U. S. Dispensatory. Its action is thorough; yet there is nothing so soothing to an ailing stomach.

A spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water and in five minutes you are happy, smiling! All symptoms of over-acidity soon disappear. A mother's duty is so much easier when she uses it. Children accept it so readily. Nothing could be superior for keeping the bowels open in constipation, colds, and children's diseases.

Phillips Milk of Magnesia has many important uses in every household. Each package contains full directions, well worth reading. 25c and 50c bottles at all drug stores.

To be sure of genuine Milk of Magnesia look for the name Phillips

CAMERA ADDS OODLES OF CHARM TO MAKE "RIO RITA" ITS "BEST YET"

VOICE OF BEBE DANIELS A TRUE REVELATION

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

"RIO RITA" sings its way to the front as one of the best of the most lavish entertainments thus far to step from Hollywood sound studios. Its Ziegfeldian background is one of its great assets; but not its greatest. For there are John Boles and Bebe Daniels, both of whom do very well indeed; there are techni-colored sequences, and there is clever little Dorothy Lee.

As a result of getting this picture, the New B. F. Keith's last night was duplicating the street and lobby scenes of the period of the run of "The Cock Eyed World."

Robert Woolsey

"Rio Rita" was literally, packing them in; and when we emerged we took a slant at the box office to see if they weren't about to hang up the S. R. O. sign. There's a reason for this popularity; and it is that "Rio Rita" has a lot of the charm of the Glorifier's stage show, plus some movie features impossible in the flesh-and-blood. The production is tuneful and artistically pleasing. Let us say that it is not motion picture in the real sense. It is extravaganza—photographed stage show. It lacks the all-essential of motion pictures—motion; but it remains, just the same, one of the very finest of screen musical comedies.

THE beautiful scenes follow one another in excellent procession; but the picture does not move. No camera-ed stage stuff does. The result is a slowing up; this is strikingly apparent to the beholder when Mr. Boles and Miss Daniels not in sight. So that "Rio Rita" must be judged in its class; and thanks to the partnership of Boles & Daniels, to the musical score and to the lavishness of about everything, we can't think of many others to give this film a run for the money among productions of this type.

"RIO RITA" has a way of its own of getting under the skin. We need but sit back snugly, and let ourselves be carried along willy-nilly. It is a dreamy something, a spirit of the opera, a call of the make-believe land. Mr. Boles is the first that takes one in hand; his rendering of the title theme song is splendid. Miss Daniels is a revelation; not that she is any diva. She isn't. But her voice is pleasurably good, and her acting is fine. She proves the very best of the staging stars of the old silent drama.

INCIDENTALLY, it may be recalled that the Boles of today is far distance from the Boles of that pioneer operetta effort, "The Desert Song." He has taken on virility vocally, and a certain impetuosity that is commendable in love-making. He is easier in his acting. He may yet become a great lover of the movies.

MISS LEE scores in her every appearance. Those clever comics of the original stage show, Robert Woolsey and Bert Wheeler, are with us here; and each puts across his lines and business in corking manner. Woolsey at times, to judge from the merriment of the audience, seems about to steal the whole show. He would were it not for the worthwhileness of Boles & Daniels on a higher plane.

THE second part of "Rio Rita" is entirely in color film and one regrets only that much that preceded wasn't in color.

NEW B. F. KEITH'S—"Rio Rita"; a. m., 9:15, 11:39; p. m., 2:08, 4:37, 7:06, 9:35.

FENWAY—"Disraeli"; p. m., 1, 3:11, 5:25, 7:39, 9:53.

Dancer Is Featured Among "Gold Diggers"

Nancy Welford, favorite dancing and singing ingenue, plays the leading role in "Gold Diggers of Broadway," filmed entirely in natural color by the technicolor process, now at the Scollay Square.

Miss Welford recently appeared in the featured part of "Rain or Shine" in New York. She also starred in the musical comedy "No No, Nanette," which toured the country as a road show.

The "Gold Diggers of Broadway" cast includes Conway Tearle, Winnie Lightner, Ann Pennington, Lilyan Tashman, William Bakewell, Nick Lucas, Helen Foster, Albert Gran, Gertrude Short, Nesly Edwards, Julia Swayne Gordon, Lee Moran, Armand Kalis and a dazzling beauty chorus of 100.

Two Dogs Attend School in Western Photoplay

A dynasty of dog actors is well on the way to establishment in Hollywood. King Tut and Prince Tan, two dog actors, father and son, are appearing in Paramount's "The Virginian," at the Uptown and Washington St. Olympia.

King Tut is a mixture of pit bull, police and airedale. His son mixes that strain with the Irish terrier of his mother. The Tut dynasty lives in almost regal splendor provided by the proud owner.

In "The Virginian" the canines take the part of pets who regularly attended the school taught by Mary Brian.

Victor Fleming directed this all-talking outdoor classic, which was adapted from the novel by Owen Wister.

Burlesque Changes

HOWARD—"Laffin' Thru," a Mutual show, featuring Wanda Dawon, dancing queen; also pictures and vaudeville.

GAYETY—"High Flyers," with Mike Sacks and Frances "Farr billed as the featured players. A Mutual show. Also Holub's Gayety jass orchestra.

WALDRON'S—"Wine, Woman and Song," headed by Harry Evanson and Jyes La Rue; also two all-talking feature films and vaudeville.

Dorothy Arzner to Direct

Ruth Chatterton will be directed in the film version of Timothy Shea's "Sarah and Son" by Dorothy Arzner. Frederic March will have the chief masculine role.

Lightest Star in Weight Gets a Great Big Hand

MARION NIXON, who made a hit opposite Richard Barthelmess in "Out of the Ruins," again appears with this star in "Young Nowheres," First National and Vitaphone production now playing at the Keith-Albee.

Miss Nixon has the distinction of being the smallest leading woman in motion pictures. She is less than five feet tall and weighs less than 100 pounds. She was born in Superior, Wis., and was educated in Minneapolis. Her first public appearances were as a dancer which she had decided was to be her career. Her introduction to pictures came as a follow up of her dancing in motion picture prologues.

"Mike" Gets Close-Up on Steamer's Paddle

Mechanical ingenuity of the highest order was required to bring to the screen the sound effects which so markedly increase the entertainment value of "The Mississippi Gambler," now at the Park for this week only.

There was for instance, the sound of the paddles of the old-astern wheeler, the Belle Riviere, to obtain which it was necessary to suspend microphones just far enough above the water while it was being churned to pick up the sound, and still not get any moisture upon the sensitive diaphragms. Then, a whistle exactly like those used on the Mississippi packets had to be obtained.

RED HOT VAMP IS BEING SOUGHT IN GAY PAREE FOR NEW McLAGLEN FILM

THIRD MARINE COMEDY IS "NEW WOMEN"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor
Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—Raoul Walsh, accompanied by a movie camera and a notebook, will visit Paris this month to get some shots for "New Women," the next Victor McLaglen-Edmund Lowe comedy. "New Women" is a sequel to "What Price Glory" and "The Cock-Eyed World" and it will show the same pair of intrepid marines in their same flirtatious pastimes.

While in Paris Raoul will lock the girls over, and try to locate a leading lady on the type of Lily Damita. He will be assisted in this Sir Galahad mission by his wife and Winfield Sheehan, who will meet the Walshes in Paris. Later they will visit Berlin and London.

"The Cock-eyed World" from a monetary standpoint is one of the big successes of this year. Everywhere it has been shown it has smashed box office records with pleasant regularity. Naturally, the Fox Co. would like to see a repeat on their new famous marine comedy.

FRANK JOYCE has come all the way from Hollywood to accompany his sister Alice back to the coast. Alice is leaving the 14th to play the chief feminine role in John McCormick's picture. Frank tells me that he received word that Chester Morris has been signed to play the leading role in "The Strange Case of Sergeant Grischa." That's Herbert Brenon's next picture for R. K. O. and it will be the first time that Chester Morris has worked on that lot although he is always moving from place to place for he is one of the actors who is in constant demand.

JAMES CRUZE can get all the do-re-me he wants to continue his picture-making activities. In fact Nat Cordish and Harry D. Myers, secretary and treasurer respectively of the James Cruze productions, are flying to New York to complete negotiations for a large Hollywood studio and to take a look at the current plays here. The program of this independent company which made "The Great Gabbo" as their first offering is to make two pictures a year. One of these for the coming year will be "The Circus Parade" by Jim Tully. Tully himself will write the dialogue for his play. He has been here in New York and has only just left for the coast.

IN these days of heavy stock losses when so many people in the film business have been hit heavy it is interesting to know that Bud De Sylva was paid $1,200,000 for his share of the Harm's Music Publishing Co which Warners recently purchased. Young De Sylva, I am told, immediately went out and bought himself some bargain stocks, gilt-edge ones of course, and he didn't buy them on margin—not Bud De Sylva, he's too smart for that.

WELL, it just seems as if all of Hollywood is in town. Norma Talmadge arrived with her mother, the inimitable Peg, a few days ago. Norma slipped into town so qietly that only her most intimate friends knew that she was here. She is all set to see the shows and go shopping. Who doesn't like to go shopping these days, with the windows all so full of new winter styles that one just has to summon all one's strength of character to resist using up the check book? While Norma is here she will talk with David Belasco on the subject of "Madam Du Barry," which unless present plans are changed, will be her next talkie.

SNAPSHOTS of New York collected at random. Claire Windsor in long black velvet dress and velvet hat at luncheon given by Vonnie Shelton at the Casino. Phyllis Haver in smart blue tweed coat, trimmed with wolf, also at the same place; and Adela Rogers St. John in brown tweed. Harold Lloyd dropping in at an after-theater party on Park ave. Irene Rich at the same place looking very fine Yorkish in a blue velvet dinner gown. Tullio Carminati, who seems to be New York's favorite celebrity this season, being given a cordial reception by several admiring women. New York dressing for the Swanson opening. Norma Talmadge having tea at the Lombardy Hotel. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

FENWAY HAS 'DISRAELI'

"DISRAELI," one of the most notable talking pictures of the season, is on the screen at the Publix Fenway for this week. The star, George Arliss, is one of the world's foremost actors and the role of England's brilliant and erratic Prime Minister one of his outstanding stage characterizations. Although Mr. Arliss has appeared in a score of successes, it is generally conceded that his interpretation of Disraeli represents the high mark of his brilliant career.

Anthony Bushnell

Here is a role to excite the imagination: a characterization of such subtle shading, contrasting opposites that nowhere else can it not only a fascinating figure in the history of the world, but one of the most interesting characters ever seen in the theater. In the remarkable performance of Mr. Arliss, Disraeli is vigorously brought to life; a delineation of character, the equal of which is seldom seen on the stage or screen.

A splendid cast supports him and includes Florence Arliss, the wife of the star; Joan Bennett, Anthony Bushnell, David Torrence, Doris Lloyd and Michael Visaroff. "Disraeli" was directed by Alfred E. Green.

Spanish and Italian Talkies Are Underway

Production plans for the first Italian and Spanish Language talking pictures have been made by the Italotone Film Productions, Inc.

Horowitz' Program

Vladimir Horowitz will give a recital in Symphony Hall on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 10, at 3:30. Horowitz' program will include Brahms' Sonata in F. minor; Debussy's L'Isle Joyeuse; Prokofieff's Six Visions Fugitives and Suggestions Diaboliques; Chopin's Impromptu in A-flat major, Nocturne in G minor, Valse Brillante; and Liszt's Etudes in A major and E-flat major and La Campanella.

HEART THROBS PLENTIFUL IN "YOUNG NOWHERES"

"YOUNG NOWHERES," the latest Richard Barthelmess picture, is produced by First National and Vitaphone, opened to a crowded house at the Keith-Albee. It is a beautiful story in which Richard Barthelmess has never created a more appealing type. "Young Nowheres" has been compared to "Tol'able David," his first great triumph.

In Binky, the friendless elevator boy who is called "Young Nowheres," Barthelmess has added the most wistful and moving character of all to his gallery of impersonations. Marion Nixon has the feminine lead. Her role is that of Annie Larson, the little chamber maid who is just as lonely and friendless as Binky. Miss Nixon, too, has brought into being a human atom so real that it will live long in one's memory.

Richard Barthelmess

Other members of the cast whose work stands out prominently are Bert Roach, in the role of a good-humored and generally alcoholic bachelor; Anders Randolf as the hard-boiled Mr. Cleaver, who makes a great deal of trouble for Binky and Annie before the story ends, but who proves to have a heart after all and Raymond Turner, a negro actor, who has appeared in a number of recent Barthelmess films

On the stage, Rose and Willi Schaefer, 20-year-old physics marvels from Germany, make their American vaudeville debut. Often called "Germany's Twin Samsons," these youngsters present a great demonstration of muscular power. There are other FKO acts, including Rita Burgess Gould, in "Songs of Life," Ken Christy & Co., and George Beatty, "Sonny Boy Himself."

LILY DAMITA

NETOCO THEATERS are this half of the week featuring "The Cock-Eyed World." Lily is the chief heartbreaker, Tom Modern, Beacon, Globe and Embassy at Waltham will show the film.

SCHILDKRAUT A SHARPER

The Cast

Jack Morgan.....Joseph Schildkraut
Lucy Blackburn.....Joan Bennett
Suzette Richards..Carmelita Geraghty
Janina Blackburn....Alec B. Francis
"Tiny" Beardsley.....Otis Harlan
Captain Weathers.....Billy Welch

JOSEPH SCHILDKRAUT stars in "The Mississippi Gambler," the Universal all-talking production now at the Park. In a picture the very essence of which is romance, Schildkraut carries a glamor both of personality and of portrayal which marks that particular type of part as pre-eminently belonging to himself alone. As the Mississippi packet gambler of a few decades ago, he is at the same time the villain and the hero, and equally beloved as both.

Joseph Schildkraut

It would seem at first difficult for an actor to achieve the sympathy of the audience in a part which makes him "trim" the heroine's father in a poker game; yet Schildkraut does exactly that. He carries his audience completely with him no matter what he does and, since the story is replete with fast-moving, colorful action, there is plenty for him to do.

Story, cast, direction, all are perfect throughout, with Carmelita Geraghty, Alec B. Francis, Otis Harlan and Billy Welch contributing outstanding performances in support of Schildkraut and Joan Bennett. Reginald Barker directed the picture with his usual smoothness of narrative and dramatic skill, so that "The Mississippi Gambler" easily qualifies as an outstanding romantic picture.

"The Cock Eyed World" at Netoco Theaters

The first half of this week, Netoco is offering simultaneously in their Modern, Beacon, Globe and Embassy (Waltham) theaters, the picture which has proven one of the greatest hits since the advent of talking films: "The Cock Eyed World. On the same bill are Clark and McCullough in an all-talking comedy, "Hired and Fired."

The remainder of the week at the Modern, Beacon and Globe will be the talking, singing and dancing version of Jed Harris' stage play, "Broadway," starring Glen Tryon and Evelyn Brent. Richard Dix in an all-talking comedy drama, "The Love Doctor," is on the same bill. The Embassy at Waltham plays "The Cock Eyed World" through the entire week.

Symphony Program

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will make its annual western tour next week, playing in Buffalo, Chicago, Minneapolis, Indianapolis and Pittsburgh.

The fourth regular pair of Symphony concerts will take place in Symphony Hall on Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, November 8 and 9. Dr. Serge Koussevitzky will give the first performance hereabouts of "The Enchanted Isle," a Symphonic Poem by Louis Gruenberg. He will also revive a suite for wind instruments by Louis Spohr, which was recently founded, copied and recommended to him by Richard Strauss in Berlin. The program will open with Mozart's Symphony in E flat, and close with Strauss' "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks."

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

BEBE DANIELS JUST LOVES TALKIES

By BEBE DANIELS
Star of "Rio Rita," now at the new B. F. Keith's

PERSONALLY, I never expect to make another silent picture as long as I live. Sound films so far surpass the old type that, in my estimation, there is no comparison. They have revolutionized the entire industry. They came at a time when a new stimulus was needed, and needed so badly that producers were ready to pounce on anything that savored of the new to excite interest.

The most beautiful pictorial effects possible had been achieved, new camera angles were constantly being devised, but these, too, had little limits. And then the talkies!

Months before their advent, I sensed something of the change that was coming and gloried in their possibilities. Naturally, the combination of sound and sight on the screen provides greater interest for the audience than sight alone—and to the actor it opens up news fields that we scarcely dared to dream about. Previously we conveyed the meaning of our plays through pantomime and subtitles, with the organ running a somewhat heetic accompaniment that varied from fevered "hurries" to soft love songs.

What a blessed relief it is to speak lines and know that every tonal inflection is significant! So often there is a fine interpretation one wishes to stress with a word rather than a gesture. In the silent drama this was lost; one could only hope the spectators would catch something of the feeling. But now, each nuance of the human voice is picked up by the microphone and duly recorded.

Then when RKO officials congratulated me on the success of the test and said I was to play in Rio Rita, Florenz Ziegfeld's musical extravaganza which was to be made into a super Radio picture, I experienced one of the happiest hours of my life. I have always wanted to sing as well as act, and now I was permitted to do both.

"Raffles" Is Purchased To Star Ronald Colman

"Raffles," the first and most famous of all crook melodramas, was purchased by Samuel Goldwyn as the next picture for Ronald Colman. It will go into production immediately after the world premiere of "Condemned" on Nov. 4. Harry d'Arrast will direct Mr. Colman in "Raffles" for Mr. Goldwyn. No supporting cast has yet been selected.

"Raffles," the play, was written by Eugene W. Presbrey and E. W. Hornung, from the novel of the latter. It was first presented by George C. Tyler in Atlantic City in September, 1903, and came to the Princess Theater the following month. The late Kyrle Bellew enjoyed the greatest success of his long and distinguished career in the name part.

In 1906, the play was presented in London, with Sir Gerald DuMaurier as Raffles. Through its many revivals in England, almost as numerous as in America, Sir Gerald came to be identified with the part much in the same manner as Mr. Bellew was in New York.

Their program for Boston will include Motets and Madrigals of the Elizabethan age, together with English folk songs of English origin in the Appalachian mountains, as collected by Loraine Wyman and Howard Brockway. Motets, Madrigals and Ballets will represent 16th and 17th century England.

Boston Symphony to Be Heard Again This Week

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, returning from the West, will give its fourth regular pair of concerts in Symphony Hall, next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, and will open the series of six Monday evening concerts in Symphony Hall on November 11. A concert will be given in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, next Thursday evening.

For Friday and Saturday, Dr. Koussevitzky will present Mozart's symphony in E flat; Louis Gruenberg's symphonic poem, "The Enchanted Isle," in first performance here; a suite by Louis Spohr for wind orchestra, which is entitled "Nocturne" and has the following movements: March, minuet, andante with variations, polonaise, adagio, and finale. The closing number will be Strauss' tone poem, "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks."

ROMANCE THE KEYNOTE OF THIS LIFE

Adventure and romance, the keynotes of the stage befall the players in the theater personally as frequently as these players enact them before the footlights. But, with the exception that the incidents do not become adventure or romance until they have become memories. At the time of enactment, events are usually accidents, tragedies or annoyances.

Possibly one of the most romantic careers behind the footlights has been that of W. C. Fields, star of the Earl Carroll Vanities, now at the Colonial. From the very beginning of his participation in the amusement world until he stood before a judge a few weeks ago and answered humorously to a charge of cruelty to a canary, the charge being dismissed as absurd, Fields has figured in interesting and exciting events.

Like many other players of the older generation Fields has many harrowing experiences in being stranded. Although he has visited and played in every town and city of the civilized world the name of Kent, O., stands out in his brain when he looks backward. It was there a show he was playing in went broke. Driven from the railroad station and fearful of returning to the hotel lobby to face an angry landlord, he wandered from one public place to another for several days before rescued by a fellow trouper.

Going to East Africa to play vaudeville dates he was ordered to come forth from his cabin and be landed, only to be knocked back into the cabin by a heavy wave every time he opened the door. Finally, he was landed in a basket, such as coastguards use for rescue work.

Screen Test Looked Bad to Quillan

IF Eddie Quillan, Pathe juvenile comedy star, covers as much distance, cinematically speaking, in the next three years as he did in the three previous, he will have traveled a long way. He already has attained stellar rank in "The Sophomore."

Quite a boy, this Quillan chap. He does quite a number of things and does them all well.

His Scotch-Irish parents had been troupers for years. His cradle was a wardrobe trunk and he was lulled to sleep by orchestras in the theaters where the family was appearing.

Early in the season of 1926 the Quillans were appearing at the Orpheum in Los Angeles when Mack Sennett dropped in one night and caught their act. He was much impressed by the quaint clowning of the three boys and that of Eddie in particular. Next morning, Sennett sent a message asking the three to visit his studio. They obeyed and a screen test was made.

When it was shown in the studio projection room, however, the three boys arose and left the Sennett lot very quietly by a side exit. All three were willing to concede defeat without argument, but Sennett thought otherwise. He liked Eddie and was ready to offer him a contract on the spot.

"Rio Rita"

Bert Glennon, RKO director, was casting for a flapper for "Syncopation," the first all-talking, all-musical Radio Picture made in New York. He saw Dorothy Lee and gave her a "bit." She did so well the part was enlarged, and she proved one of the hits of the show, especially with that "Do, Do Something" song. She signed a term contract and now, not the least of the charms in "Rio Rita" are those of Dorothy Lee, soon to be seen at B. F. Keith's.

Coming Events

LEON ERROL in "Fioretta" will be the next attraction at the Tremont, starting next Monday.

"The Perfect Alibi" will move into the Plymouth next Monday.

Jack Donahue in "Carry On" will take the stage at the Shubert next Monday.

"Journey's End" is announced as the attraction at the Wilbur next Monday.

"Fifty Million Frenchmen," a musical comedy, will come to the Colonial on Monday, November 11.

William Gillette in a revival of "Sherlock Holmes" will take possession of the Hollis on Monday, November 18.

Argentina Program

La Argentina will bring some notable new dances and costumes when she visits Boston for a performance in Symphony Hall on Saturday afternoon, November 9. She will be assisted by Miguel Berdion, pianist. La Argentina will present Goyescas of Granados; a dance from De Falla's "La Vida Breve"; an Andalusian tango; a "Danse des Yeux Verts," which Granados has dedicated to her; a peasant dance from Toledo; Cordoba of Albeniz; Jota of De Falla; "La Corrida" of Valverde, and two folk dances of the Philippine Islands.

'GOLD DIGGERS OF BROADWAY' SING SPECIAL NUMBER

IN "Gold Diggers of Broadway," Vitaphone comedy special in technicolor now at the Scollay, a huge musical revue, which beside the all-star cast includes a dazzling beauty chorus of 16, is presented as part of the colorful background of the story.

Conway Tearle

One of the song hits of the revue is "The Gold Diggers," Ann Pennington, famous Broadway dancing and singing star, sings the number. "The Song of the Gold Diggers," and eight others, were written especially for this production by Al Dubin and Joe Burke, composers of popular melodies.

In addition to Miss Pennington the all-star cast of "Gold Diggers of Broadway," includes Lilyan Tashman, Conway Tearle, Nick Lucas, Albert Gran, Nancy Welford, William Bakewell, Helen Foster, Winnie Lightner, Julia Swayne Gordon, Gertrude Short and others.

Miss Buell Returns

After a most successful season of concerts on the Continent, Miss Dai Buell has returned to her native heath to continue her earlier triumphs. The Consumers' League of Massachusetts is arranging a piano recital for Miss Buell.

CURLEY PLEDGES HONEST BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

PROPOSES TO SERVE CITY LOYALLY

Says He Doesn't Expect Ever to Run for Office After Coming Term Ends

Curley would have been glad to be assured of 12,000.

MRS. GUILD SPEAKS

On the stroke of 8, Joseph P. Lomasney stepped to the front of the stage, which had been erected on the westerly side of the hall, and presented Congressman John J. Douglass as chairman. A friendly riot which lasted nearly three hours began without Douglass' first utterance.

"And they said 'Jim' Curley has no friends!"

The Congressman presented Mrs. Curtis Guild, widow of the former Governor and soldier, who made a pretty speech in favor of Mr. Curley's election and received such a cheer as suggested that she might herself have had the mayoralty for the asking.

Then came orators almost without end, among them: Dr. Joseph Santosuosso, last year's candidate for Secretary of State; Mrs. Colin MacDonald, Julian Rainey, Sheriff Kelliher, P. Harry Jennings, Charles S. O'Connor, Congressman McCormack, Mrs. Margaret L. Bogan, President Nathan Sidd, of the C. L. U., Joseph A. Conry.

TUNES MINGLED

Frank S. Davis, head of the maritime bureau of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, declared that the "efforts that are being made to build up the commerce of the Port of Boston will be given great impetus by the election of Mr. Curley."

Mr. Davis was speaking when Mr. Curley made his entrance, his daughter Mary on his left and former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald on his right, at 9 o'clock.

Bunting was loosened aloft and millions of pieces of confetti thrown down. There were two bands playing at once. One song was "Tam-man-ee, Tam-man-ee," and the other "The Sidewalks of New York."

The candidate and his party were trailed by Indians from Roxbury's war paint and feathers, the band of Dorchester Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, veterans in uniform, and a color guard. Meanwhile, attendants had placed "mikes" in position and thought was being given to the radio audience, many times larger.

Speakers who followed Frank Davis were Col. Percy Guthrie, Peter Tague, James H. Brennan, Pres. Jacob L. Wiseman of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, Teddy Glynn and Pres. Lawlor of the Democratic City Committee.

Then Congressman Douglass presented "young Mr. Fitzgerald of Dorchester," and John F. stepped forward to say a word or two. But the crowd would not have it. They demanded "Sweet Adeline," and the former mayor had to sing before they would let him speak. All came in strong on the chorus.

Mr. Curley received the ovation of his life. There never was anything like it. When a measurable degree of order had been established, and he was allowed to make his formal speech, the Curley estimate of a lead of 70,000 votes did not appear the fantasy it seemed last week.

MARTIN TELLS 'EM

In the afternoon, Mr. Curley was received for the first time in his career by the Hendricks Club, the Lomasney organization in the West End.

Martin was wearing a straw hat when the meeting began and, following the Lomasney routine, he pegged the Coburn aside and forgot a white collar as he warmed up to his subject of the "Duty of an Hour." Briefly, it appeared that his duty is to "mark your ballot for Curley and vote early."

"Cowboy" said Martin, "said the other day that no man ought to have more than $1,000,000. If he had quit when he made his first $1,000,000 he would have got way with it. You notice he didn't challenge me to debate with him. Let him blow any stuff on me. I'll debate him any time, before election or after election. I'm ready for him, but he doesn't dare!"

The West End leader suggested the existence of a "secret conduit" between the Mansfield and Coolidge candidacies, with a "Punch and Judy show" at the other end. Of Mansfield—concerning whose private life he said he would not if he could, and he could not if he would, say one word—Mr. Lomasney said:

HUMANITARIAN

"What has Mansfield had to say about the Exchange st. deal? Has he said, 'Make me mayor and I'll get the money back from those scoundrels?' He has talked glittering generalities. With reference to Exchange st., he has been dumb. The trouble with fellows like Fred Mansfield is that they want to follow the Four Hundred. The Four Hundred wouldn't let him into their front yards. They like to use fellows like Mansfield, make a convenience of them, and then discard them.

"Let the Democratic party rise up once more. Let us put in a real man, even if we do have a row once in a while. Let us all vote the straight ticket—no ifs, ands or buts—for James M. Curley."

Mr. Curley, linking the Hendricks Club, the Salvation Army and the Tammany Club as humanitarian bodies, spoke of these organizations as "reserves to the submerged five-eighths of the population, for those without money and friends, the destitute and the unfortunate."

"These organizations," Mr. Curley said, "represent humane service of every kind. People marvel at the Salvation Army, but to the underfriend and unfortunate there is no mystery. They know that in the hour of trial they can go to the Army just as they can come to the old Hendricks Club, or the old Tammany Club, certain of a hearing and, if their case is worthy, sure of relief."

"In the past," the candidate went on, "I have had differences with your great leader. Strong men do have differences. No one has a truer and sincere friends who does not also have bitter enemies."

Congressman Douglass, also heard by the West Enders, described the contest as one between "the Democrat and the Goo Goo."

On the wall of the clubroom are two big campaign pictures of Curley, the first pictures of any candidate ever seen there. But the meeting between James M. and Martin M. was not in the least dramatic. There was no "Welcome, brother!" stuff. They shook hands, and let it go at that.

Mr. Mansfield, too, addressed large meetings last night, in Hibernian Hall, Charlestown, and the Municipal Building, South Boston.

But the most interesting address of the past 24 hours was that which Mr. Curley made in the forenoon to 1200 men and women, his volunteer workers. There is space for but a little of it:

"From the canvass we have made, I am satisfied I will receive twice as many votes as my two opponents put together. We will carry every ward in Boston.

"I promise you now that I may disappoint some people, because I am going to do my duty. I am going to run that job on the dead level. I want to leave a good record, a clean record.

"I am not disturbed about myself. My job is to watch out that those under me make no mistake. When this administration ends, after four years, I want everyone in Boston to be able to say, whether enemy or friend, that it was the cleanest, the most progressive and the best administration ever given in the history of American cities.

"The probability is that I shall never again lead a mayoralty fight or any city fight. It must go to some young man. If that can be said then any clean, able young fellow, even though he has not a dollar in the world, can walk into the mayor's chair if he has character and ability.

"We are all in a great army. We are in a great fight for a great cause. Everyone should give a little time on Tuesday to the work of getting out the vote. From the bottom of my heart, I thank every one of you."

Mr. Curley gave the volunteers his own estimate of how the vote will be cast.

"The most Mansfield can get," the former mayor said, "is about 43,000 votes. Dan McGrew will get about 5000. That makes 48,000 unless within the next 36 hours Dan McGrew shifts to Mansfield. Between them, they will get no more than 50,000."

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

John T. Gibbons of Ward 17 is expected to pile up a big vote in his fight for City Council.

Rheumatism Pains

Stop in 7 to 10 Minutes

What your MUSCLETONE has done for me will make me always remember to keep a bottle of it handy at all times. I was suffering with rheumatism in my right arm down to my finger tips, also my right leg, for some time. Your remedy gave me wonderful relief from the pain, and I am confident that MUSCLETONE will soon cure my ailment entirely. I am very happy to recommend your MUSCLETONE to all suffering from rheumatism, as it has helped me where other remedies have failed.

Mr. Luke Cusick,
Commercial Hotel, W. Broad St.,
Westerly, R. I.

Your MUSCLETONE relieved my pain immediately after the first application. I have been suffering with muscular trouble in my left, and found your remedy to be the best ever. I feel much better now, and am able to walk without pain. From now on I will always have a bottle of MUSCLETONE in my home.

R. Solomon,
234 Parrott Ave.,
Bridgeport, Conn.

When a man has rheumatism so badly that it is downright agony to even move and seems suddenly to regain complete freedom from pain the chances are that he has learned the secret of MUSCLETONE.

Almost a million people now—by word of mouth recommendation—seem to have found complete relief through this new discovery of treatment by injunction. So far as the painful part of rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia, lameness of muscle, bones and joints is concerned you may forget it with the first application. Relief actually comes in 7 to 10 minutes. The photographs above were taken only 30 minutes apart. Chronic cases and those unusually severe will of course require continued treatment for a while but isn't it wonderful that the relief you seek is now so easily obtained?

MUSCLETONE is a new discovery in medical science. You no longer dose the system with violent or nauseating drugs. The treatment is applied directly to the part affected and by injunction neutralizes accumulated toxins. Yet it is perfectly harmless. You literally feel the pain leaving.

If we urge only that you make this test, MUSCLETONE is now obtainable at any drug store. Buy it today. Use one half the bottle and if you are not amazed return the remaining half to the druggist and he will refund your money. The price is $1.00.

Dr. Chapin's Muscletone

"My Skin Nearly Drove Me Mad"

"I had pimples and blackheads so badly, and used to squeeze them so much that my faces looked red and raw. On the advice of a nurse friend I got a jar of Rowles Mentho Sulphur and used it faithfully for ten days. In a short time there was a big difference in my skin and today it is as soft and clear as my ten year old sister's."

The sulphur in Rowles Mentho Sulphur clears the skin while the Menthol heals the sore, broken tissue. That's the two-fold action you want for skin troubles. Try Rowles Mentho Sulphur next only for pimples and blackheads, but for dry, scaly skin, rash and itching eczema. IT WORKS! All druggists sell it in jars ready to use. Be sure it's Rowles.

Fordham Will Give Boston College Hardest Test

CAVMEN ARE 5-3 PICK TO WIN

MAJ. FRANK CAVANAUGH comes marching into Boston this week-end with his mighty Fordham football team confident that his charges will crush Boston College when these rivals settle down to their annual war at Fenway Park.

At the start of the week Fordham is a 5-3 favorite. With victories over New York University and Holy Cross and a deadlock with Davis-Elkins, Fordham is considered one of the nation's best grid teams.

Cav has the material and Cav has produced. He has his heart set on a victory over Boston College as much as he likes his former pupil, genial Joe McKenney, coach of B. C. The pupil put over a 19-7 win a year ago on his former teacher and the Major is seeking revenge.

B. C. hasn't lost a football game in two years under McKenney. He was termed the "boy wonder" a year ago but now he's rated with the master minds of football and the fans expect as much from Joe as they would from Rockne.

BOTH UNDEFEATED

Both Fordham and B. C. have yet to be defeated this season. B. C. has a tie with Villanova and Fordham with Davis-Elkins. If Fordham pulls through against West Virginia tomorrow, Election Day, it will be a battle of undefeated elevens.

Coach McKenney will forsake his squad tomorrow to get a final glimpse of what Major Cavanaugh is brewing. Although Joe played four seasons under Cavanaugh he'll have plenty to see and learn. Cav has broken away from the old bang-up style. He's using laterals and forwards and all sorts of fancy stuff.

Fordham booked a "suicide" schedule in taking on West Virginia and Boston College within five days. West Virginia annually turns out a rough and rugged eleven. They may not know it, but the Mountaineers are likely to get a letter of thanks from the Heights. They'll soften Fordham up to some extent and give McKenney an opportunity for a final look at what to expect.

The B. C.-Fordham classic promises to be one of the hardest battles staged on any gridiron in the land. A record crowd is expected, according to an announcement by Frank Reynolds, graduate manager at B. C.

EAGLES CONFIDENT

After passing their 16th game since 1927 without a setback, the Eagle squad will get down to work today for Fordham. The Eagles are confident that they'll win another for Joe McKenney. The team doesn't look like much. It hasn't a sustained running attack and is susceptible to a good forward passing game, which is said to be Fordham's best offensive weapon.

But B. C. has one outstanding feature—it won't quit. It's easy for an opponent to sail up as far as B. C.'s 20-yard line. But from there to the limit it's like trying to plough through eleven fanatics.

All B. C. confidence lies in the fact that the Maroon and Gold team this year is one of the most courageous ever. This asset, with a few "breaks," may win for B. C. next Saturday. For a team that won't give in can't be beaten.

The B. C. team against Fordham is likely to line up with Murphy and Dixon, ends; Herman and Young, tackles; Gorman and Morelli, guards; Downes, center; Conway, quarterback; Antos and Creedon, halfbacks, and you can take your choice between Marr and Kelley for fullback.

KELLEY NEW STAR

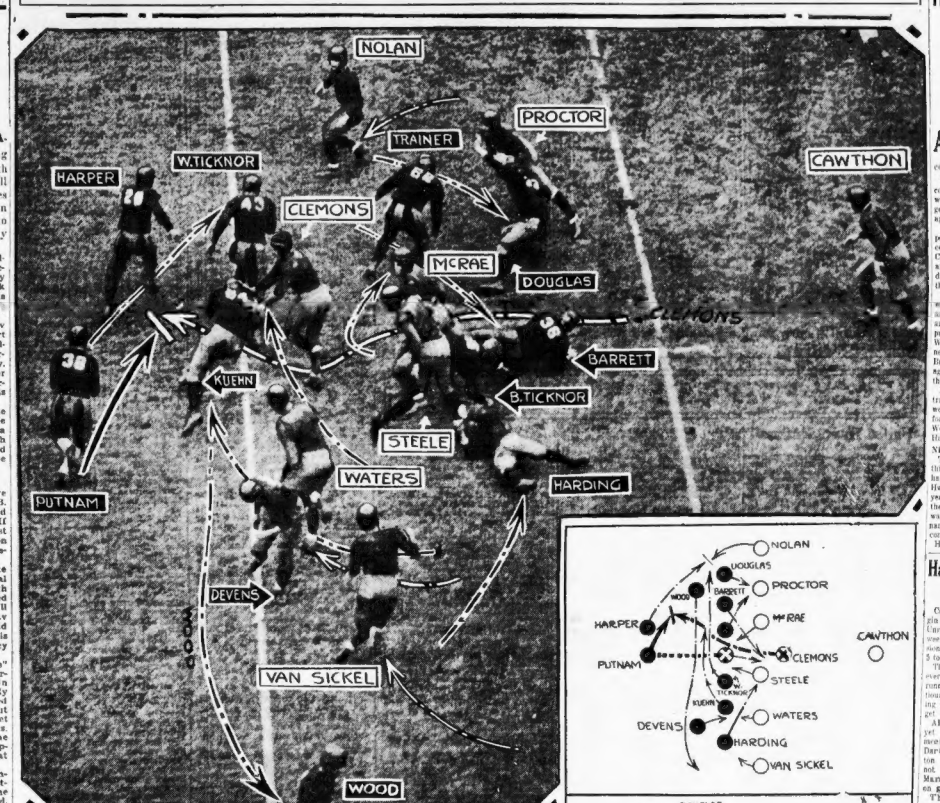
This is one position that Coach McKenney will have to settle. Kelley sent the chills running up some 5000 spines last Saturday by his tackling.

B. C. fans have never seen a gridder hit them as hard as Kelley does. He was death to Duke's passes, intercepting one and running it back 60 years. And he carried out his interfering assignments.

Johnny Marr got his chance to show when Kelley retired and Marr played better than ever before in his career. He was responsible for one touchdown by consistently banging off the Duke tackles on the Eagles march up the field for their third score. Defensively he was a star, too, making numerous tackles behind the line. Joe has a job picking this starting post but its nothing to worry about for both young men are good.

Al Morelli, the only cripple, will be back today ready for action. He'll take his place at right guard in place of Maloney. Every man on the B. C. squad will be fit to face Fordham and there's plenty of reason why Boston College backers are expecting B. C. to win.

STRONG HARVARD PLAY GOOD FOR LONG GAINS



This photo-diagram shows one of Harvard's strong plays. In this case it failed to gain. Ball goes directly to Putnam. W. Ticknor and Trainer pull out of line and swing left. Trainer, left guard, helps Douglas, left end, drive in defensive right tackle. W. Ticknor right guard goes further, aiding Harper, fullback, take out defensive right end. Kuehn, right tackle, comes out of line to left, to cross charge defensive center, Clemons, who has come through gap left when Trainer pulled out. Clemons sifted through so fast on this play that Kuehn could not cross charge him effectively and Clemons dropped Putnam for a four-yard loss. Other Harvard linemen have carried out assignments. Wood, quarter, has raced to right behind line of scrimmage, as play starts, to draw defensive backs over. This play worked for good gains on other occasions.

INJURIES HIT GREEN TEAM

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 4—The battered Dartmouth eleven slipped into town to recuperate before beginning to prepare for the Brown game.

With several serious injuries listed and nearly every member of the regular team badly worn by the Yale game, Coach Connell will hold no football practice until Wednesday. Not even a chalk talk will be held until that time and the gridiron will be entirely forgotten.

Dartmouth suffers its most serious setback in the injury to Al Marsters. The Green scoring ace was kicked in the back in one of Saturday's pile-ups. Added to the leg strain which was aggravated against the Bull Dogs, this is to be more than enough to him out of action this week-end.

Further examination of the hand of "Ping" Ferry, second string center, showed it to contain several broken bones and the sophomore pivot man will be out until the Navy game, which is four weeks away.

Len Clark, regular halfback, who heard the Yale game over the radio from his bed at the Hartford Hospital, will also be out until the Navy game. An X-ray showed he has a broken rib.

In addition to these three major [illegible], Pooma, Andres and [illegible] were badly banged up in [illegible] Traces, and the rest of [illegible] players are suffering from an afternoon which made extraordinary demands on stamina.

Old Man Consensus Slightly Injured

By CONSENSUS

"TEACHING these lads that H2O is the makeup of water may be alright, but I'd appreciate it a lot more if the college professors would tell the boys that ten white stripes equal one touchdown," I remarked to the sporting department as I came in this morning.

Saturday was a hectic day for Old Man Consensus. He had a perfect right to be annoyed at the football-less curriculum that some of these colleges must be teaching their boys. The Old Man had 11 choices and only five of those were correct. The other six weren't wrong. It was the team in each instance that was wrong. It just scored the wrong number of points and was on the wrong side of the fence.

He's thinking of the future now is Old Man Consensus. The past is a closed book. The future may be as bad as the present, but at least he doesn't know it yet, and in that the Old Man has security.

THE members of the sporting department had better avoid worse luck than Consensus himself. Sporting Editor Nick Flatley was the leader. Nick picked seven winners and called them wrong on four games. In addition he was one of the high men of the staff in picking individual team scores.

It was a good day for Mister Flatley. The only bad part was that he had to watch the Dartmouth eleven throw away not only the game, but—Oh, well, don't mention it. Grimm, Lane and Cashman were in the same boat.

JOE CASHMAN and Fred Lane each picked six winners and five losers. All the rest had five winners and six losers.

The boys were all wrong on the Southern California-California game, and they were all wrong on the Yale-Dartmouth game.

Jack Conway, Nick Flatley, George Grimm and Fred Lane were the lucky boys on the Brown-Holy Cross game. They all picked Brown.

THE other games with the exception of the Cornell victory over Columbia and the Notre Dame win from Georgia which all the experts couldn't help but call correctly, were evenly divided.

Myles McSweeney, Jack Conway and Nick Flatley each named three individual scores correctly but every one else was in the doldrums.

Carolinans Don't Meet

Clemson and Duke are rated the two strongest teams in the Carolinas. But they do not meet.

BROWN READY FOR GREEN

Providence, Nov. 4—The Brown football squad will start preparations today for its scheduled clash with Dartmouth at the Brown Stadium Saturday. As a result of their victory over Holy Cross, the Bruins are expected to be in much better shape for the invasion of the big Green.

The squad suffered two injuries at Worcester Saturday, but neither is expected to be a handicap this week. Paul Mackesy, big Lynn sophomore, and Joe Schein, veteran, the two regular tackles, were the pair of casualties, and yet both are counted upon to handle their regular assignments against Dartmouth.

Mackesy hurt a shoulder, Schein bruised his leg. It is probable that Coach Tuss McLaughry will have to give them each an extra day of rest, but they are expected back early in the week.

Double Windup at Fall River Show

Nat Kawler will face Eddie Holmes of Providence in an eight round event and Henry Jasso of Lawrence opposes Young Leffy of Fall River in the other eight round contest, at Casino Hall, Fall River, tonight.

YALE TEAM HAS DAY OF REST

New Haven, Nov. 3—There was no football practice at Yale today. Head Coach Mal Stevens said that the players will be expected to keep away from the practice field until tomorrow.

Stevens said that the University of Maryland, which will come here Saturday, has a deceptive record for the season. The fact that it won only a single game this year does not explain the strength as the Yale coaches estimate it.

Its 13 to 13 tie with the strong University of Virginia team, indicates quite clearly that Maryland will be no snap opponent. Maryland last season downed Yale's strongest playing combination of the season. Maryland twice has beaten Yale in the past eight years, and has consistently given it close games.

Yale expects a lively hustle to prove that it can outscore the Marylanders. Slight injuries were sustained by Bob Hall and Fred Linehan in the Dartmouth game.

Hall lost his wind in a sharp scrimmage. He was thrown heavily and removed, but was all right today.

Linehan, who was carried from the field, and taken to the hospital, has been found to have suffered a wrenched knee.

HARVARD ELEVEN BEGINS WORK FOR GAME WITH MICHIGAN SATURDAY

A MUCH heartened Harvard squad reported to Coach Arnold Horween at Soldiers Field today to receive the mentor's congratulations and advice.

The entire team was in a fine condition today, and the players were noticeably more anxious to get to work than they were a week ago.

No serious injuries were reported as the Cantab mentor counted noses. Every man on the Crimson squad is in fine condition and ready to take part in the final drive as the season swings into the home stretch.

The work of the team this week will be very light, with passing as the emphasis. Today, tomorrow and Wednesday the coaches will put the boys through their paces. Whatever contact work is deemed necessary by Duke Dunn, Eddie Bradford, et al will be done against the charging machines and the insensitive tackling dummies.

Horween is expected to concentrate most of his attention this week on the work of the new formed backfield consisting of Wood, Putnam, Devens and Harper.

NEW BACKS PLEASE

The Crimson coach's opinion of this new combination was that it had great possibilities of solving Harvard's offensive difficulties this year. He was well pleased with the work of all four players, and was especially impressed with Putnam and Devens as a halfback combination.

However, Horween hastens to add that such things are not developed and perfected overnight, and a lot of hard work would be necessary to make the four a really smooth running team.

While Barry Wood is to all intents and purposes the A. team quarterback for the remainder of the season, Arnie stated after the Florida game that Putnam would share some of the play calling work.

Michigan looms big on Harvard's football horizon, but the Crimson gridsters are confident that the game at Ann Arbor will not be their greatest test.

The Harvard line will be at its strongest on Saturday unless an unforeseen accident happens to one of the linesmen. For one thing, Dick O'Connell is back today after being out of practice since a week ago.

HARDING'S PLAY BRILLIANT

Again young Vic Harding is the subject for football talk among Cambridge fans. The ability which the dazzling wingman has shown makes many wonder if he may not supplant O'Connell.

At least he is every bit on par with the veteran right end, and no matter what you think, Horween at least wins.

It is expected that the lineup which started against Florida, with the addition of Dick O'Connell, will be the eleven to face Michigan at Ann Arbor. The work of George Kuehn for Harvard in the Gator tilt makes it pretty certain that he has the right tackle job for keeps.

How many players Horween intends to take to Michigan on Thursday was a matter of deep concern to many of the gridsters today. While the Cantab mentor may take his entire varsity squad of 35 men, there is just as much chance that only 25 may take the trip.

Consequently this week's practice should find the boys working their heads off in scrimmage in order to win Horween's notice.

Hard Schedule for B. U. Sextet

Coach Wayland Vaughan will begin intensive practice for Boston University's hockey candidates this week end will hold practice sessions at the Boston Arena from 5 to 6 o'clock daily.

This is the earliest appearance ever of a Terrier ice squad on the runners but with the most ambitious schedule yet undertaken facing them, the B. U. pucksters must get organized as soon as possible.

Although the schedule is not as yet completed, B. U. is certain to meet Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth, Brown, Bowdoin, Boston College and Holy Cross. This is not the full list of opponents, as Manager Johnson is still working on games.

The Terriers held three drills last week, at the end of which Vaughan made his first cut; another decrease in the number of candidates will be made at the end of this week.

Loughran Grows

In the last two years, since he was 25, Tommy Loughran has grown a full inch in height. Jack Dempsey grew an inch after he was champ.

Medford and Waltham Elevens Clash on Saturday

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

BOTH TEAMS HAVE CLEAN RECORDS

TWO of the best school elevens of this grid season, each with a perfect record to date, battle at Waltham this Saturday when Medford high plays the Watch City team.

Waltham, after a couple of tough tilts, had a chance to ease up a bit last Saturday, for the team merely had to go through the motions to crush Haverhill, 7 to 2.

Pendergast and Miele, shifty Waltham backfield pair, shared scoring honors with a couple of touchdowns apiece. Pendergast did his big share of the work in the initial half and then eased up. He should be at his best when he essays to slip past the Medford ends and tackles on Saturday. And Miele won't be far behind.

Coach Bill Leary of Waltham has a line which gives the back field the support it needs. Fron Smith, at right end, to Stankard, left end, the frontier is capable. It charges hard and carries out assignments with few slipups.

Medford, having gone through the season this far without a defeat, has no intention of letting its record be cracked at Waltham. Capt. Larry Spellman and his mates trounced Newton, 20 to 0, on Saturday. Newton, while fighting hard, was nevertheless not able to thump the Medford men very hard.

Hubba Collins has his squad intact for the Waltham clash, and the smart Medford eleven should give Waltham the stiffest opposition of the year.

Boston College high travels to Peabody on Saturday. The Maroon and Gold express is running smoothly but will find Peabody no easy team to defeat. The Peabody team was downed by Salem on Saturday last, but only by 13 points. Any team holding Salem to that margin has possibilities.

Tom McNamara has a fine prep school eleven at St. John's, which he sends against the Dean Academy team on Friday. Dean is strong, also, no this contest at Braves Field ought to be close.

Salem travels to Concord, N. H., on Saturday. This ends of either game, the second in three weeks for the Salem boys, should be one of the hardest of the year for Salem.

TOURNEY FOR FLYWEIGHTS

New York, Nov. 4—Despite the appearance in the Middle West of two world's champions, Jackie Fields and Sammy Mandell, the flistic apotlight this week will enter on New York, where an flyweight tournament designed to bring about the crowning of a generally recognized champion will begin at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Eight 112-pounders, one of them from Europe, will participate in the tournament with the winners of the four ten-round bouts on today's card meeting in the semifinals. The two survivors of that round will clash over the 15-round route in the finals.

Chief attention has been directed toward Eugene Huat, of France, European title-holder, who meets Izzy Schwartz of New York in the wind-up. Midget Wolgast of Philadelphia, battles Johnny McCoy of Buffalo; William Davies, clever Charleroi, Pa., midget, takes on an old foe in Black Bill of Cuba; and Ruby Bradley, Holyoke colored boxer, clashes with Ernie Peters, of England.

Mandell-McLarnin Meet in Ring Tonight

The Tufts wrestlers will report today at Tufts to Coach Sam Rugers.

The prospects for the year seem to be bright despite the loss of such stellar performers as Garcelon, Hingston, Haynes, Lohmeyer and Sundquist. Hingston and Garcelon were intercollegiate champions in their respective classes last year and Haynes was 135 pound champion two years ago. Lohmeyer was captain of last year's freshman and held the freshman 125 pound championship.

This year's team will be captained by Frank Stella, who took the 115 pound crown in the Harvard Intercollegiates last year and is out for the 125 pound laurel this year.

Tufts Soccer Team Coached by Captain

The Tufts soccer team, under the direction of Aster Mendes, of Trinidad, who is a student at Tufts, and playing coach and captain of the sport as well, is progressing rapidly.

This is the first year that any definite and well-ordered program has been carried out, and that it has been successful is shown by the fact that Tufts won its first game against the Harvard seconds.

The team was to meet the Clark University eleven of Worcester, Tuesday, but due to a last minute cancellation is without an opponent for this week. Two more games are scheduled tentatively before the season closes with Nationalera and Bridgewater normal school.

FLYING HEELS WINS BY A HEAD

KAPLAN MEETS McGILL NEXT

Abe Kaplan, Jewish heavyweight champion, will return to a local ring after an absence of a year and meet Pat McGill of Ireland in the feature finish match of Paul Bowser's all-star tournament at the Grand Opera House Thursday night.

Kaplan is the best-known wrestler to oppose McGill this year. The Irishman has defeated Freddy Meyers, Jack Ganson, John Grandovich, and August Benkert, but none of the quartet measure up to Kaplan in size, weight, and ruggedness.

The match is the most attractive yet staged by Paul Bowser, for both Kaplan and McGill are wrestlers of national repute. Bowser has decided against bringing another more unknown but highly heralded wrestlers to this city for main bouts, for they have prov d disappointments.

McLellan Again to Coach at Brown

Providence, R. I., Nov. 4 (AP)—Re-appointment of Albert McClellan of Swampscott, Mass., as varsity basketball coach at Providence College, and the appointment of Louis A. Imbriano of Revere, Mass., a junior, as student manager of basketball, were announced by the athletic council today, together with the schedule, which is as follows:

December 11, Northeastern; 17, Yale at New Haven; 20, St. John's at Brooklyn, N. Y.; 21, Columbia Pharmacy.

January 11, Springfield; 16 Middlebury; 18, Holy Cross, Worcester; 22, Worcester Polytech; 25, St. Johns at Providence.

February 1, Holy Cross; 7, Upsala College, East Orange, N. J.; 8, C. C. N. Y., New York city; 15, New Bedford Textile; 19, Coast Guard Academy, New London; 22, Seton Hall College; 26, New Hampshire, Durham.

March 1, Coast Guard Academy; 4, Brown; 8, Lowell Textile, Lowell, Mass.

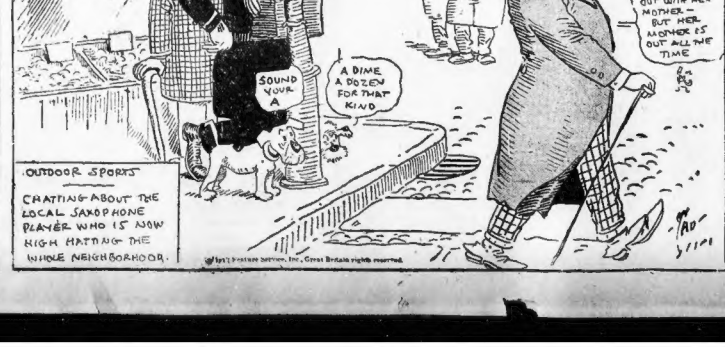
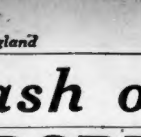
TAD'S FAVORITE OUTDOOR SPORTS



MR. BOSTON



By JACK CONWAY

"WHAT kind of a fighter is George Godfrey?" Freddy Lane asked Mr. Boston today.

"Good enough to take care of himself in most any company," replied the veteran. "Godfrey is six feet, two inches tall and weighs 235 pounds. This makes him a real Man Mountain.

"The negro champion has two club-like fists. He parades to close quarters and makes the opposition rock when he scores with his powerful left. He is a dangerous wallops.

"Godfrey is distinctly a body puncher. This is why he has ruined so many of the big fellows who have tried to halt his advance.

Jack Conway

"Godfrey lacks the boxing skill and sparkle of Jack Johnson at his best. He does not rate with either Harry Wills or Sam Langford as a boxer, but he is a greater punisher than Wills.

"Godfrey's punch lacks the kick of the Langford kayo, but then there have been few ring warriors who have measured up to the Tar Baby's standard as a socker.

"The Leiperville giant beats the opposition down slowly. It is a series of blows, rather than one fiery attack which brings about the victory.

"JACK SHARKEY is the only white heavyweight who has proved a better fighter than Godfrey. The Boston contender defeated Big George at Mechanics Building three years ago last September. Three weeks later Sharkey conquered Wills. I do not believe Max Schmeling, Phil Scott or Tuffy Griffith could upset Godfrey. Other than Sharkey, Godfrey can beat any heavyweight in the world.

"I ADMIRE the courage of Jimmy Byrne, Louisville h vyweight, who tackles Godfrey at the Arena on Thursday night. Byrne has wrecked his share of negro heavyweights. He defeated Big Bill Hartwell and Al Walker in matches in this city, while he conquered Al Ginsby in a battle on the Coast. Last summer in Philadelphia Byrne gave Godfrey plenty of opposition for seven rounds.

"Byrne says a punch paralyzed the nerves of his right arm in the seventh frame of the Godfrey match. He says that with any kind of a break Thursday night he will step into the big money by defeating Godfrey. One must admire Byrne's confidence.

"JACK DEMPSEY, speaking as a promoter, says fighters get too much money for their services. He proposes a working agreement with Paddy Harmon, rival Chicago promoter, looking toward a reduction of purses. As a fighter, Dempsey exacted crazie terms from the promoters. At Shelby, two banks failed after Dempsey cleaned the town o t of money. Tex Rickard was obliged to guarantee Dempsey $750,000 before the latter would agree to defend his title against Tunney in Philadelphia.

"Dempsey was for big guarantees when he was collecting them. But now that he is the one who has to do the paying, he probably would like to have the leading boxers do their stuff for glory.

"DEMPSEY is in a tough spot in Chicago. He is operating at the Coliseum which is only able to care for 12,000 persons. Paddy Harmon has the Chicago Stadium with a seating capacity of 25,000. The Chicago Stadium is the biggest and finest indoor sport arena in the world.

"DEMPSEY cannot hope to make any real money as a promoter until next summer when he plans to stage matches at Soldiers Field. He will then have some competition from Jack Kearns, his old manager, who is going to act as a silent partner for Jim Mullins in promoting at one of the Chicago ball parks. Kearns has Walker a big attraction. Harmon is also planning outdoor shows for next summer.

"OF course if Dempsey could land the Sharkey-Schmeling bout he would not have anything to worry about. That match will signalize the return of the million dollar gate to the boxing game."

Fordham to Play W. Va. Tomorrow

New York, Nov. 4—Forham University's undefeated football team will engage in secret pre-game practice at Fordham field today in preparation for its second annual battle with the West Virginia University eleven at the Polo grounds tomorrow. A crowd of more than 35,000 is expected to witness the contest.

Arrow Six to Play Bruins

Boston Bruins will play a pre-season game with the Philadelphia Arrows of the Canadian-American League in Philadelphia Saturday night.

Arrangements were made between Manager Art Ross and Herb Gardiner, who will handle the Arrows this year.

It will be the first pre-season exhibition game played by the Bruins since the first year of their existence, when the Saskatoon Sheiks of the Western League came to the Arena for a series.

It is possible that several members of the current Bruin squad will participate in the game as members of the Philadelphia squad.

An agreement has been reached with the Arrows to send superfluous Bruin players there and the B's at present are over the player limit.

The Bruins will leave for Philadelphia Friday. The game will be the first of the season in the Quaker City.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"God's Greatest Teacher"

When you take the time to determine exactly what you are to make the ball do when you stroke it you go through a muscle disciplining that is essential to lowscore golf. Don't fool yourself by thinking that any par shooter ever plays haphazardly. What is commonly referred to as the obstinacy of the golf ball is in reality nothing more than your own failure to decide, in your own mind, just what you desire and intend the ball to do. How can the ball be anything but erroneous when your own mind is indefinite about it? The mistake of the high score player is that he tries to substitute power and force for leisurely mental shot-planning. He tries to accomplish, with force, the very thing that should have been decided upon mentally before-hand—the shot as a whole. Take the time to see your shot. Fix the exact spot where the ball is to fall. If it's a pin you are shooting for, determine to drop the ball directly on top of the flag pole, not just on the green, and be on guard against this: Any time you find yourself thinking that "on the green will do" you have absolutely failed exactly to plan that shot. "On the green will do" shots, for that reason, often get into trap guarding the green. Don't blame the ball or the trap or your "luck" School your mind, which controls your muscles.

J. E. MADDEN, NOTED HORSE BREEDER, DIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)—Death has claimed a fourth member of the old guard of racing within the short span of one turf season.

John E. Madden, owner of the famous Hamburg Place farm in Kentucky and leading American breeder of race horses, succumbed yesterday to heart disease.

Two other veterans of the turf, Mars Cassidy, starter at the leading tracks, and Samuel C. Hildreth, noted trainer, have died within the past month. James Rowe, another leading trainer, died at Saratoga in August.

Mr. Madden was 73 years old and until a short time ago never had been seriously ill. He had been confined to his suits in the Hotel Pennsylvania, his home during the northern racing season, for nearly two months. His illness began with a cold, which developed into pneumonia. Apparently he had recovered from this attack and was considering returning to his Hamburg Place farm, near Lexington, Ky., when the relapse came.

Always an adherent of physical fitness, Mr. Madden refused to go to a hospital when he suffered a relapse about a week ago. He contended that he would be out "almost any day" and, friends said, he would jump out of bed when they called to show his strength.

WALL STREET FIGURE.

Mr. Madden was an important figure in Wall Street as well as in horse raising. Since his retirement from the breeding industry a few years ago he had devoted most of his time to his investments.

Born in Bethlehem, Pa., in 1858, Mr. Madden broke into racing with one horse, an old trotter named Robert McGregor, bought with his winnings as a foot racer and as a boxer. He won $33,000 with that horse and built his racing fame on that foundation.

He bred such famous horses as Plaudit, Old Rosebud, Sir Barton, Paul Jones, Zev and Flying Ebony, all winners of the Kentucky Derby. From 1923 to the end of last season he bred 2,198 winners. He led all American breeders from 1917 to 1928.

Mr. Madden sold most of his brood mares in 1928 and virtually retired as a breeder. Among the few horses he kept was Sir Martin, which he once sold to England for the Epsom Derby, only to lose when Sir Martin was in the lead.

KEPT SIR MARTIN

Madden said he retained Sir Martin for sentimental reasons, the horse was the sire of Spinach, recently purchased by William Ziegler, Jr., and which finished second in the Pimlico Futurity Friday.

Crimson Eleven in Great Comeback Against Florida

LINE PLAY FEATURE OF GAME

By RALPH GILROY
Former Princeton Star and All-America Halfback

FRESH from a two touchdown victory over a strong Florida eleven Head Coach Arnie Horween this week will hasten the polishing up process of the Harvard offense so that it may function at its best against Michigan the coming Saturday.

While Yale was spoiling Dartmouth's hopes for a championship in the Bowl, the Crimson eleven was bringing back hopes of success to its loyal supporters by taking the Gators into camp.

With the modern style of football, an eleven can look like a brilliant machine one Saturday, and just seven days later lose its steam and go to pieces. Against the Crimson, Dartmouth played like "champs." Down in New Haven Saturday, except for a third period flurry, the brilliant Dartmouth offense couldn't seem to get going.

Against the Green forces Harvard was a pretty ragged eleven and was put to the worst sort of rout in the final quarter of the game. Saturday, against a strong Florida outfit, the Horween crowd played heads up ball, and looked like an eleven which was moving in the direction of future victories.

RUSH LINE IMPROVES

Perhaps the outstanding feature of Saturday's game was the return to form of the Crimson rush-line. After being outcharged by the Army and Dartmouth forwards, Duke Dunn's front line finally got going. Got the jump continually on a stubborn Gator line, and made the Harvard running attack go places.

The Crimson tackles, Captain Barrett and Kuehn, got across the line Saturday in good shape and messed up the Gator offense before it could get rolling; the two Ticknors, Talbot and Trainer opened up some nice gaps to let Wallie Harper and Devens through for some nice gains. Defensively the Crimson center trio was a hard combination to get through today, very little Florida yardage was chalked up in that quarter. From tackle to tackle, there is the world of power in the Harvard scheme of things. The coming battles should be a rosy dream for the Crimson if this Harvard line is functioning the way it was Saturday against Florida.

The Harvard wingmen, Harding and Douglas did yeoman service in smashing the "Gator" attack. Breaking down the field tackling on kicks was beautifully done by this pair and such a fine open field runner as Crabtree, the "Gator" quarterback had not a chance in the world to run back punts.

Dick O'Connell, considered the best of the Crimson ends, was resting up after an injury received in the Dartmouth game but will be in the starting lineup against Michigan. With these three rads playing bang-up football, the Horween extremities are well taken care of for the balance of the season.

OFFENSE SMOOTHER

With the return of Wallie Harper, and the promotion of Barry Wood to the signal calling post for the first backfield combination the Crimson offense worked smoother than it has since the New Hampshire game.

Harper's lay-off didn't seem to have hurt him much, and this sturdy fullback was backing up the Harvard line in great shape and plunging for some nice gains.

Harper's understudy, White, played a nice game against Florida and should be a lot of help to the Harvard cause against Michigan, Holy Cross and Yale. The late shift of Eliot Putnam from quarterback to halfback seems to have been a move for the better.

Putnam made one nice gallop from scrimmage for 25 yards and ran punts back in nice fashion. Taking the worries of running the Harvard team from Putnam's shoulders should bring out some nice running by this boy. Devens, the fourth member of this backfield combination, and it looks very much as though this combination would remain for the balance of the season, made steady yardage every time he was called on to carry the ball.

The flashiest and most versatile of the Horween backfield crew is Mays. This boy made one beautiful gallop of 25 yards for a touchdown after receiving a lateral pass from Devens was a pretty bit of running.

MAYS SHOWS PROMISE

On this dash Mays was apparently surrounded by a flock of Florida tacklers near the sideline, but by a clever bit of cutting in, Mays was able to get away and roll over the last chalk mark. The run was nullified by a holding penalty, but nevertheless, took none of the brilliance from this nice piece of running.

This dash of Mays' reminded the spectators of that 25-yard dash of Marsters' for the second Dartmouth touchdown which definitely sealed the Crimson hopes for victory. Horween will hold Mays in reserve in the coming games and stick him into the Harvard backfield when the Crimson gets in position to score.

If Mays keeps improving in each game, by the time the Yale game rolls around, Horween should have a dangerous runner to match the brilliant Albie Booth of the Yale eleven.

B. U. PREPARES FOR H. C. GAME

Boston University's football forces will begin intensive preparations this afternoon for the annual game with Holy Cross on Saturday.

Coaches Reggie Brown and Ed Johnson will spend most of the time today in front of the blackboard, where they will point out the errors of the Tufts game.

Emile Palombo first string quarterback, and George Catahlic, sub tackle, will return to the squad today for the first time since the Springfield game, and will complete the squad's full roster.

Although Santo Marino did a good job at directing the team's play against Tufts, Palombo seems to get more drive out of the men, and will probably be back in his old berth when the Terriers line up against the Crusaders.

Too Many Banquets Put Connie 'Out at the Plate'

Philadelphia, Nov. 4—Too many banquets have caused Connie Mack, 67-year-old manager of the world's champion Athletics, to take to his bed with the advice of his physician that he go slow on social functions for the present.

His condition is not serious, it was said, and he expects to be up and about again in a few days.

Since winning the World's Series, Mack has attended many functions in his honor. He was to have been the guest of honor at the Philopatrians' dinner tomorrow night, but because of his illness it has been postponed.

Coach Scanlon of Brighton Resigns

Coach Tom Scanlon of Brighton high will quit his coaching job Friday on account of his health. It was first believed that Fred Murray, former Latin and Grant gridiron captain who later coached at English high, would fill in during Tom's absence but when there is already a coach available in the school, it has usually been the selection is made from the school, and at Brighton, Billy Murphy fits into this situation.

Durham, N. H., Nov. 4—Although New Hampshire had an easy time swamping Lowell Textile Saturday, it was the most costly game of the season for the Wildcats. Two regulars are lost, probably for the rest of the season.

DEATH TAKES ED McGOORTY

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 4—Eddie McGoorty, well-known Wisconsin middleweight boxer of a decade ago, died at the Soldiers' Home Hospital here.

The 40-year-old fighter rose in the ranks of his division, but never won the middleweight crown.

Three weeks ago the boxer went to Rochester, Minn., for treatment. Nothing could be done for him there, however, so he returned to Milwaukee, broken in health and discouraged. He entered the hospital here Oct. 20. His wife was at his bedside when he died.

Mike Gibbons, Bob Moha, Les Darcy, Billy Murray, Jack Dalton were a few of the middleweight boxers McGoorty met.

Burial services will be conducted in Oshkosh.

SOUTH HAS 'GOLDEN' SUNSHINE--BY McGUIRK

Few College Teams in Undefeated List

By BILL GRIMES

DUE to the slips of Dartmouth, Southern California and Louisiana State, there are only seven undefeated, untied college elevens, of any note, in the country.

Since the opening gun of the current season was fired, the prognosticators have been anything but prophets. Generally speaking, the prophecies, doping and doping varieties, have failed dismally.

Dartmouth and Southern California appeared to have a decided edge on their last week's opponents, but Yale and California collected the money, and the Blue and Golden Bears the glory. Dartmouth deserved a better fate than they encountered in the Bowl but it takes eyes as well as perfect execution to make up a football game.

Just as soon as Hoot Ellis had finished his gate-swinging dash for 85 yards in the Bowl, everyone knew just what Tommie Longnecker should have done. It does not cost anything nor is a knowledge of the game necessary to be a "second guesser," which is always a sure-fire role.

Had Longnecker's pass been completed the little Dartmouth quarterback would have been one of the outstanding heroes of the game, but it was intercepted and the "second guessers" are making Tommy the goat.

ALTHOUGH it is regrettable that Dartmouth's winning streak should have been broken especially in view of the fact that the Green outplayed Yale consistently, after all it is just a ball game.

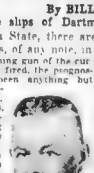
Also, it is much fairer to all to dwell upon the wonderful alertness of Hoot Ellis instead of a bad break for Tommie Longnecker who, by the way, was not the only Dartmouth player who erred.

Notre Dame continued its winning by taking Georgia Tech over the jumps, and the University of Pittsburgh kept its slate clean by defeating Ohio State. The two undefeated untied teams in the Big Ten, Minnesota and Purdue, won conference games, defeating Indiana and Wisconsin, respectively. The Boilermakers have now won seven conference games, manned Michigan, Chicago and Wisconsin, while Minnesota holds decisions over Northwestern and Indiana. Cornell came through against Columbia and will now head for Dartmouth. There are still two teams on the South Tulane and Tennessee, which have won every game.

IN some quarters there may have been a doubt as to the outcome of the Dartmouth-Yale and Southern California-California contests, but the prophets were unanimous with their predictions that Boston University would sink Tufts and that Bowdoin would have no trouble taking care of Bates. Therefore, the Tufts and Bates victories were outstanding in New England. Congratulations are in order to Arthur Sampson and Dave Morey.

Dave Morey's Bates team has been the sensation of the Maine State championship series. Until Morey took over the coaching duties at the Lewiston institution, Bates had not won a game in two years and had scored about as frequently as they had been victorious.

Under Morey, Bates tied Rhode Island State and has defeated Maine and Bowdoin. After Bates had chalked up a win over Maine, the perennial champions, Morey was given credit for performing miracles. Now with Bowdoin's scalp Dave owns Lewiston and Sabattus.



Bill Grimes

THE mild spoken Mr. Alonzo Stagg drove Bill Roper back on the verge of another nervous breakdown when his Chicago Maroons defeated Princeton and the Tiger mentor is feeling on a par with Chick Meehan of N. Y. U., who took his second licking in two years from Georgetown.

Another defeat and Chick will be able to ring in the Singer Midgets without hearing a complaint for the few remaining N. Y. U. followers.

The Holy Cross Crusaders must be in about the same frame of mind as Dartmouth after taking a 14-to-14 thumping from Brown, while Coach McLaughry could not possibly have prescribed a better tonic for his men than such a sensational victory one week before Brown meets Dartmouth.

Boston College continues its winning streak, which has been running since Joe McKenney took charge, by defeating Duke. The Eagles will get their real test next Saturday when they meet Fordham, a powerful aggregation which, like B. C., has not lost a game this season.

Police Meet

Winston-Salem won the first annual North Carolina police meet. Asheville and Forest City were the other entries this year. Other cities will enter next year.

H-Y Ticket Demand Exceeds Supply

THE Harvard allotment of tickets for the Yale game is over applied 48 sents, by applications filed on time, according to announcement today by Carroll F. Getchell, manager of the Harvard A. A.

Counting late applications, there is filed after the deadline on Wednesday, October 30, the game is further oversupplied 842 tickets, or a total of 600 tickets.

Those late applications will be considered to the extent that they will be taken care of if possible out of return tickets. Getchell said that all graduate school students at Harvard who had applied for two tickets would have been applications filled, but that none would be allotted as standing room on the roof.

This year marks the first that Harvard has been able to accommodate school students two to a ticket. Graduates of the graduate schools have been limited to one ticket since 1919. Including the 1000 standing room tickets on the roof, there are 61,355 tickets for the Yale game. Of these Harvard received 34401 and Yale 22954. Of the applications of Harvard men were classified as follows: undergraduates applied for 13,91[illegible] tickets; 1256 graduates applied for 23,258, a total of 34,419, or 44 more tickets than Harvard's allotment. Fifty-seven graduates applied late for 192 tickets and 558 graduates applied late for 550 tickets, or a total of 642 tickets on late applications up to the present time.

Tech Basketball Squad Out Today

Technology's basketball season gets under way this afternoon when the candidates for both the varsity and freshmen teams report to Coach Henry McCarthy for the opening workout of the season.

MARSTERS STILL TOPS SCORERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—Al Marsters, Dartmouth ace, and Lou Gordon, Yale back, are tied for scoring honors in the Big Three loop by leading by 12, but Marsters remained ahead of his field in individual scoring with a total of 36 points, 12 more than his closest competitor.

Marsters of Haverford scored three touchdowns and an extra point against Johns Hopkins and remained second place in the race with 65 points. Hinkle of Bucknell contributed two touchdowns to his teams's rub upon Temple, moving into third place with 60 points.

WILKINS' SHIP QUITS URUGUAY FOR ANTARCTIC

By CAPT. HUBBERT WILKINS
Commander of the Wilkins-Hearst second Antarctic Expedition.

Copyright, 1929, by New York American and Universal Service, Inc.

Montevideo, Uruguay, Nov. 2—(delayed in transmission) —The S. S. Melville, the Bugge Whaling Company's Norwegian supply ship, upon which the Wilkins-Hearst expedition journeys to Deception Island, where the expedition makes its headquarters while in the southern regions, shoved off from the River Plate today.

For two weeks, Parker Cramer and Al Cheesman, our pilots, and Orval Porter and Victor Olsen, mechanic and wireless operator, had, with me, been fretting to get away and face the great Antarctic waters.

Due to the generous help of the Uruguayan authorities, President Dr. Juan Campisteguy, the ministers of foreign affairs and port and custom officials, the Norwegian authorities and the British envoy, our supplies, including food, gasoline, oil, snowplow, outboard motors, wireless apparatus, Wright Whirlwind parts and spares for our Lockheed monoplane; our motorcar, and heavy clothing, had been, until Thursday, lying free of charge in the customs warehouses. Yesterday they were loaded on a barge and towed to the Melville for embarkation.

KING IN LONDON TO HOLD PRIVY COUNCIL

London, Nov. 4 (INS)—Vastly improved in health, King George arrived in London today from Sandringham, where he had spent the last few weeks shooting and hunting.

The King was accompanied by Queen Mary and little Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of York. They proceeded immediately to Buckingham Palace.

It was expected the King would remain about ten days in London and return to Sandringham after holding a Privy Council and receiving Premier MacDonald and probably some of his other ministers at the palace.

LONE COP FOILS BOMB PLOT IN BRUSSELS

Brussels, Nov. 4 (AP)—An attempt Saturday night to bomb the offices of the Italian Chamber of Commerce was frustrated by a lone policeman who cut the fuse of an infernal machine he found outside and extinguished it.

He then carried the bomb to police headquarters and dropped it into a bucket of water. When the bomb was opened it was found to contain ordinary black powder.

Seven persons were injured Sunday in a brawl outside labor headquarters after an anti-Socialist demonstration by Fascists, most of them Italians. Police quickly checked the disturbance.

"What! torn already?"

MOTHERS are always dismayed at the first hole in the most recent pair of their children's shoes. It seems just last week that they were bought . . . at no small price. How do children go through shoes so quickly?

One answer is, "They don't with Coward shoes." For Cowards are built so carefully of such sturdy, long-wearing leathers that they outlast all ordinary shoes. The uppers never stint on the wear they give. They mend perfectly time and time again. All in all it's a real change for economy when you change to Coward shoes for your boys and girls. Try and see.

THOUSANDS DEFY RAIN, SEEK CURE AT PRIEST'S GRAVE

Air Romance, Better Than "Chickie"

CHAPTER 1

PAT studied the picture in the magazine. It was of a man—young and attractive; the kind of delightful fellow Pat was now seeking, meant to find and meant to marry. The magazine man was dancing with a blonde full of "it." He would be, of course!

Being a mere demi brunette, Pat sighed and struck her brown elbows deep in the sands. She gave up to the delicious dream which the picture conjured.

She was a fiery young thing, with impudence and a pretty face. She knew what she wanted from this grand old world, and she had spunk enough to reach out and get it.

Just now, with the June sun on the lake and a song of wind in the trees, Pat contemplated her future. She made a sweet earth to suit her whim and she pecked at it entrancingly. Instead of awkward Peter Thompson for the boy friend, there were charming gallants—numbers of them—and they were all languishing for a kind glance from Miss Mary Patricia Dawn.

The blissful vision was interrupted by a hurry little hand stealing into the nearby lunch basket.

"Put it down," shouted the girl, springing bolt upright. "Mother, make him!"

The huge cream puff instantly disappeared into the mouth of a small red-haired urchin. He gave two alarming gulps and grinned. Pat glared at the little boy and at the recumbent figure of her mother.

"You think you're smart, I suppose! Now you'll stay out of the water till 5 o'clock. Mother, he's a perfect glutton. Why don't you make him obey?"

The hard young eyes accosted the mother sternly. Laura Dawn certainly didn't use her head. It was just a scandal the way she spoiled Mr. Dickie.

The very idea of allowing him to stuff like this! But, of course, if her mother wouldn't correct him—

Miss Pat removed her glaring indignation from her mother's face. She returned to her magazine. Something dangling from the fingers of the appealing blonde made her say, aggressively: "I think I'll take up smoking, mother."

"Do you?"

"Well—yes. I've been holding off for a decade on your account—to be a shining example. But since you wish to follow your own lights I've a mind to try out the fascinating sin."

The girl's extraordinary green eyes blazed. "You wouldn't! You'd be a sight. You'd look perfectly terrible. You'd just make"—the indignant torrent broke off, leaving the girl's mouth opened in horrified dismay.

"Mother—look! Is that Dickie? Oh, God!" With a piercing, importunate cry she flung to the water's edge. Suddenly her arm raised in terror.

Far out on the lake four boys were climbing the float. They were getting ready to dive. Dickie Dawn was first.

And in the shadow of a second before ever her frightened cry subsided, his small, brown body leaped through the air.

Pat's heart froze. She said to herself softly: "It's frightfully deep there." With a sudden, wild gesture, she sent her canoe skimming to the lake.

"Mother—quick!" And with white, set lips: "He's not come up."

The three little boys huddled together on the edge of the float.

The boat shot through the sun and silence—propelled with a still violence.

Neither girl nor mother spoke. Paddles moved with swift, awed intensity.

The three little boys were suddenly diving into the water. . . .

PRESENTLY they were sitting limp and raggy on the float. They made forlorn motions. When the canoe reached them they began talking all at once. They were very scared. "We can't find him. We dived and dived. Right there's where he struck. It's awful deep—we couldn't near reach bottom . . ."

Pat nodded. She slipped silently overboard and began working down into the clear, silky green depths.

She went down and down. She could see the clear, green ooze. She clawed about in it. There was no child buried here.

She struck against seaweed—masses of it—a jungle. She tore through one clump and came to another. In any of these tickets Dickie might be caught—might be hidden. She could never explore them all in time—God!—never get him out alive!

SHE came upon him. Upon his little inert body. With a sobbing prayer she pulled it from the dark, mushy earth. The lifeless arms flopped as she made her way upward.

Blur of sky. Blur of her mother's distracted face as she stopped and lifted the quiet form from Pat's fierce embrace.

She lay utterly hushed, utterly spent. Through a fog and the roar of her ears she heard voices. The little boys giving orders. "Turn

EXTRA POLICE AT MALDEN SHRINE

Other Graves Fenced Off as Thousands Kneel in Prayer at That of Priest

Once more today, standing and kneeling in drizzling rain, thousands of pilgrims visited the grave of the Rev. Patrick J. Power in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

So great was the crush extra police were called to the cemetery to control traffic and a fence was put around other graves to save them from damage.

Some of the pilgrims were in the cemetery at dawn, waiting for the rain to gather in the chalice atop the grave of the young priest who died 60 years ago after being ordained less than two years.

MANY ANOINTED

As fast as the chalice gathered even a few drops, praying men and women dipped their handkerchiefs into its vessel and anointed themselves or the crippled or infirm child or adult companions with them.

Long before noon the crowd was estimated by police at 3000 and they were 15 rows deep around the grave waiting for their turns at the chalice.

Although the ground was churned into ooze mud from the impress of many feet, most of the pilgrims knelt before the grave in the rain, unmindful of their clothing.

CRIPPLE'S FOURTH VISIT.

Making his fourth visit to the shrine in as many days was J. D. Moynihan, 29, of Lewis ave., Arlington, who has been crippled since childhood. With his brother, Moynihan knelt in the rain and prayed for nearly half an hour—then was taken home again. He declared he would visit the grave until a cure is effected.

After visiting the shrine, most of the pilgrims entered the cemetery chapel and prayed there also. The chapel has been reopened to accommodate the throngs, although it usually remains closed for the season after All Saints Day, November 1.

His Liabilities Are $632,750; Assets 0

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy showing liabilities of $632,750, all unsecured, and no assets, was filed in federal court today by Charles D. Malaguti, leather stamper, of 12 Blackwood st., Boston.

Principal unsecured creditors are Prudential Trust Co., care of John Hannigan, judgment disputed, $500,000; Atlantic National Bank, Boston, notes disputed $75,000, and First National Bank, Boston, notes disputed $50,000.

Quincy Fire Chief Honored on Return

Chief Alfred Mead of Quincy fire department returned to duty today after an illness of two months. He was presented a basket of chrysanthemums by Deputy Chief William Sands in behalf of officers and men.

Autoist Fined $100

After pleading guilty to operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor early today on Quincy Shore boulevard, Leland W. Hay of Foster st., Cambridge was fined $100 in Quincy court by Judge Albert Avery.

Goes to Hospital for Aid

Down on his luck, this airedale applied to the Boston City Hospital out-patient department for relief. He got food and place to sleep. Then he was sent to the Animal Rescue League, where he found a friend in Miss Margaret Chisholm, who is shown here with him. (Staff photo.)

VOTING DAY TO BE FAIR

Election day will be fair and colder in Boston. The official forecaster made this promise today for tomorrow. But late tomorrow the wind will become northwest and "summer," such as it is, will depart.

The forecaster also predicted it will continue cloudy all of today and that light rain will fall. It will be slightly colder tonight, he added.

During 24 hours Boston had nearly an inch of rainfall. Rainy weather prevails today in the Middle Atlantic States east of the Appalachian Mountains and westward along the Gulf Coast to Mobile Bay.

Although temperatures through out New England are slightly lower today than they were yesterday, they are still above the seasonal average in this section.

Snow flurries are expected tonight in eastern New York.

Bridge for Regis

Arrangements are being made for a whist bridge party to be held November 14 at Mt. St. Joseph Academy, Brighton, for the benefit of Regis College, Weston. One hundred prizes have been secured by the committee for the winners at cards.

WASHBURN HAS HIS SAY-SO

Robert M. Washburn of Boston, president of the Roosevelt Club, in a communication today to Candidate Frederick W. Mansfield, assured the Massachusetts Bar Association leader that he was not only the hope of the "butterflies of the Back Bay" but would carry South Boston as well.

Here is the Washburn letter:

"If venture to make a dispassionate contribution to this campaign, though you have done much to maintain its dignity. Out of its froth, the issues simmer down to two very simple ones.

"First, which of the three candidacies is the most a symbol of unselfish, intelligent service for the city? I believe that it is yours because of which you ought to win.

"Second will those who are out to give, equal in number at the polls those who are out to get, or, in other words, the patriots, the politicians? If they do, you are sure to win.

"Your cause has been sneezed at in substance, that you are the hope only of the butterflies of the Back Bay. Your cause is unique in that in your election you will also carry South Boston."

MAN IN FIGHT OVER GIRL HAS SKULL BROKEN

Two Youthful Brothers Held in $5000 in Cambridge "Hammer" Attack

A fight in Cambridge, early today over Miss Nora Ryan of 58 Washington st., that city, landed one man in a hospital with a fractured skull, said to have been caused by a hammer blow and two young men in Cambridge district court with assault with a dangerous weapon.

The victim is James Dupont of Prospect st., Cambridge, who is being treated at Cambridge Municipal Hospital.

Alfred and Louis Rossi, brothers, are under arrest. The former is 16 and the latter 23 years of age. Alfred gave a New York address, while Louis said he lived in Providence.

Arraigned in court the Rossis were held in $5000 each for hearing Nov. 16.

According to police the fight occurred in Washington sq., Cambridge, near Miss Ryan's home, in the presence of her brother.

The entire group had been in an apartment in 86 Devon st., Back Bay, and Miss Ryan and her brother were being driven home in an automobile when an argument arose as to whether one should return to Back Bay, according to police. The alleged assault grew out of the argument, they said.

5 TRUCKLOADS OF RUM SEIZED

In one of the biggest raids ever staged by Weymouth police, five truckloads of liquor, wines and beer were seized in South and East Weymouth; drinking parties broken up and summonses issued today against alleged proprietors of six places raided.

Numerous complaints had caused Chief Arthur Pratt to assign Capt. Edward S. Butler, Lieut. Charles W. Baker, Sergts. George Hunt and Ambrose Boyle, and 12 patrolmen to make the raids.

No inkling leaked out and the visits of the raiders, armed with axes, crowbars and sledge-hammers was a complete surprise.

Trucks were sent to transport the seized liquor to police headquarters. Applications for summonses were made against the following persons and places: George W. Blackburn and Percy H. Spring, Lakebrook rd.; Ferrer Benedetti and Francisco D. Laquale of Lake st., and Catherine Smith of Washington st., all in East Weymouth, and the Ann Lewis tea room, Main st., South Weymouth.

Dr. Cheney Speaks on League at Tufts

Dr. Alice S. Cheney, staff member of the Washington branch of the International Labor Office, speaks today on the work of the League of Nations through the labor office, under the auspices of the Tufts Historical Society.

Dr. Cheney is the daughter of Prof. Edward P. Cheney, of the University of Pennsylvania, and was at one time on the staff of the Massachusetts Commission on Minimum Wage Boards and the Federal Children's Bureau. More recently she had been on the staff of the International Labor Office at Geneva and has taught at Bryn Mawr.

HOLD PARLEY ON GAS RATES

Various complex rate schedules were discussed at a conference today between officials of the West Boston Gas Company, representatives of customers seeking a reduction, and the public utilities commission at the State House.

Present were Frank H. Golding, vice president, and DeWitt Clinton, treasurer, New England Gas and Electric Association, LaRue Brown, counsel for Framingham customers, members of the commission, and Samuel H. Mildram, public utility expert.

Among the rate structures talked over were:

A 50 cent service charge; 30 cents a hundred cubic feet for the first 600 feet and $1.25 a thousand cubic feet for all in excess.

The company, it is understood, will report back showing how any schedule will affect the customers.

Stolen Kisses Valued at $25 Each Out Newton Way

The price of a stolen kiss was set at $25 today in Newton, when Judge William Day ascertained that fine on Edward Kerr, a tailor, of Gilbert st., West Newton.

According to testimony by Mrs. William Asby, 24, of Westchester rd., Lyn stole the kiss from her after delivering a dress she had left at his shop to be cleaned and pressed.

Lyn denied the charge, declaring he had placed his hand on the young matron's shoulder. He appealed.

HER FINGERS BROKEN IN BATTLE

Thug Also Gives South Boston Victim a Bad Beating

A fiend forced his way into the sleeping chamber of Caroline D. Carlile, 59, of E st., South Boston today, gave the woman a frightful beating and escaped.

The woman, with the fingers of both hands broken, was found by neighbors who rushed to her cry, in response to her screams of pain.

She was rushed to City Hospital while the police of South Boston stations combed the entire district for the assailant.

She told the police she was awakened when the intruder seized her. When she fought back, she said, he seized her fingers and bent them backwards until they snapped.

During the struggle according to what police were able to glean from her, the man struck the woman several times with his fists.

Two brother neighbors were taken into custody today in connection with the beating. They are Joseph Athens st., South Boston station, as suspects.

According to police, the brothers, one 20 and the other 22 years old, live in the same street. After being taken into custody they were grilled at the station.

In a bureau drawer the woman told Inspector Hennessey she had a watch and $11.35 in cash. They were left undisturbed. Police believe, however, that the motive was theft.

FOSS AND DAVIS IN DRY TALKS

"Don't be afraid of the drinking laymen in your churches."

This was the advice of Arthur H. Davis, secretary of the Anti-Saloon League, to a meeting of Baptist clergymen in Chipman hall today.

Davis urged greater energy on the part of clergymen toward helping the enforcement of prohibition. He advised a strong attitude despite the indifference of many church members who use intoxicating liquor.

Another speaker was Eugene N. Foss, former Governor, who told the position that the "thinking liquor should be regarded, respected and be legally with self-respect."

Foss quoted figures of one [illegible] when he was Governor [illegible] ago. He said that out of the prisoners at Charles town [illegible] were there on account of liquor and that [illegible] a man [illegible] who had been [illegible] per cent.

The [illegible] football game, scheduled for Braves Field this afternoon, has been postponed for the second time. No date for the game has been set.

A doubleheader, with Memorial playing Jamaica Plain and Mechanic Arts meeting Commerce, has been called off. Memorial will play Jamaica Plain at Braves Field on Thursday.

The Memorial-St. Clifton game scheduled for Thursday at the Wigwam, has been cancelled.

Quincy Woman, Hit by Street Car, Dying

Mrs. William Walker, 41, of 288 Quincy ave., Quincy, is dying in Weymouth Hospital from a fractured skull, suffered when she was struck by a street car while crossing Quincy ave.

Two Go to Sleep in Europe, Wake Up to Land in Hub

"We fell asleep and then landed in America."

That's how two stowaways on a British coal ship who arrived in Boston today, described an unintentional sea journey from Constantinople.

Mohammed Ahmed Mayon, 19, and Mohammed Cassin Ahmen, 31, told immigration authorities of becoming tired while loading coal on the steamship Warisby in Turkey. The men lay down in the hold for a nap and woke up many miles at sea.

They will be deported to Turkey.

CANTER TRIAL BARES NEW FACTS IN SACCO-VANZETTI PLEA

SAY FULLER WAS TOLD OF PREJUDICE

Knew Adviser Had Said He Was Against Pardon for Man

Hitherto unpublished features of the long fight that failed to save Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti from the electric chair were revealed today before the full bench of the Supreme Court.

The most interesting was the fact that William G. Thompson, counsel for the condemned men, protested to Governor Fuller when he learned that Judge Robert Grant was to be the third member of the Governor's Sacco-Vanzetti advisory committee.

Thompson told Governor Fuller he understood from John Wigmore that in conversation with Judge Grant the latter had indicated prejudice against Sacco and Vanzetti and indicated also that the courts should be sustained regardless of other considerations.

TESTIMONY IN TRIAL

The disclosure was contained in testimony given at the jury trial of Harry J. Canter of South Boston during the absence of the jury from the courtroom.

Canter was tried and found guilty of defaming Governor Fuller by carrying a poster, "Fuller—Murderer of Sacco and Vanzetti." He was sentenced to a year, four months of which he has served, and the record of the case, including the evidence which the jury did not hear, was placed before the supreme court on exceptions.

The record submitted by Canter's counsel contains more than 100 pages, and is chiefly concerned with the efforts of Thompson to have Governor Fuller pardon the slayers.

ARGUES WITH FULLER

Thompson told Gov. Fuller that if Vanzetti had had an education he would have been a professor at Harvard and that he could no more have committed murder than could Phillips Brooks.

The lawyers' counsel conferred with Gov. Fuller regarding certain remarks alleged to have been made by Judge Webster Thayer, Sacco trial justice, and called the governor's attention to the statement of a Dartmouth professor that he had heard Judge Thayer remark before a large gathering, "Did you see what I did to those anarchistic ——?"

"I said: 'Do you think Governor, when that sort of thing comes to be appreciated that the thing has been said by a judge of the Superior Court about two men on trial for their lives, one of them a married man with two small children—do you think you will get away with it?' When you do not even tell me whether Judge Thayer admitted or denied that and when I did not know how to argue about it?"

"I said so to President Lowell (also of the advisory committee), and President Lowell said to me, 'You may argue it first on the theory that he admitted it and then you may argue it on the assumption that he denied it.'

"I said: 'If this matter was not so serious it would be a farce.'"

John P. Monte of the Banking Commission, who also testified in the absence of the jury in the Canter trial, said that Fuller told him, "These people who have talked with me would not dare say it in public because of the fear of violence."

The governor, asked it was testified, whether Vanzetti would grant a waiver to Attorneys Vahey and Graham, who defended him in the early trial, so they could tell their stories.

Vanzetti gave the waiver to Thompson on the condition that Thompson or some friend of his be present when the meeting is reviewed Graham and Vahey. Thompson informed Governor Fuller of this condition and was never present at any such interview he testified.

Thompson also told the Governor that Vanzetti has never withheld either Vahey or Graham and believed they were allied with Massachusetts attorneys.

Here Comes the Bride!

GOGGIN LASHES SOUTH BOSTON BOOTLEGS

Charges Them With Responsibility for Several Murders and Other Crimes

The good name of historic South Boston, which was played a prominent part in the affairs of this city since before the Revolution, is being blackened by a handful of lawless men, according to Thomas E. Goggin, candidate for the City Council.

While pointing out that the mass of the residents of the district are decent, honest and law-abiding, Goggin, former election commissioner, is mightily demanding a removal of the alleged sore spots.

The Boston Evening American publishes herewith another chapter of the charges made by Goggin.

This newspaper is not endorsing the candidacy of Goggin, but believes that the charges should be brought to the attention of the respectable citizenry of South Boston, and either sustained or refuted.

CHARGES MURDERS

Because dominance of the gangs, and the flood of illicit money which they are able to produce, always even if apprehended are able to obtain freedom according to Goggin.

"In addition to the numerous killings caused by poison liquor the candidate said, "against which the clergy have protested in vain, there were three killings in the district which have never been properly solved, and honest people demand, be known.

"The liquor barons are behind all these crimes, but they are all-powerful and no one ever molests them.

"Sometimes their hirelings are caught, and even now and then sent to jail, but the big bootleggers go calmly on their way. They've got too much money and influence to be bothered and the sacrifice the young men they have ruined when a sacrifice is necessary.

GOT $10,000 OFFER

"They have offered me some of their money if I would 'lay off.' That was before threats were made. A prominent attorney made me an offer of $10,000 and then asked me what I wanted. I told him I wanted a square deal and honest government for the people, and he said I was daffy.

The king bootleggers are in control to such an extent that there are murders galore and no one is brought to justice. On Police Commissioner Wilson's own statement five lawyers handle practically all the criminal cases in the courts and there are few convictions.

"One of the bootleg barons founded his fortune on white slavery and drugs, and he is now trying to get out of the racket and become respectable but they won't let him.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO HANNAUER

That New England has suffered a big loss in the death of President George F. Hannauer of the Boston & Maine Railroad was the assertion today of Redfield Proctor, president of the New England Council and former governor of Vermont. Mr Hannauer was a leading member of New England Council.

Mr. Proctor's statement follows:

"New England has suffered a great loss in the death of George F. Hannauer, late president of the Boston & Maine Railroad. Himself a Western man, he had great faith in New England which he continually expressed by both word and deed. His example was an inspiration to individuals and communities for the further development of New England.

Under his leadership as chairman of the committee of New England railroad presidents, a new era was clearly evident in the report which Mr. Hannauer presented to the council on behalf of his committee. His loss will be felt especially in connection with New England's consideration of the various proposals that have been made for the consolidation of our rail roads."

AIRPORT NOT READY FOR BIG SHIPS

Huge Fokker Finds Ample Room, but Other Planes Must Give Clearance

By GEORGE W. HAMBLIN

Well, the Boston Municipal Airport at Jefferies Point, East Boston, was tested by the nation's largest passenger carrying airplane, and came through the test with flying colors.

And by that we mean that the Fokker F-32, all four motors of it, hopped over from New York, and flew all afternoon Saturday, carrying 25 passengers at a crack, besides a crew of four. Every takeoff was made before more than half the field was used, and every landing accomplished without washing for more than the existing field.

There was a bit of a rub, however, from the other planes that were using the airport, carrying on the usual Saturday's business. The Fokker could not be "cut off" as it was approaching the airport for a landing, because a big job like that needs a long approach and a clear field in front of it.

While the boys in all the other planes were more than courteous to the giant air liner, it was felt by several officials that the present Boston Airport, while twice as large as it was a year ago, will be used exclusively for taxiing planes in the future.

"We have a large field now, compared to what it was 12 months ago, but until we get the place fully developed, and by that I mean filling the flats all around, we will use this present airport for no other purposes than that of taxiing for position to take off," quoted Airport Super Albert "Eddie" Edson.

And that best describes the situation as it stands now.

MOTORS IN TANDEM

Let's take a few minutes and have a look at this Fokker. As we have said before, in open admiration for a new plane.

Believing that a large cabin transport of the future will not have any of its motors in the fuselage, Tony Fokker, the designer and builder of the craft, thought his four Pratt and Whitney engines, each developing 525 horsepower, would work very nicely in tandem, one pulling and the other pushing, providing the forward motor had a standard two-bladed propeller and the rear had a tractor-bladed air screw.

Thus the F-32 has all its power plant installed out on each side of the cabin, with the gas tanks, holding 700 gallons, in the wings directly above the motors.

As one climbs into the cabin by either one of the two side doors, one walks, head unstooped, in it. one is six feet tall, into the rear of the three compartments. This cabin, finished in mahogany-brown upholstery, seats 15 passengers. Each chair, of the Pullman-backed variety is so well padded that one would like to have a similar chair in one's office.

Then comes a small compartment, to be used as we should judge, by the stewards, when the plane is in regular service. Immediately after this comes the middle passenger cabin, finished, chairs walls and ceiling, in nile green, and seating eight passengers.

Then the forward cabin, seating seven passengers, and finished in orange-brown. Directly in front is a small metal ladder, leading up to the two pilots' chairs. This pilots' compartment is, at once, the most complicated and the simplest we have ever seen. Four motors require four separate sets of instruments, and when you have close to forty gauges to watch, you have something to do.

However, the more fact that the job will carry 32 people when two more seats are added, and a crew of four, means that this is no buggy that come through according to the designers calculations.

RAIN SPOILS BUSINESS

With all the planes shined up and ready for the line and a big day's work, the equal if not a little better than last Saturday, Old Man Jupe Pluvius came along, with his rain bucket and put a crimp in everybody's expectations.

Frank LeMan sales manager for East Coast Aircraft Corp., disclosed the fact that Boston will have a Loening Commuter amphibian within the next few weeks.

Clear Road for 300 Feet Required for Passing

Section 3 (Rule E.—The driver of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass another vehicle proceeding in the same direction upon any hill or any curve in the highway where the driver's view along the highway is obstructed within a distance of 300 feet, unless the highway is divided into four or more lanes and the overtaking and passing can be completed without driving to the left of the center of said highway, and further provided that the driver of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass another vehicle at any place where official highway signs have been erected prohibiting such passing."

(F)—"The driver of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass any vehicle proceeding in the same direction at any steam or electric railway grade crossing, unless permitted to do so by a police officer."

By DR. MILLER McCLINTOCK
Traffic Expert, Department of Public Works

Hills and curves in highways have been particularly productive of traffic accidents due to the fact that a driver's vision is limited. To all intents and purposes a hill restricts a driver's view just as much as a curve. Drivers can never safely drive on the left side of highways where they are unable to see traffic coming in the opposite direction for a reasonable distance. Paragraph (E) therefore prohibits overtaking, where it necessitates driving upon the left side of the highway at hills or curves.

Paragraph (F) prohibits overtaking movements at railway crossings. Where such overtaking is practiced it is impossible for drivers to have an adequate view of railroad tracks

Dr. McClintock will comment daily on the new highway rules in the columns of the Boston Evening American

MANSFIELD HAS 'VIGILANTES' FOR POLLS

Appeal for Him to Name Supervisors Comes Too Late, Says Allen

A vigilance committee has been formed by the Mansfield forces to guard against repeating at the polls in certain sections of the city in tomorrow's mayoralty election.

Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., chairman of the Mansfield Campaign Committee, revealed this precautionary move after unsuccessful attempt to get Gov Allen to appoint state supervisors.

The Governor informed Parkman and Election Commissioner Patrick H. O'Connor, the latter having accompanied Parkman to the State House, that the request for supervisors came too late that under the law it should have been made 21 days before election.

Parkman then issued this statement:

"I discussed with the Governor certain matters in connection with the Boston mayoralty election in the interest of making certain that the true choice of the voters is registered at the polls.

"The Governor's power in a city election is limited to the appointment of supervisors of elections on request of ten voters 21 days before election day.

"Mr. Mansfield tells our committee that certain his interests will be protected by the Boston police stationed at the polls so far as is in their power; but in certain sections of the city where the committee has reason to believe attempts at tampering will be made, a vigilance committee has been formed to provide watchers who will insure an honest election."

HUGGER' SUSPECT IS FREED WHEN GIRL FAILS TO IDENTIFY HIM

FIGHTS OFF ATTACKER, FLEES

She Helps Dorchester Police Comb Section, Then Points Out Wrong Man

Police of station 11 today released a man at first suspected by Miss Ella Tobin, 17, of Leroy st., Dorchester, of being the "hugger" who attacked her near her home early today.

This man furnished an alibi which satisfied the police he was innocent of the attack. Miss Tobin was unable to state positively that he was the man, although she said he was dressed in clothes identical with those the attacker wore.

Miss Tobin was within 50 feet of her home when the attempt was made to seize her, and only a short distance from the spot where another woman had been attacked a few days previously.

WRENCHES AWAY

The girl told police she was returning home from a party and had a young man escort her to within a block of the house. As she turned into Leroy st. she said a man stepped out of the shadow and caught her by the arm. She wrenched free and ran, screaming.

Afraid to approach her own home, Miss Tobin said she met a man and woman in Ditson st., to whom she appealed for protection. The man said he would escort her home and in the meantime he telephoned the police.

When police arrived, Miss Tobin joined them in the search for the "hugger" and almost at exactly the spot where the alleged attack took place she pointed out a man she said looked like her assailant. The police took her home and the suspect to the police station. After being questioned, he was released as not being the man who attempted to attack Miss Tobin.

TO GUARD DISTRICT

"When the stranger tried to grab me I ran away from my home instead of toward it because I was afraid he would intercept me," said the girl. "I crossed the street and he followed me, but when I recrossed I thought I had given him the slip. Almost in front of my house, however, he again tried to seize me and I ran in the opposite direction, screaming for help."

Police will be on the watch nights in the district to greet the marauder if he puts in appearance again.

She Foils "Petter Terror" in Battle

COUNTESS SAYS SHE IS 'IT' IN POLITICS

Wants New Election Because She Wasn't Here in Time to Elect Smith

Countess Ida von Claussen, several times married, once arrested, once incarcerated and released, attempted to file a petition in federal court today calling for a new presidential election because the last was illegal.

The countess, an international figure, who once tried to sue Theodore Roosevelt for $1,000,000, requested that the court determine whether or not the law or corrupt politics rules the United States.

She named as defendants President Hoover, nearly all Protestant bishops, many prominent Europeans, nearly all American ambassadors abroad, charging them all with treason.

The petition recited that while the countess was in Europe prior to the presidential election, she was prevented from returning to vote for Gov. Alfred E. Smith by the larceny of her passports by Italian officials.

Had she been here to talk for Gov. Smith he would have been elected, she avers. Because she couldn't be here, the election was illegal, and she wants is set aside and a new one ordered.

The petition didn't get very far. A court clerk glanced it over, and declared it outside the court's jurisdiction.

Counter von Claussen is living at a Back Bay hotel with her two dogs.

TRIPPI ENTERS DEATH HOUSE THIS WEEK

Fitchburg Slayer Scheduled to Die in Electric Chair Week After Next

With his execution scheduled for two weeks from tonight, Charles Tripp, Jr., of Fitchburg, who, in an attempt to break out of State prison on Armistice Day, 1928, shot and killed a guard, is expected to be placed in the death-house before the end of the present week.

Tripp is at present in the Cherry Hill section of the prison, where he was removed, contrary to the usual custom, from the Charles st. jail almost immediately after sentence of death was passed on him Sept. 13 by Judge Wilford Gray in Suffolk County Superior Court. The law is that a condemned prisoner shall be transferred from jail to prison 10 days before the beginning of the week of execution.

It became known that Tripp's removal from the Charles st. jail had caused Warden Hogsett to confer with Attorney-General Warner regarding the man's status, and that it was finally decided that it was legal to keep him in the Cherry Hill section until the time for him to be placed in the death house, which will probably be Thursday of the present week.

"MY FOOD FELT LIKE A LUMP OF LEAD IN MY STOMACH"

Cohasset Man in Poor Health the Past Year; Bon-Tone Relieved Stomach Trouble and Dizzy Spells

The real test of any medicine is "Does it make good." Our files are filled with thousands of statements from grateful users of Bon-Tone, who feel it their duty to suffering humanity to tell of the great good they have received from this wonderful remedy made of Mother Nature's Healing Herbs. Why be troubled with disorders of the Stomach and Liver, and Bowels, when Nature has provided a remedy. Do not believe that a medicine that has done so much for others can do as much for you?

Mr. Howard N. Barnes of North Main street, Cohasset, Mass., states: "For the past year I was troubled with my stomach. My food did not seem to digest at all, but just seemed to lie in my stomach and ferment—it felt like a lump of lead lying there. Another very disagreeable thing I suffered from was cold sores—I also had a very bad case of Constipation. These troubles caused me to get run down easily and I had no appetite. I [illegible] advised in the matter, so I bought some, and I certainly am certainly wonderfully pleased with the four bottles that I have used. My food now digests properly and I very seldom have any [illegible] time, and my bowel movement is regular. When I consider the trouble I have had for the past year and the relief I have obtained from four bottles of Bon-Tone, I am only too pleased to recommend this remedy and would absolutely advise anyone with stomach or liver trouble to try it, as I am positive they will get results.

Call on Mr. Ryan, the Bon-Tone man, who is meeting the public daily at Epstein Drug Store, Scollay Square, Boston. Have him tell you why this medicine has become the sensation of the drug trade and a household word all through New England. Bon-Tone is also for sale in Cambridge at Cole Drug Store, 636 Mass. Ave., Central Square, and in South Boston at John S. Austin's Drug Store, 436 Broadway, Perkins Square.

STATE TO HAVE MILLION CARS

Massachusetts automobile registrations may pass the million mark this year for the first time, advance estimates indicate.

Up to Sept. 30, with thousands still unregistered, the number had reached 966,580. This is a gain of 15 per cent over last year. As the gain during October, November and December last year was nearly 50,000, all that the state needs to pass the million mark in the next several weeks is about 34,000 of the expected normal increase of 50,000.

Thus far this year 113,225 persons have been licensed to drive.

Jack Donahue's Story of Boyhood in Charlestown

By JACK DONAHUE

I've always taken a lot of pride in my home town, Charlestown, Mass., and I guess you do, too, unless you're English and don't like to bring up that Bunker Hill affair. People come from far and near to see the Monument which stands something like 225 feet above the ground. As a neighborhood boy

I'm ashamed to admit that I never did get inside this memorial—I was always too busy.

As a pupil in the Harvard Grammar school, named after the Cambridge Harvard (because it was so different) it was part of our regular class routine to go in a body to the Monument once a week and amid the historic surroundings to learn more of our country and its traditions.

However, I immediately found a way to fail out of line as we went marching to the Hill, and by simply taking a right face while the rest of the class was doing a left face at a certain corner, I would be free to amuse myself to the best of my imagination, and what an imagination I had!

At school, I may have not been a model pupil, but I gave my teachers very little worry. I wasn't there often enough. I was an entire career for the local truant officer. The only subject I cared anything about at all was recess. I did take quite an interest in geography; in fact they had to remove me from freight cars on several occasions while starting off to investigate conditions around the country.

When I finally did limp, stagger and grope through eight years of prescribed to elementary education and they gave me the good old piece of near-parchment, the school authorities must have mopped their noble brows and sighed gently in relief.

CAREERS WERE SIMPLE

In Charlestown in those days, the youth gave little thought to the future. There was no such talk among the parents as "I wonder what we'll do with little Jack? We should be helping him to decide what career he'll follow." Little Jack was going to be either a fighter or a hoofer and try and step him. With such a local hero as John L. Sullivan to fan our imaginations it was only natural that most of us had a desire to be fighters, but I never did get past the desire stage.

I soon found I had a glass jaw and a sweet disposition and went right into my dance. Even in the classroom I was constantly tapping on the floor with my feet; all in perfect rhythm until the teacher would rap for order and then the discord would follow.

They had a very ingenious device in the grammar school for punishing the children, a hand-slapping machine which consisted of six revolving rattan sticks operated by a crank, or rather a couple of cranks, one of which was on the machine.

It seems a pity that the man who designed this device would not turn his attentions to some really worth-while invention, such as a real good back-scratching machine, working on the same principle.

Charlestown is a very old town it must be. It takes a long time for anything to get that tough. I remember we moved up to New Hampshire for several years during which time I had learned to like the nicer things in life, such as Eton jackets and manly little derbies. When we came back to Charlestown to live, I determined to swing my little playmates over to my advanced views—we would all be Lord Fauntleroys.

My friends broke seven of my derbies before they finally convinced me that I was all wrong. They had lost confidence in me and I realized that I would have to do something big to be taken back to the fold. And so, boasting, I told them what I had really been doing since I saw them was taking horses on trains and delivering them to the Far West, Worster (Worcester, Mass.) 44 miles away to be exact. They were not impressed. I could not have been convincing.

"Well," I said, "I'll tell you what I'll do. I've got to run a load of them down to the yards this afternoon. Come on down and watch me."

STUNT NOT APPRECIATED

This was more like it. The proposition was snapped up. Just as if I knew what I was doing I led the gang down to the Fox Baking Co.'s stables, led out six assorted truck horses and started them on the long march down to the Boston & Maine freight yards.

And so the strange procession moved slowly through the streets with my little audience right in the palm of my hand. Arriving in the yards, I left the horses under a shed and explained to the boys that I would drop back later and put them on the cars. But murder will out, and believe me it must be murder to go around in the middle of the night looking for lost horses. They came and got me at the house, and I met the fate of all horse-thieves. I got the rope but not around the neck.

But I kept right on dancing in spite of the many obstacles that loom up in the path of the young artist in any line—the cops who chased us off the corners, the brakemen who dropped us from dancing on the flat cars in the yards.

When I go back home, I often walk past St. John's Episcopal Church and look at the old bulkhead on which I danced by the hour, a bulkhead being a wooden block which raised to allow coal to be put into a building and provided an excellent dancing surface.

A nightly pastime was to go down to Austin st., across the way from the Massachusetts State Prison noon, Come on down and watch and dance for the prisoners, who would stand at the windows. They made a very good audience and one you knew couldn't walk out on you. But at 9 o'clock they put the lights out on them and it was still the shank of the evening for us, ten-year-old men about town that we were.

But we were not really bad boys. We didn't smoke. That is not whole cigarettes. We never used matches, as we considered it bad sportsmanship to pick up a cigarette that wasn't still lit and they had to be at least a half-inch long—otherwise, we'd throw them back.

Another very choice spot for hoofing was the potato shed at the freight yards, affording several hundreds of square feet of splintered surface, and there was always the ice house for those who preferred a nice wet floor.

They don't allow any Sunday dancing in Massachusetts but we even found away around that. They used to let us work out on the quarterdecks of the battleships at the Navy Yard. They would put us on during their entertainment, and would even feed us and treat us like real guests.

And the best part of it was we were on federal ground, above the cops and the local law. In spite in our ambition there was little chance of holding us back. But they did make it hard for us—and so perhaps you will excuse a chuckle of inner satisfaction when I reflect that many of these same lubbers of youth's young dreams have laid down $5.50 at the box office to see some of these same boys do the same things, only polished up—AND LOVE IT!

Martha Lee Women's Club Growing Fast

AND still they come! More—many more—applications for the new issue of membership cards in the Martha Lee Women's Club.

And the office staff is working overtime sending the card and registered club number to all who apply, together with a complimentary package of new and interesting recipes leaflets.

Every girl or woman in New England, from 16 to 106—or over—is eligible for membership in New England's largest woman's organization. Over 33,000 representative New England homemakers and their daughters are at present registered in this interesting club of no-dues, but many privileges, and scores more are joining every day.

The privileges of the club are many. The obligations none—other than upholding the ideal of our club, whose platform is Better Homes, Better Food, Better Cooking, Better Clothing, Better Reading, Better Buying, Better Thrift, Better Times, Better Vacations and Better Womanhood.

Club members of the Martha Lee Women's Club have their own club room and classroom on the fifth floor of the Boston American building at 5 Winthrop sq. This is also the home of the Martha Lee Cooking Classes, held on Tuesday evenings for brides and business girls, and Wednesday afternoons for homemakers. (Visitors always welcomed to both classes.) In the club-room will be found the newest of kitchen equipment, display cases of approved food products and recipe rack filled to overflowing with free leaflets of reliable recipes.

If you live too far away to come to the clubroom personally, Martha Lee will welcome you as one of her thousands of correspondents. You may consult her by letter on any of your household problems and she will give you her very best assistance, whether it is a special diet for your runabout or a menu for the next church supper.

Your membership card will also entitle you to take part in various club activities which are announced from time to time. Hadn't you better send for your card today?

This Economical But Delicious Carrot Pudding Wins $5 Prize for Rhode Island Woman

INGREDIENTS:

One c. Cerosota flour, 1 c. granulated Domino sugar, 1 c. raw carrot, grated, 1 c. potato, grated ½ c. melted Brookfield butter, 1 tsp. Arm & Hammer soda, ½ c seedless Sjucura raisins, ½ c. Sycure currants, ½ tsp. Slade's cloves, ½ tsp. Slade's cinnamon and ½ tsp. Slade's nutmeg

METHOD

Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Add the fruit and nuts well. Add the butter, carrots and potato, in which the soda has been mixed. Stir well. Put in greased mold and steam three hours. Serve with hard sauce. This recipe serves eight.

Mrs. Sara F. Haskard of 75 Harris ave., Woonsocket, R. I., sends the above recipe for carrot pudding, which is awarded this week's prize of $5. Made now, wrapped in heavy wax paper and stored until Thanksgiving, this pudding provides a richly delicious Thanksgiving dessert at a fraction of the usual cost of ordinary plum pudding, and never will you suspect that there is a potato or carrot concealed in its spicy midst.

Just a suggestion—in making the hard sauce, don't be economical on the butter. All-too-often hard sauce seems to be mostly rough, granulated sugar, held together with a scanty bit of butter and nondescript flavoring. Since you've saved money on the pudding, why not splurge a little on the hard sauce? A generous half cup of soft butter to 2 c. of confectioner's sugar and a big tbsp. of brandy flavoring is good proportion for a mouth-watering sauce. Beat the sugar into the softened butter until it is a fluffy creamy mass. A pinch of salt seems to bring out the brandy flavoring. (And, of course, you know that you can get brandy, sherry or Roman punch flavorings at your grocer's.) And, if you want to send your pudding to the table lighted in the good old-fashioned way, did you know that a thimbleful of vanilla inserted in the top of the pudding will blaze merrily and impressively?

Until further notice a weekly prize of $5 will be awarded to the woman sending in the best recipe in which one or more food products advertised in the Boston Evening American are mentioned by their trade names. Only reliable products are advertised in these columns and we are anxious to have our women friends familiar with them.

You probably have a recipe that is as reliable, economical and tasty as Mrs. Haskard's. Why not send it in today? A nice crisp check for $5 would come in very handy towards the Thanksgiving bird wouldn't it?

Shredded Wheat Great to Keep System Clean

HEALTH, we all know, is largely a matter of nutrition. It has been well said that "what we eat today runs around tomorrow." And because nearly all the ills that human flesh is heir to may be placed to excessive eating of the wrong kind of food, it certainly behooves us to "look to our mutton."

No one can lay down hard and fast rules for everybody. It depends upon the woman's temperament and her daily employment whether she should eat light, easy digestible food, such as clear soup, eggs, milk, chops, green vegetables and fruits, suitable to the woman of sedentary life, or plentifully of foods rich in proteins, such as roast beef, baked beans, peas and cheese.

But one thing is certain, and that is that the human animal must eat some roughage to serve as a brush to keep the system clean and prevent self-poisoning. Nature provides this brush in cellulose. You can't buy it in a brush factory, but you will find it in nearly all carbohydrate foods, such as spinach, wheat, lettuce, cabbage, string beans, celery, turnips, all the greens and most of the fruits.

In the popular breakfast food shredded wheat biscuits—you get the cellulose that is necessary and you get it combined with the rich nutritive elements of the whole grain. There is no substitute for these shredded wheat biscuits.

They stand unique among cereal foods, not only because of their shredded or filamentic character but because of the fact that they are made in biscuit form. The little loaves are of such a size and form that makes them adaptable to all sorts of combinations with fresh or preserved fruits, or creamed meats or creamed vegetables.

In the case of fruits, the porous shreds readily absorb and neutralize the fruit acids, holding their natural flavor and adding much to their wholesomeness and palpability. Even people who cannot eat strawberries fresh from the vines without stomach distress are able to fully enjoy them in combination with shredded wheat biscuits and cream. The same is true with other acid fruits, whether raw or preserved.

We have for you today an apple charlotte with shredded wheat which makes an unusually wholesome dessert.

APPLE CHARLOTTE

8 medium-sized tart apples.
4 shredded wheat biscuits.
3 cups water.
½ cup sugar
½ tsp. nutmeg.
4 level tbsp. butter.

Wash, pare and quarter the apples, put in a saucepan with water and sugar and stew slowly, covered, till tender. Then add nutmeg and mix thoroughly. Split the biscuits lengthwise, dip the bottom halves in 2 tbsp melted butter. Butter a pudding dish and place the dipped halves in the dish on bottom and sides. Turn in the prepared apples.

Cover with the tops of the biscuit, on which put bits of butter. Cover and bake one hour. Serve with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored.

A Versatile Seasoning

WHEN you think of making the dressing for the Sunday chicken naturally you think of poultry seasoning, but when you think of poultry seasoning do you think only of dressing? If so, you are overlooking many delicious dishes that owe their zest to the seasoning, that makes good foods taste better.

For instance, there is a casserole of lamb seasoned with dressing that will serve six at a cost of 85 cents. The recipe is yours, of course, upon request. Then there is a splendid meat loaf and cassarole of rice and meat, and a special stuffing for fish.

These you may be familiar with, but I wonder how many of you have ever tried a prune stuffing for roast ducks seasoned with poultry dressing?

Some Sunday Specials of Easy-to-Make Bread

FAMILY hungry for "something different" in the line of breads? Then why not treat them to the following recipes for "special occasion" breads?

They are easy to make and mighty easy to eat. And as wholesome as they are delicious—especially if you use the same kind of unbleached flour that we do in the Martha Lee Kitchen. (If you haven't happened to notice, I'll whisper the name—by mail.)

ORANGE NUT BREAD

A sweet bread suitable for the tea table. If baked in pound baking powder tins, this bread can be sliced daintily with no waste of crust.

Put into a bowl 2 tbsps. of sugar, 1 tsp. of salt, and 1 cup scalded milk. When lukewarm add 1 yeast cake dissolved in ¼ cup of lukewarm water and 1¼ cups each of white flour and graham flour; then add 1-3 cup of pecan nut meats and 2-3 cup of candied orange peel, both put through the meat chopper. Beat well with a spoon and let rise, down, and fill buttered baking powder tins 1-3 full. Let rise and bake in a moderate oven.

RYE BREAD WITH CARAWAY

Put into a mixing bowl 1 tbsp. of sugar, ¾ tsp. of salt, and ½ tbsp. each of butter and lard. Pour over ½ cup of scalded milk and ½ cup of boiling water. When lukewarm add 1 yeast cake dissolved in 2 tbsps. of lukewarm water, 1 cup white flour and enough rye flour to knead (about 2 cups, using more if necessary). Let rise, add 2 tsps. of caraway seeds, knead, shape, let rise, and bake.

PECAN ROLLS

Make a rich bread dough and when light roll out thin. Brush over with melted butter, sprinkle with brown sugar and chopped pecan nut meats. Roll up like jelly roll, and slice. Each slice should be 1¼ inches in diameter. Butter small cake tins which are made like muffin pans and sprinkle each section with a little brown sugar and a few nut meats. Put in the slices; let rise until light and bake. The sugar in the pan will melt and caramelize. The rolls may be baked in a large dripping pan, placing them close together but are not so dainty.

Pop-Corn Days Here

WHEN the cider season rolls round, my mind always turns to pop corn—that wholesome cereal food that's perennially popular with young and old. Here's a recipe for Pop-Corn Balls that's making real money for a popular confectionery shop:

POP-CORN BALLS

1 c. molasses, 1 tbsp. vinegar, 4 qts. popped corn.

Cook molasses and vinegar until brittle when tried in cold water. Pour over large puffy grains of popped corn. When cool enough to handle, butter hands and shape into balls or flat round cakes.

My suggestion in this recipe would be to use a good old-fash ioned molasses made from the pure juice of West Indies sugar cane, fully ripened and producing molasses of unequalled flavor and color. It is the kind we use in the Martha Lee School, because we know it contains no sulphur dioxide, preservative, or other foreign substance to give the burning, bitter taste found in some molasses.

We are particular about our pop corn, too, using the only kind we know that's hulless, specially processed and hermetically sealed in time. It's guaranteed to pop, too. And, by the way, remember you don't need a special corn popper for popping corn. A big covered frying pan will answer every purpose.

Any Spots to Remove?

NO MATTER how carefully we try to be, isn't it discouraging the way spots and perspiration stains mysteriously appear to ruin the fresh appearance of our favorite frocks?

And all-too-often attempts to remove these spots at home prove unsuccessful even disastrous—unless you are already acquainted with a perfect powder cleanser.

This very evening will find me rubbing this powder into the neck of a fairly new frock which has become soiled from wearing a fur scarf. And I know before I start that the results will be entirely satisfactory. I will place the section of the dress to be cleaned over a towel and then sift on enough of this wonderful powder cleanser to cover the soiled area.

Then I will turn it over and put another layer of the powder on the other side of the material. Next I take the dress up and rub the powdered parts together and then brush off with a dry cloth.

M F—I have a few free samples of this magic powder that I'll be glad to send to anyone on request.

Cool Weather Dishes Here

WITH the return of cooler weather the heavier meal is restored to popularity. Roasts and the meat courses generally assume a greater share of importance. Salads, always popular, assume the duty of balancing heavier foods. Desserts are more substantial. The body has greater demands placed on its supply of heat and energy in water and needs more fuel as a result.

Heavy meals, however, place a greater burden of responsibility on the menu maker striving to give her family a balanced ration.

Fruits are your chief ally in this important problem. They may be used with great success throughout the meal, bringing out a flavor here, supplying needed flavor there adding a note of refinement in contrast to heavier courses, and enticing the eye in garniture.

Here are two recipes for "every-day" days:

PUMPKIN PIE WITH LEMON

(Makes 2 Pies)

2 cs. prepared pumpkin
5 eggs
1 c. sugar
1 tsp. salt
Grated rind 1 large lemon
6 tbsps. lemon juice
2 cs. milk

Beat eggs slightly, add sugar, salt and grated rind. Mix well and add to pumpkin, combining well. Add lemon juice and milk. Pour into unbaked pastry and bake 15 minutes in a hot oven 450 deg. F., then during the temperature after 20 minutes to moderate 350 deg. F.

LEMON MINCEMEAT

(Makes 2 pints or filling for 2 medium-sized pies)

1 c. raisins
3 cs. finely chopped apple
¼ c. candied orange peel or orange marmalade
½ c. lemon juice
2 cs. sugar
½ tsp. salt
½ c. chopped nuts
2 tsps. cinnamon
1 tsp. cloves
1 tsp. ginger

Scald, drain and chop the raisins. Mix all ingredients. Seal in sterilized jars. When making pies add ¼ c. melted butter to each pint.

A 'Never Fail' Lemon Pie

HERE is a lemon pie that cannot fail because the ingredients are already successfully mixed for you. We made it recently in the Martha Lee Kitchen, using a pie filling that we know is made of only the very finest and purest ingredients. They are so carefully mixed that there is no risk of failure.

Richly golden with that real fresh lemony flavor, creamy yet firm enough to cut well, anyone can now have a perfect lemon pie. From this filling, too, you can make many choice and delicious puddings, pastry and cakes, but today I want to tell you about tarte pie.

First we placed the contents of a package of this pie filling in a double boiler. Then we added 3 level tbsps. of sugar and stirred in slowly half a cup of cold water. Next we added the beaten yolks of 3 eggs and 2 cups of boiling water.

This mixture was cooked over hot water, stirring constantly until it thickened which took about 10 minutes. While it was still hot we poured it into a pie crust already baked over an inverted pie pan and covered with a meringue at once and browned the pie in a slow oven. The meringue was made by beating the whites of 2 eggs with 2 tbsps. cold water until very stiff and then adding gradually, 3 level tbsps. of powdered sugar and beating until smooth. Yum! Yum.

Shiny Faces on Dishes

ISN'T it cheery news that dishes thoroughly washed in hot soapy water, rinsed with a generous quantity of boiling water and allowed to dry, have proved to be freer from germs than dishes dried on a dish towel?

Warm water, they tell us, stimulates the growth of bacteria, which boiling water kills. In using a dish towel the germs are transferred from dish to dish. (And the presence of just one common cold in the family means that there are hundreds of germs distributed over the dishes!)

And, as the dish towels become damp and often really wet, the dishes acquire a murky, gloomy film. If, however, they are washed in good hot water, carefully stacked and rinsed twice with boiling water, they will not only be free of germs, but their shininess will brighten the china cupboard where they hang.

Inviting

SALADA fragrance originates in the tea gardens of the Orient. Its enticing flavor will always appeal.

"SALADA" TEA

"Fresh from the Gardens"

Break it! . . . and see the delicate flaky layers of tender crispness in this delicious new cracker.

In Sunshine Krispy Crackers flakiness is a fact . . . not an empty advertising phrase. You can actually see the tiny flakes . . . layers upon layers of them! That's why Krispy Crackers are so tenderly crisp. That's why they actually melt in your mouth . . . And that's why, too, these delicious little salted squares add such delight to soups, salads, cheese and all sorts of spreads.

Try them! . . . They're at your grocer's . . . NOW.

Health Association Opens New Field

A new field in public health nursing work has been opened by the Community Health Association of Boston with the appointment of Mrs. Evangeline Hall Morris of Somerville as director of social hygiene, to develop further its program for physical and mental health in Boston.

Mrs. Morris is a graduate of the Yale School of Nursing and Bishops University in Quebec. She was formerly a district nurse and assistant-supervisor with this organization in the West End.

Fine Pudding Recipe

MISS DAURICE F. DARLING director of the Household Department of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company sponsors the following excellent recipe for chocolate princess pudding with marshmallow mint sauce:

2 cups milk
2 squares chocolate
½ cup soft bread crumbs
½ tsp. salt
1 cup sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
2 eggs

Put milk and chocolate in top of double boiler and heat. Beat until smooth, add crumbs. Let soak 10 minutes. Beat eggs slightly and add salt, sugar and vanilla. Turn into milk mixture. Place in buttered baking dish, set in pan of hot water and bake 1 hour at 350 degrees F.

MARSHMALLOW MINT SAUCE

¼ cup water
½ cup sugar
8 marshmallows
1 egg white
½ tsp. peppermint flavoring
green coloring

Boil water and sugar in a thin syrup, 230 deg. F., but not thick enough to spin a thread. Add marshmallows cut in pieces and let stand 2 minutes. Add gradually to beaten egg whites. Beat until cool, flavor and color.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

WHEN the hair splits at the ends it may be due to unusual dryness, an abnormal condition of the scalp, or it may be simply a peculiarity of growth of the hair itself. Although believed to be beneficial, singeing of hair does no apparent good

This Day in Our History

ON November 4, 1918, the armistice between the Allies and Austria went into effect at 3 p. m. Austria agreed to surrender all her arms. Italy held about 300,000 Austrian prisoners and about 5000 large guns. Quite a showing for the Italian army.

LEMON AID TO BEAUTY OF COMPLEXION

Superior as a Cosmetic, Advice of Expert

By MARIA JERITZA

TOO few women realize the fact that fresh lemons and fresh lemon juice are a potent aid to feminine beauty.

Great beauties avail themselves of simple natural aids, such as the lemon. Their toilet shelves usually contain only a few preparations for daily use and those of the simplest and best. It is the credulous and inexperienced amateur, starting on the beauty quest, who is eager to try anything and everything she sees advertised, regardless of whether or not it is suited to her particular need. The beginner hopes to discover powerful lotion and creams that will instantaneously make her beautiful.

Maria Jeritza

But beauty is not won that way—is not an overnight mushroom growth. Loveliness of body is a slow development, the result of months and years of healthful living, exquisite grooming and sensible daily care. The woman who retains her good looks as time passes has learned to enlist as her allies sunlight and water, sleep and fresh air, good will, laughter, enthusiasm, plain food and exercise, soap, fresh fruit juices and bland vegetable oils. My own toilet shelf contains a scant half dozen beauty aids in addition to my favorite soap and a simple cleansing and nourishing cold cream. But among these aids is included fresh lemon.

A friend of mine goes farther. She keeps a crystal bowl containing half a dozen lemons on her toilet table. Lemons should always be washed before using for toilet purposes.

In the morning when she arises she squeezes the juice of half a lemon into her morning glass of fresh drinking water.

If during the day she eats more than her usual allowance of starchy food or sweets, the juice of the other half of the lemon is added to a cup of hot water she takes before retiring. Fresh lemon juice taken internally has a freshening, toning effect on the entire system including the stomach and complexion. But do not take too much, for it is a strong acid.

After the juice is squeezed from a fresh lemon, its usefulness is not ended. Rub the pulp over your hands and fingers and under your nails if the skin has become discolored or stained. A lemon does not keep indefinitely, and should be discarded not more than 24 hours after it is cut.

Tired, swollen feet will bring a frown to any woman's face, add years to her appearance. When you come home tired, and your feet ache, change into fresh stockings and shoes, and while your are doing so, cut a lemon in halves and rub it over your feet. Rinse after a moment with cool water.

If you are still trying to bleach out summer's freckles—and many women are—rub into them equal parts of fresh lemon juice and eau de cologne, leave the lotion on your skin one minute, then sponge it off with a bit of absorbent cotton dipped in cold water. Or if this mixture is too drastic, apply equal parts glycerine and fresh lemon juice to smoothe soften and whiten your skin, allowing it to sink in over night.

Juice of a fresh lemon, added to a tumbler of water, is a mild bleach for a discolored neck. The same mixture, as of course you know, is an excellent last rinse for the hair after a shampoo—not strong enough to lighten its color, but a fragrant rinse that breaks all grease and soap-curd and causes the hair to shine with the luster of its own cleanliness.

Manifold are the uses of fresh lemons and lemon juice, as a fragrant aid to your daintiness and your beauty.

A Little Shadow Went Across Her Joy

Pat walked down the path with the young aviator, thinking sadly that in the twilight he would be flying away. She would never see him again.

Miss Pat -:- Romance of Airways

him upside down. Get all the food and water out. That's what Dr Kittrick did when Billy Graham was drowned. We gotta git a barrel. That's the first thing."

Suddenly the machine-like precision of her mother's arms, as they worked the arms of the child, abated. She spoke softly in a mad, imploring quiet; in a voice hypnotic with power: "Get your father. Tell him to fly. Bring pulmotors—oxygen."

"Oh, mother. It would be hours—"

"Go!"

That appalling sense of guilt. Oh, if we'd only foreseen! If we'd done but differently, this tragedy would not have happened.

"I should have watched . . . I should have known," thought the girl miserably as she sent the old rattletrap machine hurtling along the mountain roads to the telephone. And now, if her father could not be reached?—

The feeling of blame, that in some way she had failed her little charge, this was added to her sick terror. What if Dickie died?

TERRIBLE hours Pat Dawn and her mother worked. They knelt by the still form and fancied it moved. They told each other desperately: "His eyes stirred. You saw that?" They listened and turned furtive eyes upward.

News of the drowning spread. A little crowd gathered.

The crowd dwindled. The two women on the beach seemed turned into machines doomed to kneel here forever working the arms of a little dead boy. As long as they worked they would hope, but Pat no longer dared to meet her mother's eyes.

Their very hearts now listened. Suddenly the sky opened. A rush in and whirr, wings mightier than angels.

At last! Plane flashing in the sun—swooping like some wild, free bird. It glided downward.

CHAPTER 2.

IT caught the light of heaven on its golden wings. It shimmered and flashed. Then suddenly was still.

Out of the now tremulous hush, figures were running—her father and another hurrying along the sands.

The girl felt again that mighty exultation, that moment of inspired faith.

Without a word the father dropped beside his wife. His arm comforted her. He leaned down and scanned the small, livid face of his son.

He turned abruptly, pleading: "Pat—take mother away."

This frightened her. "No—we will not!" Because when everyone else gave up, she would still hope—still work. She had read of strange, incredible recoveries. The drowned brought back to life. She would make them true.

Everyone now became unreal. The air tingled. Her father and this tall visitor from the skies were god-like. They were setting magically to work. They would bring Dickie back.

The young pilot knelt beside her brother. He seemed to glow, to sparkle with beautiful, clean vitality. To be pouring his strength into the chilled veins of the child.

He glanced once into Pat's hungry eyes and smiled. He said softly: "The heart beats."

Did you hear this? Did she only hope it?

The next moment she, too, was on her knees. And again the pilot looked at her. And she cried out weeping: "Dickie."

Life flowed faintly into her brother's face; flowed from one to another in streams of beautiful joy. The little boy opened startled eyes. He lived.

In an amber twilight Pat walked through the redwood lane. The tall young pilot swung along at her side.

He looked down at her. His eyes were laughing. The whole world laughed and was gorgeously different and unreal.

She wouldn't speak lest the marvelous dream should vanish. Lest she find herself again just plain Pat, planning a week-end visit from gawky, reliable old Peter Thompson.

Now she walked on radiant mountain tops and the man beside her was a thousand times more wondrous than magazines had ever pictured.

It wouldn't last, of course. But it was an hour to remember. For always. When she was an old, old lady, she would tell of the day little Dickie went down in the water and for hours seemed dead. Then a man like a god came down from the skies. He brought life with him. He was beautiful.

"Of what are you thinking?" asked the shining youth.

"Oh," said Pat exaltly, "I feel so raised up—so grateful, as though I can never be good enough from now on all the rest of my life."

"What an awful tragedy. But the visitation will probably pass."

Pat stole a look at his chuckling face and grinned. She said, a little wistfully: "Just the same I feel soppy with happiness. Airplanes are wonderful. When we heard your wings today it was beyond hearing—the suspense—the hope. They're adventure—they're beauty."

"And you've never ridden in one? Would you be afraid?"

"With you?" said Pat, naively. "How could I?"

"Of course you couldn't! You'll come, then, some sweet, starry night?"

"Oh, yes!"

But a little shadow went then across her joy. They were at the end of the path. Down there was the beach and his small golden plane. He was going back—flying away in the twilight. She would not see him again—never, perhaps. And nothing so magnificent as this would happen again.

She ran her hand over the yellow wings. It was his plane. He had designed it all himself. He was very proud of it.

"Like it?" he now asked.

"Yes. I know now why Lindy felt that his plane was a person. It seems—a blessed person. Do you always ride this?

"Yes—and this is the one you'll ride in. I'll drop you a line."

She closed her eyes with frank, happy rapture and laughed.

He climbed into the fuselage. "Watch till I'm out of sight, will you? I'll wave from the clouds and you wave back."

The little plane flashed yellow against the fading sun; against the bright blue sky. Higher and higher—bird romance, leading men to strange new quests; firing women with deep, new adorations.

The girl on the beach waited. When it was but a speck, all but lost in the clouds, she was still waving.

Al; Friday Guy Elliott worked in a happy satisfaction. He sroked pridefully the wings of the model airplane he was perfecting. He said to it: "You darling!" and smiled.

Yesterday this plane of which he had worked two passionate years had enabled him to reach the treacherous, forest-hemmed lake, make that almost vertical landing, win that adoring look from the prettiest face he'd seen in months. Pat—cute name. And the sweet way she ran her hand over the wings.

What a kid!—and so frankly taken with him. She didn't seem to know she was a brave, beautiful thing. Thought nothing of the way she'd dived for that little brother—the way she'd worked over him. He recalled her longing for lifelong goodness, and burst into a happy laugh. Well, it would be fun seeing her again—

He picked up a sheet of paper. At the top he hastily sketched his plane and underneath drew a cartoon of himself. He wrote:

"Will you come for a ride in that with this?"

Pat went twice a day to the post-office. Just to get that line he had promised. But when it arrived she was overcome.

She climbed out of the old machine and up the long steps of their cabin in such unconscious and radiant excitement her mother was alarmed.

"Why, what do you think, mother, he's an artist, too! Isn't it perfectly wonderful? Look at that drawing. Isn't it marvelous? Did you ever know anyone like that?"

Laura Dawn surveyed the proud beaming girl. Her own youth with its ardent expectance came back to her.

Pat's prompt, excited answer raised the young pilot's complacence to a sparkling and slightly dangerous level.

"Home Tuesday. Ready to fly immediately. At once. Or sooner if such could be arranged. Please have the stars out and the moon all lighted up."

He tucked the card in his pocket and whistled. Tonight! Late sunset and sweet, windless skies.

Pat, burning with adventure and snugly buttoned into her heaviest sweater, went to the hall door and listened intently. She would make a running sprint for it and be out of the house before anyone suspected the thrilling flight she was to take.

Avoid Ugly Emotions

By LUCY LOWELL

MEDICAL scientists now offer the theory that diabetes, one of the deadly ailments of mankind, is caused by fear.

Before an association of the Academy of Medicine in New York recently, a noted physician declared that a state of continued fear whether recognized as such or not is capable of producing morbid conditions of diabetes in the human system.

Lucy Lowell

"Scientists are beginning to find the chemical results produced in the thoughts, emotions, and particularly by fear," he said.

He went on to explain in a simple and convincing manner how fear, by working upon the sympathetic nervous system forces the glands to raise the level of sugar in the blood.

No less astonishing than this was the result of experiments conducted some time ago by other scientists to prove that anger is a rank poison to the body.

A solution was made from the perspiration of an enraged man and injected hypodermically into a rat. It was interesting to the scientists, but hard on the rat, which went into convulsions and died immediately.

Another very famous experimenter believes that cancer is the result of jealous malice, and has been working to furnish the world with proof of his theory.

Whether you agree with these scientists or not, there can be no reason in your mind—or in the mind of anyone anywhere—as to the harmful effects upon mankind of fear,-hatred, jealousy. Foes of humanity all three, which paralyze initiative, dull intellect, breed despair.

Conquer these enemies on the battleground of your own consciousness and you will be happier. And perhaps healthier ■ well

A Kiss for Corinna

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER 57

HE came forward quickly. "Corinna!" He grabbed her ten hands in his own. "What do you think . . . they've made me a junior member of the firm! You've got to marry me . . . at City Hall . . . to-morrow!"

It was 11 a. m. in Julian's beauty parlor.

Corinna, wan from lack of sleep from an intoxication of happiness, mechanically went through the motions of work.

At 3 o'clock today in City Hall she was to wed Malvey!

Four hours till then. Nothing could intervene to stop their marriage.

But when Denise Van Wyck walked into the beauty parlor came a queer, chill premonition.

"I haven't any appointment, but I simply must have Miss Corinna!"

Denise was rather oddly silent while her hair was being attended to. Reflected in the mirror Corinna—more than once—found a pair of eyes with a cold expression in them watching her.

The wonderful reunion between Malvey and herself must have come to the ears of this young woman.

What did it matter? Why be afraid? Why worry about that strange, that venomous radio?

"That'll do. You haven't done it half as well as usual, but I must go, as I've an appointment at the Embassy for 12:15. I'm lunching with Malvey Craig, and I can't keep him waiting."

Miss Van Wyck? Malvey? On his wedding day 'a meeting with another woman?

"Hurry with my check! Denise was dictatorial.

At the entrance to the club Malvey awaited her.

This urgent message to meet his employer's niece—and she simply wouldn't take a refusal! Well, it must be something out of the usual.

Denise signed him into the club with a flourish.

"Why haven't you looked me up in the last ten days?"

That was an awkward question. "I've been awfully busy." He took refuge in man's eternal alibi.

In the exotic dimness of the interior she led him to a corner table. The place hadn't filled as yet, for they were early.

"Busy? And to some purpose! I congratulate you on your wonderful advancement!"

She gave her order to a waiter. "We'll celebrate—"

He shied at that possessive pronoun. "We," indeed? Wasn't his other half Corinna?

"Why don't you say something? Aren't you delighted about it?" She didn't realise how brusque her voice was. Raucous.

"Of course I'm glad. Wouldn't any fellow in my shoes be pleased?"

"And aren't you going to thank me?"

"Thank you?" he repeated blankly, staring at the speaker. "How d'you mean . . . ?"

She hesitated, gave a grating little laugh. "Don't be so dense. You understand me."

It couldn't be she was in love with him? Oh, no! But he was thankful when the waiter came to interrupt and put their order on the table.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHEN are you living?

"What a foolish question!" you say. "I'm living now, of course . . . right now . . . in the year 1929."

But ARE you? Stop and think. Your body is existing NOW. It is dressing in the styles of the year 1929 . . . it is doing the chores and keeping the engagements of the year 1929 . . . but your body isn't the REAL you, nor do the acts of your body constitute your REAL LIFE.

Elsie Robinson

Your REAL LIFE is the life you lead inside your mind. Are you living NOW in that mind of yours, or are you living ten years ago or ten years hence?

While your body is going through the program of the day, what is your mind doing? Is it keeping step with the body or is it dreaming back to the days that are gone . . . the good old days when you were a kid in Centreville . . that time you had a dandy job in the Union Works . . . that first love affair . . .

Are you giving the strength which should belong to NOW to homesick memories, vain regrets, futile irritations at old feuds, silly chortlings over old triumphs?

Remember the story of Lot's wife, who, driven from her doomed home, insisted on looking back and so was turned to a pillar of salt? Are YOU turning your life to a pillar of salt for the sake of the Backward Look?

Or do your dreams go forward to the time when your "ship shall come in"—to the day when you'll "get your chance"? Are you letting NOW, with all its opportunity and adventure, slip through your slack fingers while your mind goes roaming into the Maybe Land?

Someone—Oliver Wendell Holmes, wasn't it?—wrote a verse that went something like this.

"We're cur'us critters—NOW's never the minute
That fits us just exactly while we're in it.
Long as 'twas future, it was perfect bliss;
Soon as it's past, 'twas worth ten times o' this."

That wasn't just homely wisdom; it's deep philosophy. It touches the most fundamental problem of life. It isn't a small business to live in the past or in the future—IT'S TRAGEDY.

It's the sort of tragedy that eats the substance out of thousands of lives and sets them adrift, empty husks, down the aisles of Yesterday, across the sills of Tomororw.

Day dreams may be as vicious a form of addiction as morphine or alcohol. They serve the same purpose—they help us escape reality. It's hard to face reality—hard to face NOW with its demand that we assume responsibilities. It's much pleasanter to slip away into the Past or the Future, substituting PHANTASMS for the REAL ISSUES OF LIFE.

Don't cheat yourself of the great adventure of Life by day dreaming. LIVE NOW! LIVE TODAY! Take the pleasure of today, like a ripe fruit—squeezing out every particle of its savour and fragrance and nourishment. Take the pain of today like a keen sword—holding its cruel blade proudly, as a challenge to your strength. LIVE NOW!

The Truth

ABOUT REPRESENTING YOUR COUNTRY

By ELINOR GLYN

THE longer I am away from America the more I am impressed with the feeling of how grateful the citizens should be for the mechanical benefits, the riches of the nation, and the space they have to expand in.

Elinor Glyn

And I want you girls to be just as proud of your birthright as old French nobles were of their order, so that you just cannot ever act in a way which could tarnish the glory of it.

I would like to feel that my dear girls felt when they come abroad—"We believe we belong to the greatest new human family, and so we are going to demonstrate this to you older people by beating you on your own ground of courtesy, good manners and refinement."

I hate that attitude of mind which makes people think themselves better than others because they have more money to spend. Remember, Gracie and Maude, every time you are over-bearing to foreigners, or are boastful and arrogant, you are only really demonstrating ill-breeding.

I am writing this again because I came across both Ariella and Materiella once more, and Materialla's group were again such an object lesson.

It was in a very fashionable restaurant in Paris and Ariella happened to be of the same party as I was. She was talking about America in an interesting, modest way, telling of some of its splendid things and ideals, and wonderful modern conveniences.

The very attractive young men who sat on each side of her were thrilled and obviously thought her enchanting — (always remember distinction is Ariella's note). Materiella's party!—Well, I will tell you about that tomorrow! There is not space today.

Marianne, War Time Serial

By GLADYS JOHNSON

CHAPTER 19

THE letter which Marianne had received from Stag only served to aggravate the sense of loss. The thought of him now was a wound which never healed.

Working about the house, or directing old Gabriel Michu's labor in the field, the image of Stag was never far away from her. What was he doing? The question tortured her. She tried to imagine and found herself baffled by her lack of knowledge about the strange new world which had swallowed him.

Standing there alone, under the leaden sky, longing for him would sweep down like a dark sea. She would feel herself go sick and faint, carried away by unbearable desolation.

An ocean . . . half a world between them forever . . . To grow old apart . . . God! It maddened her. Hot wildness running through her blood, exploding in her brain. She lifted her clenched fists and shook them at the lowering sky. She burst into tears and ran blindly away from the sight of the house lest the children might be watching.

She would wake suddenly in the night from vivid dreams when it seemed Stag stood before her. Handsome jaunty face, dancing gray eyes. Sitting upright in the dark, the girl would cry bitterly but silently.

The long winter passed, but with the coming of spring the desolation increased.

If she had missed him in the rainy days, how much harder it was to be alone when the twilights turned pink and mauve. When the breath of the fields was sweet and the new moon was curled like a little feather in a sky of depthless silvery green. When all the world called to love.

One other thought struck like a viper in her heart. Not since that night shortly after Stag's departure had Andre spoken of marriage. Marianne knew that he sensed a lack in her. The idea made her miserable, and she made a valiant effort to conquer her own heart.

Some day she must marry Andre—dear, brave Andre, who had given up more than his life. But she fled from the thought. She could not face the reproach in a pair of remembered gray eyes.

Mardianne was working beyond her strength about the old farm. Old Gabriel was slow and stupid, and she could afford to hire no better help.

She stood in the barn one afternoon in May, forking down hay for the cow.

The big shadowy place was full of bitter-sweet memories. Among the hammocky brown cobwebs and the fragrant dust ghosts moved. Flippant ghosts wearing over-seas hats—ghosts who grinned and sang—and wrung her heart.

Standing up there on the heap of hay, with a shaft of window behind her, outlining her hair in a bright nimbus, she did not see the two men who came into the barn below.

It was not until they called her that she noticed old Pere Joseph, who had entered gently guiding Andre.

She gave a little startled cry and leaped down beside them. There was relief in her voice.

"Andre! I was so frightened. That bad little Francois came home crying that he had lost you. That he left you at the chapel and wandered away down the stream. I sent him back to search for you."

Andre's thin face wore a gentle smile. "Don't scold the little one, Marianne. A slow blind man is a drag on gay young spirits. Youth was not intended to be so encumbered."

There was a grave note to that which flashed the girl's startled eyes to his face.

Doing Job Well

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

IF men and women only did their jobs well this world of ours would surely be a happier place in which to live.

But carelessness, inefficiency, lack of interest and a general tendency of trying to get through the day's work with as little expenditure of energy as possible, and as quickly as possible, unfortunately are traits which motivate altogether too many of its population.

Dr. L. E. Bisch

For instance you order some merchandise from a shop, and when you unpack the bundle at home you find it is not exactly what you bought, or perhaps even selected.

You have a workman to do a job and he does not perform the work exactly as you bargained for.

You are promised this or that by merchants and others, only to find that the promise was a convenient way of putting you off and avoiding personal bother.

Truthfulness, reliability and dependability are not as frequently met with as might be for the good of all concerned. For surely it is a fact that if the individual himself does not take pride in what he works at, so that he wants to do better on the job than his neighbor, not only does he become actually tired covering up his mistakes, but he eventually undermines his own self-esteem.

Our attitude toward our own work is a fair indicator of what we think of ourselves. If we despise the work we do we also tend to despise ourselves for doing it.

Millions and millions of minutes are wasted each day by persons who don't care how they handle their job so long as they get away with it.

Women, in particular, are offenders in this respect.

Many of them only get a job as a stop-gap after all. They work in a commercial or manufacturing field in lieu of marriage. They take no special interest in their work, and, even if they become proficient in it, they leave it promptly and without regret as soon as the proverbial "right man" comes along.

One should not, of course, criticize a woman if she leaves her work to become a wife and mother. Nor can we say that all women take but a minimum interest in what they are being paid for doing.

But it must be admitted the average woman does not view her job the same as a man does. To him it is a sort of career, a life's affair. To her it is often a kind of side issue.

A careless and indifferent attitude toward one's work makes for mediocrity. It brings the level of efficiency downward.

It likewise makes the individual, whether a man or woman, discontented.

And not only does it hurt the work, it hurts the customers in the bargain.

But when we find fault with the efficiency of others as their work comes in contact with our interests let us pause a moment and examine ourselves. Are we not also inefficient in what we are doing? And do we not likewise affect others disadvantageously by so doing?

Does He Love the Girl?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"HOW CAN I FIND OUT whether he loves me?" questions Puzzled. "How can I know whether he loves me?" asks many a girl when first a fascinating young man begins to show an interest in her.

The difficulty is, sometimes the young man himself is not sure whether he loves or just likes Miss Puzzled.

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:" writes Puzzled.

"I am a constant reader of your column. You have helped many young people in trouble, and I am sure you will help me.

"I love a very handsome young man who lives right next door to me. He seems to be a sociable chap. He is 25 and I am 17. He might be in love with me for all I know, but I don't know. The point is—you might think it's silly—how can I find out whether he loves me?

"Some people tell me that I'm pretty. I like good times, but not when it comes to petting and drinks. I can dance quite well, and I do not smoke.

PUZZLED."

YOUR letter is rather vague, my dear, in that it does not state how much interest, if any, the young man next door takes in you, it will be wise and safe for you to assume that he just likes you, or is politely indifferent.

Love should be founded on friendship. In time if you and he are naturally congenial, a wholesome friendship may grow up between you

Miss Rachel Coolidge to Be Presented at Brilliant Dance Tonight

Junior League Plans Big Program at Symphony Hall November 26

IN HONOR OF MISS CAROLYN SHELDON and Miss Anna Clark, the former's mother, Mrs. Charles Sheldon of Milton and Washington, D. C., gave a luncheon at her home on School st., Milton. Some of last season's debutantes were present, as well as a number of this year's coterie.

THE LARGE BALLROOM of the Somerset is to be the scene tonight of the dance at which Miss Rachel Coolidge, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Julian Coolidge of Fayerweather st., Cambridge, will make her bow. She has chosen to wear a gown of flesh colored satin with a tight-fitting bodice and a skirt with a train. Charles Thompson is heading the usher contingent. Those who will assist him are Charles Abbott, Mason Hammond, Arthur Hill, Somers Sturgis, Everett Greene, George Homans, Robert Walcott, George Morgan, Lawrence Coolidge, Richard Sexton, Laurens Rainelander, Bestman Pool, Roger Livermore, Chauncey Robbins, Wilson Wing, Christopher Huntington, Edward Francis and Vernon Moran.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE JUNIOR LEAGUE program at Symphony Hall on Tuesday evening, Nov. 26, at which E. H. Sothern will be both star and sole performer of the annual entertainment, are well under way. The attractive program is being arranged by Miss Betty Soule, chairman of all the evening events. Mrs. Charles Barnes, Jr. (Phoebe Washburn) is in charge of the advertising. Assisting Mrs. Barnes are 16 League girls. Mrs. William Cox (Jessie Bancroft) and Mrs. Robert Almy, Mrs. Earl H. Eacker and Mrs. Stedman Buttrick, four prominent young matrons, head the list.

OTHERS ARE MISS MARJORIE EVATT, Miss Gertrude Peabody and Miss Mary Coll, three debutantes, Miss Mabel Hatheway, active in the Players' Club and the Misses Alison Towle, Polly Winslow, Alice Dalton, Peggy Creighton, Eleanor Holton, Edith Wolcott, Alice Brace, Virginia Taylor and Miss Virginia Curtin. Mr. Sothern will appear first in a dramatic recital featuring scenes from his past stage successes to be followed by an informal talk on personal theatrical experiences. The social service funds of the Junior League and the Community Health Nurses will benefit from the proceeds of the performance.

THE JUNIOR LEAGUE PLAYers have chosen "Beauty and the Beast" as the main one of the two plays that they are to produce, the other, "Little Black Sambo" is short enough so that it can be given in the wards of several hospitals. The plays are to be coached by Mr. E. Irving Locke and are to be produced at the Elizabeth Peabody House beginning December 9, at five successive matinees with an additional performance on Saturday morning. Children from several Boston settlement houses are invited to attend the first three showings, the remaining ones being open to the public.

INVITATIONS HAVE BEEN received from Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sturgis Grew of Marlborough st. to a dance on Friday evening, December 6, to meet Miss Ethel Hooper Grew. This presentation is to take place at the Hotel Somerset.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR L. COBURN, JR., (Priscilla Rhodes), who were married last April, are making their home in one of the attractive apartments on Middlesex rd., Chestnut Hill, that have been so popular with a number of the young married couples of the smart set. They spent a part of the summer visiting Mrs. Coburn's mother, Mrs. Frederick F. Rhodes, at her home in West Manchester. Mrs. Rhodes' other daughter, Mrs. Lloyd D. Brace, is again settled in her residence on Chestnut st.

MR. AND MRS. ALBERT C. BURRAGE of Hereford st. are in New York at the present time where they are staying at the St. Regis. Other Bostonians registered at this same hotel are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Leland of Beacon st. and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Abbott, also of Beacon st.

MISS DOROTHY CHASE, who is now back in town for the winter, residing with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bruen Perkins of Perkins st., Jamaica Plain, has left to represent Boston at the annual meeting of the National Girl Scouts in New Orleans. Miss Chase is a member of the Sewing Circle of 1917.

MRS. FREDERICK W. THAYER and Mrs. William Stanwood have been announced as the visiting committee of the Convalescent Home of the Children's Hospital in Wellesley Hills for the month of November. An average number of 75 children are cared for daily. Miss Lillian Guilled, the superintendent, is assisted by three graduate nurses. The Convalescent Home is a separate organization from the Children's Hospital and receives no financial aid from the hospital. Mrs. George H. Monks of Commonwealth ave. is president. Other officers are: Miss Mary B. Lothrop of Commonwealth ave., vice-president; Mrs. Horatio G. Curtis of Marlborough st., and Mrs. Henry S. Hunnewell of Wellesley Hills, honorary vice-presidents; Samuel H. Hooper, treasurer; Mrs. I. McD. Garfield of Marlborough st., assistant treasurer; Mrs. Robert Amory of Readville, secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Foster, Jr. (Elizabeth Bradlee Abbot), are aboard the Vulcanin, Europe bound. They were married last Thursday.

This deal illustrates a Minor suit take-out of an original Minor bid and the response thereto by the initial bidder. At Auction it is a simple take-out; at Contract, a forcing bid demanding a response.

Salient Points of Bidding

Auction Bidding: Following South's one Club, many players with North's holding of nine Probable Tricks (seven in Diamonds and two in Spades) might be tempted to make a high pre-emptive bid in Diamonds. Such procedure, however, is unsound as it would operate more to shut out partner than opponents and thus risk failure to arrive at the best bid in the combined partnership hands. South, holding a suit type rather than a No Trump type of distribution, denies Diamonds with a bid of one Spade which becomes the final declaration.

Contract Bidding: North's forcing take-out of two Diamonds, a demand upon partner for a further bid, is responded to by South showing his second suit, Spades. North assists by bidding three Spades, unwilling for the partnership to end back upon a game declaration until South's strength is known, but expecting South to re-bid Spades if holding better than a week forced response. South, holding such re-bid strength, bids four Spades which becomes the contract.

The Play

West leads his fourth best Heart which East wins with the King, then plays the Ace, and follows with the Heart 3, West winning the third trick with the Queen.

West considers his next move. It looks suicidal to lead either Diamonds or Clubs and his choice lies between a trump or the thirteenth Heart. He selects the former, although he sees that to give Declarer a ruff in one hand and a discard in the other will do no harm in this particular instance. His lead is none or less a choice of evils.

Declarer wins the fourth trick with the 10 of Spades in Dummy, and the fifth trick by a lead of a small Diamond, trumping in his own hand to provide against a possible 4-2 split of the adverse Diamonds. Thereafter it is practically a laydown for South as, after exhausting adverse trumps, he has two more tricks than he can use.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your bridge problems. Write to him, care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Crittenton League in $100,000 Drive

The Florence Crittenton League, with headquarters on Tremont st., is making every effort to raise the $100,000 needed to complete the building projects begun in 1923.

The land and present buildings with equipment, costing $300,000 have been paid for. The third building, planned for the group but not built because of the lack of funds, is now an absolute necessity, the officials say.

Russian Refugees Arrive in Finland

Helsingfors, Finland, Nov. 4—Three groups of Russian refugees, including one woman among the 13 persons, were found by Finnish guards on the Lapland frontier in a state of exhaustion from their long overland journey from the Soviety prison on Solovyetski island in the White Sea.

While working in the forest they had knocked down and overpowered their three guards.

HINDU WARNS WOMEN OF DANGERS

The gavel of individualism is hammering down on the fair head of American womanhood and robbing her of charm and femininity and even undermining the traditionally staple institution of marriage.

Marriage in India? Sublime and blissful and the happiest on earth

In America?

Well, if the individualism which Sunder Joshi, Hindu lecturer and student of philosophy describes as America's ruthless robber, continues, romance will be a thing of the past and only a jeded memory.

In his land of romance and dreams and ease and simple life in his India of culture and tradition, marriage is sacred and successfully happy; happy because, he asserts, Indian women lack individualism, and only exercise self assertion when it comes to the home.

"Too much individuality is spoiling your women," he said in an interview. "It is ruining their feminine poise and robbing them of their charm. It is slowly but surely divorcing them from that halo of spiritual softness without which a woman can not be worshiped and adored by men."

This young lecturer has been taken up in a serious way by the clubwomen. Tomorrow he talks to the Roslindale Community Club on "India, Yesterday and Tomorrow." Joshi traces his ancestry back to a long line of high caste Brahmin ministers of the Hindu faith. His father is professor of comparative religion at Dartmouth.

"It is this lack of individuism which has meant success and happiness for marriages in my land. Your American women fail to realize that this self-assertion is only a stage, and fatality. It should only serve as a means to a desired end but not be substituted for the end itself.

"What is this individuality to lead to? Do American women stop and ask themselves this question? Will it lead to happier married life? Will it lead to a more intensively progressive civilization? American women only enjoy this individualism for the temporary satisfaction it allows them. Bah! Without spiritual enjoyment.

"It is true that there is a tendency toward self-assertion in India But this only shows itself in the home. Indian women want to better home conditions. They do not seek glory outside the home walls

"Of course in the civilized centers girls are doing things, seeking out the professions, and entering into the community life of the cities But this only to improve civilization in India that the people of India may enjoy the fruits of their labors.

"We have no problem of the sexes in India. I do not know how to speak of. Nothing in the manner with which American people are confronted."

"Your life" It is too fast. It moves on so rapidly that one can hardly catch up with it all. Your styles are too quick changing. Your manner of living so fast moving. Your enjoyments so varied. One hardly knows where it will end.

At the Celebrity Luncheon, given by the Boston Branch, League of American Penwomen, Joshi, introduced by the president, Mrs. Nelson W. Howard, asked the women to consider the value of individualism before laying it upon the younger generation.

"If we are unfavorable with much of the activities of the younger generation, let us analyse the part that this new-found individualism has played."

Here is another phase of community work for clubwomen

Are queer fads individualistic? Are such tendencies detrimental to the general good of growing womanhood? These are the points of the evils that are befalling the American home. Are our parents individualistic and not our children the "proper example" as talked about by Mrs. John Sherman, of the General Federation?

TUESDAY MEETING

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to direction. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

New Hats All Tend to Create Delightful Frame for the Face; Little Fur Caps Very Popular in Paris

(SKETCHED IN PARIS)

All Important That Hats Should Be Right to the Face

Paris Bureau of the Boston Evening American

PARIS, FRANCE, Nov 4—Right about face! That is the order of the day for our hats. It is now all important that a hat should be right to the face, that is to say, it must be becoming, even flattering rather than just merely smart.

It is obvious that the revolution in the world of dress has spread to the realm of millinery, for the new hats seem all concerned with the mission of creating a delightful frame for the face, and completing the tout ensemble of the very feminine picture that is offered by the new clothes

(SKETCHED IN PARIS)

THE little fur caps such as those of galyak and breitschwantz are very delightful and youthful, and many models have been purchased for export, by buyers representing exclusive shops.

SHOWN today, is a trio of delightful little hats that we had sketched because they each were so expressive of the present mood of the millinery mode. The first is a loveable little toque from Jane Blanchet. It is of black felt turning back from the face with a row of spotted partridge breasts, with their soft and prettily marked plumage, across the forehead. A bit of the plumage is placed at one side on a loose tab of felt.

Copyright 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

BOTH of the other hats are from Suzy, who is just now showing a number of draped velvet hats with brims. The model sketched is in navy blue milliner's velvet with a supple double-back brim laid in cartridge pleats. Shirring across the front of the crown creates a cluster of folds at each side, which still further carries on the good work of softening the silhouette.

THE other Suzy model is a jaunty little sport hat all of tweed in black and yellow, and bound with yellow grosgrain ribbon along the edge of the brim, with a small bow of the ribbon at the back. Now don't you agree that it is better to choose a hat which is becoming, rather than to sacrifice beauty at the expense of smartness? For there is not a face in the world that is not enhanced by the right frame.

ENGLISH SUITE EXCELLENT

By MOSES SMITH

THE Pekingese Association of New England will hold its seventh, annual show in the Georgian Room of the Hotel Statler, next Saturday, from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. for the benefit of the North Shore Babies' Hospital at Salem.

As was the case in previous years, prize dogs of international fame will be on display when Mrs. Mabel Riddell and Herbert L. Mapes start judging

THE English Singers, who gave a concert in Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon, were apparently on bad terms with the weather man. And so the audience was lost in the vast stretches of the large auditorium. It was, also, a smaller audience than they have sung to in their recent concerts here.

Like true artists, however, they suffered no let-down in the enthusiasm with which they rendered their program Their singing, in fact, represented probably the finest work they have ever done in Boston

Their program listed the usual assortment of motets, madrigals, and part songs of Old England, together with the humorous, flavorsome "Cryes of London." For now-a-days there were four folk-songs taken from the natives of the American Appalachian country. Two beautiful arrangements of English folk-songs by Vaughan Williams and a Maypole completed the program. The audience was exuberantly applausive.

Harold Bauer, too, rose at his concert in Jordan Hall on Saturday, to heights he had never scaled before, at least in our presence. Nor is this small praise, considering that Bauer is one of the most dependable, as well as greatest, of pianists now on the concert stage. His performance of the Bach Chromatic Fantasia and Fugue was masterly

Only a series of superlatives, similarly, could do justice to his playing of the Beethoven C minor Sonata of Opus 111 and the Schumann Sonata of Opus 11 in F-sharp minor. In Debussy's "Children's Corner," which closed the program, the pianist was not afraid to let himself go, to insert the touches of humor which Debussy obviously intended.

BENEFIT SHOW FOR HOSPITAL

By The Peking Association of New England will hold its seventh, annual show in the Georgian Room of the Hotel Statler, next Saturday, from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. for the benefit of the North Shore Babies' Hospital at Salem.

As was the case in previous years, prize dogs of international fame will be on display when Mrs. Mabel Riddell and Herbert L. Mapes start judging

Grand Duchess Dead

Paris, Nov. 4—Olga Princess Paley, whose morganatic marriage to Grand Duke Paul of Russia, the youngest uncle of the late Czar, was a romance which shook imperial society in 1902, died here at the age of 53.

Can You Work As Hard For Yourself As For Some Boss?

FOR the man who has the ability to work as hard for himself as for some one else and who seeks an opportunity in which his initiative and ability will directly react to his own progress and increase his earnings, The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States offers an opportunity that is worth careful consideration.

There is now One Hundred Billions of life insurance in force in America; another One Hundred Billions will probably be added during the next decade. The hundreds of thousands of policies comprising this huge volume will be written largely by trained representatives.

The Equitable trains its salesmen.

Correspondence is invited from men of industry and integrity seeking a permanent and remunerative career.

The upsets of Children

All children are subject to little upsets. They come at unexpected times. They seem twice as serious in the dead of night. But there's one form of comfort on which a mother can always rely; good old Castoria. This pure vegetable preparation can't harm the tiniest infant. Yet mild as it is, it soothes a restless, fretful baby like nothing else. Its quick relief soon sees the youngster comfortable once more, back to sleep. Even an attack of colic, or diarrhea, yields to the soothing influence of Castoria.

Keep Castoria in mind, and keep a bottle in the house—always. Give a few drops to any child whose tongue is coated, or whose breath is bad. Continue with Castoria until the child is grown! Every drugstore has Castoria; the genuine has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

TICKER AGAIN ON THE JOB IN WALL ST.

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

The long over-taxed stock ticker was again on the job in Wall Street today after its long rest since Thursday's close. All the big securities markets of the country reopened today, better prepared to handle new business than they have been for many days past. The five hours of trading are again of a preholiday nature, since Election Day, when the markets always close, comes tomorrow.

* * *

Many big bargains remain on the counter and shrewd buyers are mustering their funds to take advantage of them, well aware that the market never moves continually upward without recessions enabling it to solidify its new position.

One Boston investor is shouting loudly his praises of the Boston Stock Exchange. He held five different issues which suffered an average loss of $2 a share in the big break, and his holdings today are right back where they were before the break came.

Gage P. Wright, economist, writing in the current issue of The Business Economic Digest, says: "The condition of general business during the last fortnight has not been marked by an substantial change in developments considered of fundamental importance. Attention is directed to the current absence of burdensome inventories on the part of the greater proportion of manufacturers and dealers; also to the lack of inflation in commodity prices. Another fundamental aspect of the situation is the wholesome reserve position of the Federal Reserve Banks, which are strongly buttressed with funds that logically might be used to modify any serious business readjustment period.

In reviewing the stock market situation Mr. Wright states that 'most authorities believe that the current decline in the stock market will mark principally a readjustment similar to that which has taken place in nearly every year since the present bull market has existed."

* * *

Mr. Wright adds, that "the weighted average of authoritative opinion gives no indication of the beginning of a major bear market in which stock prices will continue to decline over a prolonged period, preceding a period of general business liquidation resulting in a general business depression. Our weighted average of authorities' opinions continues bullish on recommended stocks for the long pull, and our bond average has recently assumed a greater degree of bullishness than has existed for many months."

A measure of the upward course of common stock prices in all groups during the next half year is furnished by the Karsten Statistical Laboratory of New Haven in its monthly statement, by analysis of the price earnings ratios of leading groups at market close after the disastrous break of Oct. 29. "The market as a whole," Karl G Karsten, vice-president of the Laboratory, says in its statement, "fell below the ratio of 10 to 1 as between prices and earnings. The average of stock prices must rise above this ratio during the next six months.

"Ten to one is the ratio which, under relatively unprogressive conditions of productions and trade, obtained before the war, and was considered safe for investment in common stocks. It is the ratio that obtained before much of the risk was taken from stock investment by diversification through investment trusts and investment counsel. It is the ratio that was approved as safe at a time when the risks of bond investments, because of fluctuations in their gold value, had not yet been discerned by investors.

"It seems clear, therefore, that future investment harvests will be reaped by those who purchase for the long pull now. Millions of shares of high-grade common stocks have been placed on the auction block during the panic and sold far below their true worth. Millions of shares remain below what they should bring now, and the average of those representing basic and growing industries must, during the coming months, bring the market level higher.

* * *

"This counsel is for those who buy stocks outright and lock them away, without regard for the daily ups and downs of the market. It is hardly necessary to warn operators on margin account to be wary until the market becomes stabilized and gives definite signs of assurance against after shocks from the violent oscillations of the recent major breaks."

ACTIVE ISSUES ARE EASIER IN WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 4—The landslide of public buying of speculative stocks, which some expected to develop today, did not compare with the heavy load of selling orders which crowded the market after the three-day shutdown and most of the active stocks lost ground, as compared with Thursday's final prices.

Starting the new week at from 5 to 14 points below the previous closing level, industrial stocks and specialties made a desperate attempt to rally in the early afternoon.

The "good news" about reduction of brokers' loans and the 5 per cent rediscount rate for the New York Reserve Bank had been sufficiently discounted on Thursday to nullify any special effect they might have had on the market today, and even the stock exchange's report of a $2,440,000,000 shrinkage in brokers' loans in October failed to stir up very much enthusiasm over the market.

Going into the fourth hour, most of the industrial favorites had lost practically all of their forenoon rallies and were selling near the low prices of the day, down all the way from 5 to 10 points from Thursday's close.

United States Steel at 186 showed a loss of 7½ points. General Electric was down 15 points at 237, American Can down 9¾ at 126, Westinghouse down 15 at 245, Johns Manville down 9 at 133, Studebaker down 2¾, Baltimore & Ohio down 3, Sears Roebuck down 6½ at 110, American Telephone down 10¾ at 236, Kennecott Copper down 7½ and Bethlehem Steel down 2½.

Further scrutiny of brokers' ledgers over the week-end revealed a few more weak spots in impaired margins, etc., calling for prompt selling of such stocks "at the market."

General business and financial conditions were practically unchanged. Prominent business and administration leaders hastened to assure the country that fundamental conditions were sound and the bankers consortium announced that no meeting would be held today.

The trading pace was fast, the tickers falling behind 21 minutes in the second hour. Call money was unchanged at 6 per cent.

The New York Stock Exchange will close at 1 o'clock Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and will be closed all day Saturday. This announcement was made by the board of governors just before the opening of the market today. There will be no session of the exchange tomorrow—election day.

50 Chicago Stock Issues Are Lower

The fifty most active stocks traded in on the Chicago Stock Exchange during the week ended October 31 had a market value of $3,300,467,820 at the close of business Thursday, as compared with $3,816,569,569 at the close of the previous week, according to a compilation by Lage & Company, members of the New York and Chicago Stock Exchanges. This represents a decrease of $516,101,749 or 15.63 per cent.

Lage & Company's analysis shows that 22 of these stocks were listed and traded in a year ago. These stocks had a market value of $823,902,105 Thursday, as compared with $655,801,146 on October 31, 1928, an increase of $168,100,959 or 25.63 per cent.

Britain-Canada Air Line Planned

London, Nov. 4—Reports from Croydon said an unnamed Canadian Transport Co. was negotiating with Imperial Airways regarding inauguration of an air passenger service between Great Britain and Canada via Scotland, Iceland and Greenland. The reports said designs for a number of seaplanes for use in the service had been submitted to the British air ministry.

The designs called for planes driven by six engines with a total of 3000 horsepower. They would be capable of carrying 50 passengers on a non-stop flight of 1000 miles.

Says U. S. Leads in Paper Making

The United States is far ahead of Germany in the manufacture of paper of all kinds, according to the opinion of a delegation of German paper manufacturers, who arrived in Boston on a tour of the country to study the paper industry.

Germany is also far behind this country in the machinery used in the manufacture of paper, said H. Werther, a member of the party, shortly after their arrival at the Hotel Statler.

Grains Are Lower in Chicago Market

Chicago, Nov. 4 (INS)—Grains were lower today. Wheat was down 1⅜ to 2⅛c, corn ⅝ to ⅞c, and oats ⅛ to ⅜c. Prices: Wheat, Dec. 1.26-1.27⅛, May 1.37-1.38. Corn, Dec. 90-90⅛, March 95½-96, May 98-99¼. Oats, Dec. 49⅛-⅛, May, 53¾-54.

Heavy Steel Scrap Prices Are Cut

Heavy melting steel scrap in Chicago has been reduced 50 cents a ton from $14 to $13.50. Other grades were cut 25 to 50 cents a ton.

Bank Leaders Haven't Shown White Feather

Handed Out Extra Billion When Other Lenders Took Fright

—By B. C. FORBES—

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—Will Rogers pokes fun at John D. Rockefeller for having stepped in to buy stocks when they were being thrown on the market during the panic. But had not John D. — and other men of means wise enough not to be carried away by all the hokum that the bull market couldn't possibly collapse — come forward when pandemonium broke loose, how much less than they did get would the mis-guided ones have actually got for the shares they had to sell? The truth is, of course, that the announcement of Rockefeller senior and junior that they were buying stocks did more than any other one thing to restore some semblance of sanity. As one Wall Street aper of Will Rogers remarked, "It took old John D. to pour oil on Wall Street's troubled waters."

Had you seen something of the inside workings of the Big Six, the Morgan-sponsored group of bankers that shouldered the responsibility of doing their best to keep the market open, you would have realized that several of these gentlemen sweated and worried and worked enough in one week to last you or me half a lifetime. They got after anybody and everybody who might be in a position to extend support to the crushing market. Talk of high-pressure salesmanship—the Big Six 'practiced it with a vengeance.

Money was being withdrawn from Wall Street by none—bank lenders—"bootleg lenders"—to the tune of, as revealed later, $1,380,000,000. New York bankers actually increased their assistance to brokers by $99,000,000 in the week. Out-of-town bankers scrambled for their money to the tune of $707,000,000.

So credit the big fellows in New York for not having shown the white feather—they didn't grab for their money when other lenders grabbed frenziedly. Instead, they stepped courageously into the raging demoralization and supplied an extra billion dollars without asking a cent more than 6 per cent for it—a lot was actually lent at 5 per cent.

California friends are greatly encouraged by the newly-reached agreement to curtail production. The best California oil stocks were eagerly purchased just before the market closed.

Standard Oil of California is often bracketed with Standard Oil of New Jersey as the two leading Rockefeller oil enterprises. John D. has an unusual affection for Standard Oil of California and cherishes stock certificate No. 1, which was issued to him. Ken Kingsbury, the master mind of the company, is one of the real oil giants of the world. Although college-bred, the old Standard Oil Company put him through a gruelling test for several years before advancing him. Kingsbury at one time had a furnace-feeding job which almost broke his back nightly—the eight-hour-day was not known then.

Cotton looks cheap. Other countries can supplement America's wheat supply when it runs short, but the world depends upon the United States for its cotton.

A Seattle business man sends me this telegram:

"Seattle newspapers display a banner headline: 'Merchants Ready for Christmas Shopping Season.' The story reveals that 6000 extra sales folk, drawing $1,000,000 in holiday pay, have been engaged for a period of eight weeks, whereas last season only 5000 were employed, drawing $800,000 pay. Does this not appear an unusually healthy business sign in face of the stock crash?"

It does.

Secretary Mellon was not such an old fool, after all, when he issued his advice some little time ago: "Buy bonds."

Many wise ones who switched from skyrocketing stocks to bonds reversed the bonds when the inevitable stock collapse came. Bargains are still abundant in the stock market. Only they should be selected with proper regard for actual earnings. Buying expectations has brought ruin to many.

Cleveland Stocks Are Sold Higher

Cleveland, Nov. 4 (INS)—Stocks sold fractionally higher on the Cleveland exchange today and the market was somewhat firmer as compared with Thursday's close. Trading at the opening was exceptionally active, which according to exchange officials, was the result of a three-day accumulation of orders.

Finds Average Man Will Pay Loans

Statistics recently compiled show that the average man who borrows money at the organized small loan agencies meets his obligations almost one hundred per cent. A division of the Morris Plan system, which requires co-singers, recently reported losses of only one-quarter of one per cent over a given period of time.

Car Loadings

Rock Island handled 187,357 revenue freight cars in October, against 184,027 in like month 1928.

CURB TRADING SLACKENS ON DECLINE

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—After absorption of an early wave of profit-taking at the opening, activity on the Curb market slackened up considerably today and trading came near to normal proportions for the first time in more than a week. The list was under considerable pressure, however. Losses of 2 to more than 10 points at the opening were substantially reduced during the morning, but renewed selling broke out in the early afternoon, notably in the utilities.

Cities Service was again dealt in huge volume, opening with a block of 225,000 shares, the largest transaction on record, at 41⅞, up 4⅞, but it lost most of its gain in profit-taking later. Oils were highly irregular. Cosden dropped about 15 points and Gulf sagged moderately, while Humble, Standard of Indiana and Vacuum were firm.

In the utilities, Electric Bond & Share opened with a loss of about 10 points, rallied, and again turned downward. Electric Investors opened off 7, rebounded 2 points, then went into another decline, selling off 15 points. Allied Power, American Superpower and American Gas & Electric sagged moderately. Niagara Hudson sold off nearly a point.

Several industrial and merchandising shares scored substantial gains. Deere jumped forward more than 30 points, then lost some of its gain. Aluminum Company and Great Atlantic & Pacific gained about 10 points each. Glen Alden Coal, General Theaters Equipment and Niles Bement Pond were firm.

Lehman Corporation and Goldman Sachs lost about 5 points each. Trans-America, however, was fairly steady, selling ex-rights.

Transcontinental Air Service Near

Western Air Express, in conjunction with Universal Aviation Corp. and several other transportation companies, is working out plans for a 36-hour schedule from Los Angeles to New York, President Hanshue stated. It is expected operation will begin shortly after December 15 with scheduled price approximately $300 for the trip.

Itinerary is as follows: Western Air Express will carry passengers from Los Angeles to Kansas City in 13 hours, where passengers will spend the night, leaving in the morning via Universal for New York, which will be reached in 11 hours. Fourteen tri-motor Fokker planes will be used throughout.

Stock Deliveries Subject to Delay

Howard B. Smith, chairman of the New York Stock Transfer Association, stated, "Although every effort has been made and will be made to maintain the usual schedule of transferring securities within 48 hours of the time that they are presented for transfer, it is being found in many cases impossible in the present rush of business, due to the large number of certificates being issued to individual investors all over the country. Transfer may, of necessity, in some cases be somewhat delayed."

Stockholders Win Land Bank Ruling

Washington, Nov. 4 (INS)—The Supreme Court today ruled the receiver of a joint stock land bank does not have authority to sue stockholders for double liability on order of the federal farm loan board.

The decision was given in the appeal of J. R. Wheeler of Wisconsin, sued by Howard Green, receiver of the Bankers' Joint Stock Land Bank of Milwaukee for $5000, the amount of stock which he held. The circuit court was reversed.

Refund to American Can Is $3,902,936

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals today unanimously upheld the verdict of Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard permitting the American Can Company and three subsidiaries to recover $3,902,936 and interest from Frank F. Bowers, collector of internal revenue. The money was paid under protest for income tax in 1917 and the interest now due on it brings the total to about $6,500,000.

Eastern Steamship Income Is Larger

Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., reports for September net income after all charges of $434,476, against net income of $396,183, in September, 1928.

Net income for the nine months to September 30 totaled $2,159,982 against net income of $1,332,346 in the corresponding nine months of 1928.

United Verde Has Increased Output

United Verde Extension Mining Co. produced in September 5,141,356 pounds of copper, in August 4,595,462 and in July 4,470,336. In three months it also shipped 1,130,998 pounds of copper in silica ore.

Airway Electric

Airway Electric Appliance Corporation of Toledo earned $1,255,210 during the first nine months, compared with $952,788 in the corresponding period last year.

Cash Register Has Larger Earnings

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—Earnings of the National Cash Register Company for the quarter ending Sept. 30 were $2,030,708, compared with $1,581,556 in the corresponding quarter last year. Nine month's earnings totaled $6,437,379, against $5,219,899 in the same 1928 period.

Net income of the Amerada Corporation, holding company for several organizations engaged in the production and marketing of petroleum products, for the third quarter amounted to $2,259,184, equal to $2.45 a share, compared with $577,563, or 63 cents a share, in the same quarter of last year.

Law Enforcement Rally Is Planned

Amesbury, Nov. 4—Plans for a union law enforcement rally in the Methodist Church next Sunday evening at which Arthur Davis, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League will speak, are being made by the pastor, Rev. John R. Copplestone. Members of most of the other local churches are to join in

Five Trusts Seek to Sell to Rockwell Organization

Jarvis W. Rockwell, Jr., president of Seaboard Continental Corp. investment trust, announces his trust was approached recently by five out-of-town trusts which wished to be taken over by Seaboard. The largest had assets of $4,500,000 and the smallest, $200,000. It is believed similar merger offers undoubtedly have been made to many other trusts.

SALES LARGER FOR MONTH

T. M. Pletcher, president of Q. R. S. DeVry Corporation, announced today that sales in October were more than 40 per cent greater than they were in September and more than 50 per cent greater than in October a year ago. For the month sales exceeded $400,000.

Orders on the books of the company will keep their plants operating at full capacity for at least another four months, with production in the top department still running behind orders. Retailers are buying freely in anticipation of the biggest Christmas business in their history, and officials are of the opinion that sales in November and December will exceed those for the first four months of the current year.

Collections are reported to be better than they were a year ago, and judging by reports of the men in the field retailers are generally more prosperous than they were at this time in 1928. Business on the Pacific coast and in the South, it was said, is in much more satisfactory volume than it was at the beginning of November, 1928.

In the neon tubing department, which is one of the new divisions of the company, business at this time was reported to be in bigger volume than was anticipated. In addition to the four plants operated by the company in Chicago, Kalamazoo, Pittsburgh and New York, the company now has licensee manufacturers in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Denver, Omaha, Tulsa, Houston, Dallas, St. Louis, Memphis, Kansas City, Cincinnati, Atlanta, Detroit, Boston, Knoxville, Columbus and Minneapolis. The company's expansion program is expected to increase still further the number of companies manufacturing neon tubing under Q. R. S. DeVry patents.

Consolidation of the DeVry Corp. with Q. R. S. provided the company with complete facilities for the manufacture of still and motion picture cameras and accessories. While cameras for professional use are made, the company's best sellers have been popular priced models for amateur use. Distribution outlets have been increased in recent months and it is reported that most retailers selling cameras now handle the line.

Foreign agencies have been established in Cuba, Mexico, Argentine, Australia, Chile, Brazil, Germany, Sweden and several other European countries, and the company's foreign business, while small compared to domestic sales, is reported to be in satisfactory volume and growing rapidly.

Boston Members to Keep Open Tuesday

By vote of the governing committee there will be no session of the Boston Stock Exchange Tuesday, November 5, election day, a stock exchange holiday. It is desired, however, that members of the exchange keep their offices open on that day and be prepared to adjust disputed transactions and to receive delayed deliveries. At 11 o'clock on Tuesday there will be a joint meeting of the committees on arbitration and arrangements. Members who have claims or trades which they have been unable to adjust between themselves are requested to meet the committees at this time and be prepared to present all pertinent facts relating to them.

STOVE CONCERN REPORTS ITS BEST MONTH

The Kalamazoo Stove Company reports that the month just finished was the biggest October in the company's business. Sales amounted to $927,418, compared with $781,603 for October of last year, an increase of 18.6 per cent.

For the entire year to date shipments show a gain of approximately 20 per cent over 1928 figures, it is announced by A. L. Blakeslee, president, who adds:

"Every month of 1929 has shown a substantial increase in both sales and shipments over the same month in 1928. This is especially significant since 1928 was by far the biggest year in the company's 29 years of business, and the culmination of four or five years of regularly increasing prosperity. There is every indication that business will be excellent in November and December and that these months will also show decided sales increases over the same months of 1928.

"The company's position is even stronger than at this time last year. There is a considerable increase in cash, in spite of the increased dividends paid during 1929. This dividend now is on the basis of $4.50 cash, in quarterly payments of $1.12½, with quarterly extra stock dividends amounting to 6 per cent annually."

ORDERS COME FROM ABROAD

Lynch Glass Machine Company has just received its third repeat order for extensive automatic glass equipment from two French firms, the Paul Laurent Company of St. Romain and the Claude Boucher organization of Cognac, France.

T. C. Werbe, president of Lynch, reported today, in connection with these recent cable orders, that the foreign business of his company is now equal to more than 60 per cent of the entire production.

"Lynch company's foreign trade has expanded materially this year," said Mr. Werbe. "European, South American and oriental business of Lynch should increase to an even greater extent in the next few years."

The parts and repairs business of the company has developed into a large item and the income from this section of the business alone is able to care for the dividend requirements of the Lynch organization, it is stated.

Lynch Glass Machine Company manufactures automatic glass equipment in its plant at Anderson, Ind. Stock is listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange.

Sales Run Ahead of a Year Ago

Net income of the Super-Maid Corporation in the nine months ended September 30, 1929, amounted to $863,177 after all charges including federal taxes, equal to $5.75 a share on the common stock. This compares with $890,806 or $5.94 a share in the corresponding period of 1928.

Roy W. Wilson, president, in issuing the earnings figures, stated that sales are running ahead of a year ago and the company is now receiving the benefit of the lowered production cost accomplished by the introduction of a new manufacturing process this year.

"The current three months is the best quarter of our year, as it includes the Christmas business," Mr. Wilson said, "and it is our belief that earnings in this period will be quite satisfactory. In fact, we believe that we should substantially exceed the 1928 earnings, which amounted to $8.14 a share on our 150,000 shares of no par value stock." It was announced that the present ratio of current assets to current liabilities is 4.61 to 1.

BIG RECOVERY IS EXPECTED AT HARVARD

Predicting a substantial recovery c... ...es within the next six months, Harvard Economic Society in its current weekly letter says:—

The drop in stock prices in September and October follows eight years of advance not interrupted by any decline of equal severity. The prolonged rise since 1921 occurred during a period of prosperity, marked by great expansion of business and credit. Business conditions remain generally sound and abundant credit is still available for industrial and financial purposes, so that we believe that what is taking place is a correction of an over-extended speculative situation which will be accomplished without changing the fundamental factors making for continued business prosperity.

This does not mean that the recent collapse will shortly be followed by another strong and persistent advance of stock prices, such as has followed stock market recessions in recent years. This time the decline has been too serious for that, and under most favorable conditions some interval must elapse before there can be another substantial upswing. Moreover, a recession in business has been under way for about two months, and will be intensified by the severe losses suffered in the stock market and the feeling of pessimism that will naturally exist for a time.

On the basis of past experience it would be reasonable to expect the recovery of stock prices to begin in from six to twelve months, even though business conditions were unsound and credit conditions difficult. Since conditions today are just the contrary, it is reasonable to expect some recovery of prices in less than six months' time, and to believe that the severe recession through which the market has passed will not be so prolonged as the pessimism of the moment will naturally lead many to expect.

Whether, after recovery begins in a few months, stock prices will during the present longer business cycle reach as high a level as they attained last summer, or whether they can conceivably go even higher, it is idle now to consider. The experience of 1906 would point to the conclusion that they are not likely to return to last September's peak, while the record of other intermediate movements would point to the opposite conclusion. All that can be said now is that the next six months will probably bring a substantial recovery of stock prices.

With the slump in the stock market the upward movement in bond prices was temporarily interrupted. But some shifting of investment from stocks to bonds is an inevitable result of the sharp decline in stocks, and the prospect is for higher bond prices as money eases. The extent of this movement depends chiefly upon the factors governing money conditions.

BOND MARKET SUPPORTED

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—Strong support came into the bond market today and prices in all divisions of the general list moved sharply higher in response to the brisk investment demand. Gains in the early trading ranged between 1 and 2 points among the mose active issues, with railroad bonds, industrials and utilities of good grade sharing the rise.

United States government securities displayed the greatest activity in months and made some wide adv[...].

The upturn, following the weakness of bonds last week as holdings were liquidated to provide funds for stock market purposes, erased those losses. Trading was on a large scale in scores of gilt-edge obligations.

Convertibles were lower in sympathy with the declining share prices.

In the railroad loan group, gains of a point or more appeared in Boston & Maine 5s, Canadian National 4½s, Burlington 4½s, Northern Pacific General 3s, Reading General 4½s, Southern Railway 6½s, Wabash 5s, Texas & Pacific 5s, Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s, Lehigh Valley General 4s, Central of Georgia 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s and numerous others. A long list of carriers, led by Union Pacific first 4s, showed fractional strength.

Industrials moved up briskly. Inland Steel 4½s, Armour 5½s, Bethlehem Steel 5½s, Goodyear 5s and several oil company loans displayed outstanding strength. National Dairy 5¼s rose 2 points. Seasoned utilities met with a strong market, New York Telephone general 4½s rising a point and a half.

Chicago to Close

Chicago, Nov. 4 (INS)—The Chicago Stock Exchange, in conformity with the New York exchange, will be closed all day tomorrow, Election day, and will close at noon Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. There will be no trading Saturday, the board of governors announced.

Nickel Plate

Present indications are that New York, Chicago & St. Louis will show at least $17.50 a share on its 337,074 shares of common after allowing for 6 per cent dividends on $36,065,400 preferred and may show as much as $24.61, depending on dividend income from various stock holdings.

MARKET BREAK TO DO GOOD

New York, Nov. 4—The recent disturbance in the stock market will have some prejudicial effect on retail business in general, but will be beneficial in the long run, Frank S. Cunningham, president of Butler Brothers, one of the nation's largest wholesale and retail organizations, said here today.

"The effect of the recent stock market disturbance cannot help having some prejudicial effect on retail business generally," Mr. Cunningham said. "But I believe this will be temporary.

"I believe that a readjustment in stock prices has been overhanging for some time, and that deflation will be beneficial in the long run.

"December is the peak month in the retail business and unless deflation in the securities market continues longer than is now indicated, substantial recovery should occur so that retail business may enter the month of December with a buying power well restored."

Tin Plate Output for Month Larger

Steel companies operating in the Mahoning Valley district report varying month-opening operating schedules with gains in one direction offset by losses in others. Tin plate production gained from 60 to 75 per cent of capacity and with merchant steel bar production up to 75 per cent. On the other hand, open hearth steel output declined, with 27 of the 51 independent smelters operating.

AT THE DIAL

By THE RADIO EDITOR

ALL CHICAGO will blossom out tonight in best bib and tucker to greet the annual opening of its opera. This year the opera takes on special significance, in that it serves to open up the new and palatial $20,000,000 Civic Theater on Wacker Drive. In order that the home audience may take in the details of decoration and construction, the management has seen fit to mount an opera which calls for slight attention from the audience. The perennial old friend, "Aida," with those hardy perennials of the vocal garden, Rosa Raisa, Charles Marshall, Cesare Formichi and Virgilio Lazzari, will go through the pompous paces of the quasi-Egyptian Italianate opera child of Verdi's old age. The ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience will be served up bits of it from 11 o'clock until midnight through WEEI and sister stations. On Saturday night, the Blue Network takes up the first of a series of weekly broadcasts from the Windy City.

ARTURO FILIPPI, tenor, will make his first New York appearance for this season with Roxy and his Gang during the broadcast through WBZ and the NBC System at 7:30.

Filippi appeared abroad as leading tenor of the Royal San Carlo Opera Company of Naples and the Court Opera in Rudolstadt, and sang concerts at Rome, Palermo, Saalfeld and Jena.

VAUGHN DE DEATH, contralto, and Franklyn Baur, tenor, sing both classical and popular music with the Voice of Firestone over WEEI and the NBC System at 8 o'clock. The concert orchestra is under the direction of Hugo Mariani.

HARRIET LEE, contralto, will sing "Love Me" during the program to be presented by the Ceco Couriers over WNAC and the Columbia System at 8:30. Henry Burbig has prepared another of his specialty recitations for presentation at this time. Vocal choruses by the Ceco Trio will be sung with orchestra accompaniment to "I Gotta Have You," "Through," and "Needin' You Like I Do." A xylophone solo "Flapperette," will also be played.

SYMPHONIC, operatic and chamber music selections by the White House Orchestra, directed by Hugo Mariani, will be broadcast through WBZ and the NBC System at 8:30. The program follows: Overture to "Anacreon", Cherubini; Dance of the Blessed Spirits, from "Orpheus and Eurydice," Gluck; Amaryllis, Ghys; Fackeltanz, Meyerbeer; March, from "Leonore" Symphony, Raff; The Last Spring, Grieg; Finlandia, Sibelius.

THE A. AND P. GYPSIES, under direction of Harry Horlick, assisted by contralto and tenor soloists, in broadcasting selections from native opera and musical comedies over WEEI and the NBC System at 8:30.

LE CHAT NOIR in Paris is the locale of the Evening in Paris broadcast over WNAC and the Columbia System at 9:30. The old cabaret is enshrined in the memory of countless tourists and thrill-seekers.

Among the musical selections to be heard are "Reviens" (Come Back to Me), the waltz "Christine," sung by Ludovic Huot tenor: "Je M'Appelle Flossie" (My Name is Flosie), sung by Delphine March, contralto; a group of old French folk songs for mixed quartet, including "Aupres De Ma Blonde," "J'Air Du Bon Tobac," and "Au Claire De La Lune."

MUSICAL SELECTIONS which appeal to ex-President William Howard Taft and help him relax from the arduous duties of his office will be played during the broadcast of the Edison program through WBZ and the NBC Coast-to-Coast System at 9:00 o'clock.

MUSIC of many lands will be heard in the program by John Philip Sousa and his band in the General Motors Family Party over WEEI and NBC stations at 9:30.

In addition to a number of his own marches Sousa has included distinctive music of Italy, France, Germany and the British Isles, as well as music descriptive of Egypt and China by European composers. Compositions by Ambroise Thomas, Percy Grainger, Johann Strauss, Louis Moreau, Gottschalk, Amilcare Ponchielli and others will be represented in the concert. Howard Goulden, xylophonist of Sousa's band, will play the "Polonaise" from Thomas' opera "Mignon."

BIFF JONES, West Point football coach, will be the guest speaker, and Duke Ellington and his Jungle Band will supply the music on the Burns Panatela Country Club broadcast to WNAC and stations of the Columbia System at 10 o'clock. Jones will tell of his team's campaign and give sidelights on the various members of the squad.

AN old Spanish legend concerning the bells of San Gabriel Mission in Southern California with the love story of an early pioneer will be dramatized in the Empire Builders, broadcast through WBZ and the NBC Coast-to-Coast System at 10:30.

Does a radio tube know eggs?

Radio tubes, like humans, have 5 vital senses. And just as your sense of smell may grow dull when you have a cold, vital "sense" characteristics can weaken in your tubes, even though they still light. Perfect reception demands the 30-50% longer "keen-sense" life which impartial tests prove CeCo alone can give.

NEW ENGLAND COUNCIL WILL HEAR ADAMS

Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams and Edward Warner, former assistant secretary of the navy, will be the principal speakers at the fifth New England conference of New England Council at the Hotel Statler, Nov. 21-22.

All governors of New England States and several congressmen have expressed their intention of being present. It is estimated that 1500 delegates will attend.

One of the features of the conference will be the use of a gavel made from the English white pine placed in the roof of the White House, Washington, in 1812. President Redfield Proctor of Vermont will use the gavel for the first time at the conference.

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Curley Entitled on His Record to Big Majority

JAMES M. CURLEY comes out of one of the muddiest political campaigns in Boston history unstained, unspotted, unsullied.

His traducers have filled the air with calumny from Orient Heights to the Dedham line.

Everything that hatred could inspire or malice invent has been said of him.

And what does it all amount to?

That is the question for sober-minded men and women to ask themselves before they go to the polls, what does it all come to?

It comes to this:

That not even the blackest-mouthed and most scoundrelly blackguard has DARED to speak ill of James M. Curley's PRIVATE life.

And this:

That NO man has come forward with a SINGLE complaint that Mr. Curley was ever unfaithful in his PUBLIC life.

The "great issues" brought forward, by those who prefer another candidate to Mr. Curley, are two in number.

1.—Hasn't Curley had enough?

2.—The CURLEY campaign has cost money.

HASN'T the campaign AGAINST Mr. Curley cost money?

Who has filled the ANTI-CURLEY campaign chest? Why? Do any of the ANTI-CURLEY contributors hope to get their money back? In what way?

Let the citizen ask himself or herself these questions, and apply ordinary judgment to the framing of answers.

THE other question is poppycock. The problem before those who have the best interests of Boston at heart is NOT what Mr. Curley desires, but what Boston NEEDS.

The problem is the selection of a manager for the biggest business in the city. The question is whether we shall employ a City Manager who knows the business, or take on a green hand and let him learn it, at our expense.

The question is whether Boston's March of Progress is to continue without a halt, or whether we are to mark time for a year or two, while a green hand makes the acquaintance of his subordinates and learns his way about the City Hall.

THE remarkable thing, it seems to us, is that although Mr. Curley HAS a public record—eight years in the Mayor's office—his enemies have not been able to discover a single flaw in it. Not one! With all the money and all the ability at their command, they have not come forward to say of any specific act "THIS was wrong!"

Mr. Mansfield has carried on his campaign earnestly, but he has been poorly advised. He may do better on some occasion in the future. He will return to his law practice on Wednesday and, we hope, find the outer office filled by prospective clients.

The mud turtles can remain in their muddiness.

Because James M. Curley, if his fellow citizens are as common-sensible as we believe them to be, is about to be called back to the Mayor's office.

Polling places throughout the city will be opened at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Vote early, if possible on the way to business.

Vote "Yes" Tomorrow

The Welfare of the Children of Boston Hangs on the Fate of the Schoolhouse Referendum

Boston must vote "Yes" tomorrow on the schoolhouse referendum.

The bill establishing a board of commissioners of school buildings and a department of school buildings in Boston has the endorsement of the Legislature and the Governor and needs only the ratification of a majority of the voters tomorrow to become law.

Schoolhouse conditions in Boston have become abominable, intolerable, shameful. The blame lies with an antiquated system incapable of measuring step by step with the progress of education and the increasing needs of the children the city undertakes to educate.

The system has wasted millions of dollars of taxpayers' money. It has resulted in years of delay in the construction of schools for which there was crying need. It has brought into use 207 portable schoolhouses of which the most remote country hamlet would be ashamed.

As President Lowell of Harvard told the Legislature: The only question is the welfare of the children.

As Judge Michael H. Sullivan told the Legislature: The only question is the welfare of the children.

The welfare of the children goes to the polls tomorrow with the Boston citizenry.

Only an affirmative vote on the schoolhouse referendum will safeguard that welfare.

How to Preserve Peace

Send War Makers to the Front

(Copyright, 1929)

HIS HONOR, HENRY GEORGE CARROLL, Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Quebec, tells American bankers:

"This peace that has lasted over one hundred years (between Canada and the United States) may continue, provided the educated classes take care to preserve it."

It need not depend on "EDUCATED classes."

The UNEDUCATED classes can make peace last indefinitely by decreeing that in case of war the educated classes responsible for the war must go to the front line and stay there until the war ends.

New York Day by By O. O. M'INTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up sitting at my window, low spirited over losing 200 pounds in a silly investment, and so with R. T. Webster, the limner, to breakfast at The Players. Rode home on a bus top next to a lady who was sniffling over a book of poems.

So to reading my mail and came a happy cable from Gene Tunney that his wife was able to leave a hospital in Berlin. Also came a Kodak of my dog when he was a pup in Stockton, Mass., and the name he bore then was, by sheer coincidence, the one I gave him.

Worked until late and to hear some Vincent Lopez tunes at the St. Regis and took my wife to a theater, leaving her there to window shop along Broadway and so sleepy I dozed standing up waiting later in the lobby. Home and fell to reading Fred McLaughlin's "The Blade of Picardy," a brave tale.

Broadway hears that a young man who was tossing away $100 bills in Joy Joints three years ago has entered a monastery—an unusual finish to a White Way romp. But encouraging.

Jaded celebrities have been diverting the night places by arriving in masquerade costumes—the gentlemen with whiskers, mustaches and odd dress and the ladies in wigs and gay '90 costume. If recognized, tabloid photographers are tipped off and come on the gallop. And they all get their pictures in the paper, which is the intention.

There are stories that many people in the limelight frequently use superficial disguises when walking crowded streets. If so, it is the farthest north in self-consciousness. So hurried and unobserving is New York that a fellow, led by a block-long band, standing up in an open carriage, does not receive more than a glance.

And here is a hand grenade of pooh for a movie actor arriving a week ago at Grand Central. He slipped on a mask and suffered himself to be carried along by friends in a football rush to a waiting automobile.

Twice recently I lunched at cafes with ladies—one a writer and another a business executive—who firmly insisted upon having the check totaled so they could pay their halves. Nothing makes a fellow feel so contemptible as to have a lady hand him money across a table. It is so easy to slip it underneath.

Along John st. on the lower end of the island is a daily curb market for uncut diamonds. This is the usual final step of diamond workers —cutters, polishers, etc.—in branching out to become merchants on their own. They carry supplies in tissue paper packets and sales are briefly to clerks in small shops who have had requests for certain sized cuts. Many important wholesale dealers started on John st.

Being nosey in New York carries its penalties. While standing with a group watching the activities of the diamond curb market somebody gave me a swift kick—by accident or design I do not know. Maybe it was for wearing spats.

Advertising pyrotechnics of the little haberdasheries and such around town are a study in sales psychology. One week their fronts will be emblazoned with banners announcing a grand opening sale. Perhaps a week later a "Fire Sale" is screeched and then come one of those "Must Vacate—Lost Our Lease" ballyhoos and finally a few days shut down to "Open Soon Under New Management." Without a single change of proprietors and in the same buildings this goes on for many years and all survive. A shop in the Herald sq. section has been featuring a fire sale for more than two years.

"We supposed as a country boy," writes Pal D., "you would be interested in an old fashioned rag carpet exhibit. But several invitations have been ignored. Does it interfere with your tea drinking? Or something else?"

That and the grouse shooting in Scotland. And the back of my hand to you, sir!

Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

JOYS blossom sometimes like magnolia flowers,
So sweet they drug the senses with delight,
Their heavy petals mellow in the light
And lending vague enchantment to the hours.
The great joys, these, conferring splendid dowers,
The joy of harbor after stormswept ways,
The joy of meeting after barren days,
With life grown sweet again as April bowers.
But, like the ivy carpeting the earth
Beneath the straight pride of magnolia trees,
Loved, humbler things bring lesser joys than these,
Each tiny joy an emerald leaf of mirth.
A little while magnolia reigns as queen,
But all year long the ivy leaf is green.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

THE chief antagonists of the bacteria themselves are the white blood corpuscles. These actually fight the bacteria. It is only when the white blood corpuscles are losing ground that congestions and inflammations make Mr. Everyman aware of the mischief afoot. The chemical poisons which the invaders pour into the plasma are neutralized by specially manufactured antidotes.

H. G. Wells

The composition of blood is fruther complicated by a second kind of protective arrangement—the provision for forming clots.

Some unfortunate people have blood that does not clot. In the hereditary condition known as Haemophilia, in which the blood is incapable of clotting, patients lose large quantities of blood from trivial cuts and have been known to bleed to death in the dentist's chair.

Normal clotting, which fills the wound and so checks the escape of blood, involves as an essential feature the conversion of a certain substance dissolved in the plasma, fibrinogen, into fibrin, which is insoluble and which precipitates, therefore, to form the fibrous clot.

Twenty or thirty years ago it was thought that the co-operation of part with part was insured through the nervous system, above either consciously through the brain or unconsciously through the spinal cord and inferior centers.

But nowadays we are beginning to realize that a very large part of the harmonizing task in responsive growth, for instance, or sympathetic secretion, is done through substances emitted by one organ and reaching another by way of the blood. The canal system is more important relatively to the telegraphic system than was once suspected.

SUCH is the nature and composition of the blood. About one-twentieth of the weight of a normal man is blood, and in the meshes of a network of bloodstreams, so to speak, all the life in our bodies goes on.

We will next take a glance at these streams and note how they are driven round the body.

4. THE COURSE OF THE BLOOD

IT is not difficult to see the blood actually at work among the tissue-cells. The delicate web of a frog's foot, for example, can be examined under a microscope, without being severed from the rest of the frog or indeed causing it any pain, and we can observe the whole business in progress.

Bidding the sheet of tissue under examination, and apparently dividing it into lobes, is a network of canals, the blood-vessels. In these vessels the course of the blood may be watched by following the red corpuscles as they float along.

The blood can be seen hurrying apparently at headlong speed (velocities always look deceptively high through the microscope because the instrument magnifies distance without magnifying time) along certain larger vessels—highways—which are minute arteries.

The arteries branch and divide and their branches divide again, so that the blood passes into smaller and smaller canals. At each division the cross area of the two branches taken together somewhat exceeds that of the original trunk, so that the blood travels more and more slowly as it finds its way into narrower and narrower passages.

The final, minutest blood vessels are the capillaries; their diameter is only very slightly greater than that of the red blood-cells themselves, and in these ultimate canals the cells no longer bustle—they crawl.

It is through the invisible thin walls of the capillaries that there takes place the interchange of substances between blood and flesh the purpose for which the blood has come.

But the blood does not stay long in the capillaries. As it loiters its dissolved food and oxygen are diffusing into the cells, and the unwanted residue of their capacity is passing back in exchange. Diffusion, over distances measured in thousandths of millimetre, is a process of lightning speed, and the blood must not hang about after its function is performed. Hence, after a brief passage through one of the myriad capillaries, the blood reaches a point where its course, instead of subdividing, come together again. The capillaries join and the resulting trunks join each other, and so veins are formed.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

IT may be cheaper to move than to pay rent, but it is cheaper to stay PUT than to pay alimony.

Glorifying the American kitchen with orchid soap-dishes and pastel pink kitchen ranges ought to make the home more alluring; but, somehow, to a normal man, there is no appeal so potent as the fragrant aroma of a broiling steak as he opens the front door.

If a man is looking for romance, they call her an "ideal-ist"; but if a woman of 40 does it, they call her an "old fool."

A man's discontent with his wife isn't so likely to "jell" until he meets the "other woman." Then he suddenly discovers that he has been spiritually and mentally mismated all those years!

Good gamblers, whether at cards, love or matrimony, are those who know how to win gracefully—and how to lose with a smile, and no hard feelings.

To some men, domestic normalcy means just a grouch before breakfast, a peck on the cheek after breakfast, and a nap after dinner.

Now, the fashion of offering to shoulder a woman's burdens for life seems to have gone out among men, along with the wearing of suspenders.

A woman never knows how much she'd miss the car until it breaks down and goes to the shop for repairs—nor how much she'd miss her husband until he breaks down and goes to the hospital for repairs.

Most good American husbands spend their lives busily "making the wife safe for widowhood."
